Britain to Hand Over Holy Land To Arabs in 1944

Jews to Be Limited to Third of Population; Leaders to Resist 'Breach of Faith'

By the Associated Press.

London, May 17. — The British government tonight outlined plans for turning strife-torn Palestine over to its Arab majority, stinging Jewish leaders into bitter declarations of opposition.

A White Paper setting forth Britain's "final plan" indicated Britain was disclaiming five years hence any "obligation to facilitate the further development of the Jewish national home (in Palestine) by immigration."

Unable to obtain agreement between Arabs and Jews, Britain announced its own solution for the political future of the Holy Land, wracked by virtual civil war for three years.

Limited to One-third

Jews will be limited to one-third of the population of the country which Britain wrested from Turkey during the World War and now controls under League of Nations mandate.

The proposal for establishment of an independent Arab state, the White Paper said, "would involve consultation with the Council of the League of Nations with a view to the termination of the mandate."

An official statement by the Jewish National Agency for Palestine said the plan "sets up a territorial ghetto for the Jews in their own homeland."

Jewry Plans Fight

The plan must obtain approval of both Parliament and the League. Jews planned strenuous effort to defeat it, but the government, with an overwhelming majority in the House of Commons and through its influence at Geneva, was confident of pushing the program through.

Main points of the British plan are:

Establishment within ten years of an independent Palestine State dominated by Arabs and bound commercially and strategically to Britain.

Permission for 75,000 Jews to immigrate to Palestine within the next five years—but thereafter Arab permission will be necessary for the Jews to enter.

Granting to the British high commissioner power to restrict or control the sale of land, a blow to Jewish immigrants.

A major consideration in what appeared to be concessions to the Arabs at the expense of the Jews was believed to have been Britain's wish to have the support of the Moslem world in the event of a European war.

Balfour Opened Gates

A declaration of British policy on November 2, 1917, by Lord Balfour, then foreign secretary, invited Jews to make a national home in Palestine and expressed sympathy toward Zionist aspirations.

Of Jewish charges that limitation of immigration into Palestine violates terms of the League mandate, the White Paper said:

"His Majesty's government believe that the framers of the mandate in which the Balfour declaration was embodied could not have intended that Palestine should be converted into a Jewish state against the will of the Arab population."

The White Paper referred to the breakdown in consultations with Arab and Jewish leaders in London early this year, and explained:

"Accordingly, His Majesty's government are free to formulate their own policy and after careful consideration have decided to adhere generally to the proposals which they finally submitted to and discussed with the Arab and Jewish delegations."

After announcing the one-third rule, under which Jews would be allowed to bring the 75,000 immigrants into Palestine in the next five years, the White Paper added:

British Fire On Jews in Riot

Special Cable to The Post.

Jerusalem, May 17.—Violence burst anew over the Holy land tonight as Jews demonstrated bitterly against Great Britain's Palestine plan.

Twelve Jewish youths were wounded in Tel Aviv when British police fired into a rioting crowd of 5,000 after British district government office furniture was smashed and burned.

Immigration headquarters here was bombed and fired, destroying passport records of the last 20 years.

Soviet Dooms Girl, Mother as Spies

Moscow, May 17 (U.P.).—A girl who married two red army officers in succession to obtain military information was sentenced to death at Kiev today, together with her mother, on charges of espionage for "a neighboring power."

The mother was said to have been told by foreign agents that she could regain her lost estate if she became a spy. Accordingly, it was charged, she induced her daughter to marry the red army men.

All Ky. Troops Ready for Call to Harlan

Crowd Menacing as 1,250 Stand Guard; More Mines to Open

By the Associated Press.

Harlan, Ky., May 17.—Every National Guardsman in Kentucky has orders to be ready to move into the Harlan coal fields, it was announced tonight.

Brigadier General Ellerbe Carter, placed in full command of the trouble zone late in the day by Governor Chandler, said:

"Things have been pretty rough today, rougher instead of quieter. I want to tell you one thing, the situation will be handled if it takes all the National Guard in Kentucky. The others have orders to stand by."

Employs More Than 12,000

At Frankfort the Governor said he was ready, if asked, to help bring about a settlement of differences between the United Mine Workers and the operators. At Washington Secretary of Labor Perkins said a labor conciliator was being sent. The Governor warned he would "make a show of force" to "prevent trouble."

The Harlan County Coal Operators' Association—with a membership of 42 mines in the county, employing upwards of 12,000 men—is the last of the three Kentucky dissenters from the New York union shop agreement. Others signed contracts with the union today.

The first detachment of 448 troops ordered into Harlan early today arrived from Ashland shortly after nightfall. The Governor said these would bring the number of soldiers to "approximately 1,250" here. General Clark said about 1,100 more were available.

Gathering Slowly Disperses

The general's declaration followed the most tense situation at the close of the day they have faced since arrival Sunday. Lieut. Fred Kerr estimated 2,000 persons, men and women, "threatened" a detachment of troops with four machine guns at the fork of a road near Verda.

For more than an hour the crowd stood peering at the troopers. Some of the women pleaded with the soldiers to drop their guns.

Military headquarters in Harlan sent additional troopers to the spot, and on appeals of union leaders the gathering slowly dispersed without trouble to deflate the tension.

Howe Offers Plan for 10-Cent Milk Under District Control

By James D. Secrest.

District control of milk production and pasteurization as a quasi-public utility, with the possibility of a reduction in the price of milk to the consumer from 14 to 9 or 10 cents a quart, was proposed yesterday by Dr. Frederic C. Howe, former consumers' counsel of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Dr. Howe said that testimony before the Senate Monopoly Committee, with which he is now associated, showed that milk can be pasteurized and bottled for approximately a half cent a quart. The farmer, under his plan, could still get from 5 to 7 cents a quart.

His proposal to the House subcommittee conducting the milk inquiry was greeted in cold silence by attorneys for the dairies, producers' association and the corporation counsel. Only Chairman Bates (Democrat), of Kentucky, and Representative Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, showed any interest in the idea.

Other developments in the investigation of the District milk supply were:

Ralph A. Lee, who operates a creamery and ice cream plant in Rosslyn, Va., boasted that he now "bootlegs" cream in violation of the District milk act, but he insisted that he was forced to do so by the "unenforceable" provisions of the law.

Chairman Bates disclosed that a man attending the hearings had

Young Asks Capital Gains Tax Repeal

Wants to Stimulate Flow of Equity Money, Speedier Bankruptcy System

By Felix Cotten.

Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric Co., told the Monopoly Committee yesterday that the capital gains tax should be repealed to stimulate the flow into productive enterprise of money willing to take risks.

He also recommended:

Other changes which may profitably be made in the tax laws to remove deterrents to business, including modification of the undistributed profits tax to permit up-and-coming concerns, which find it hard to get needed equity capital, to retain earnings without penalty.

Abandonment by the Administration of a "threatening" attitude toward business and adoption of a policy of encouragement, thereby giving pump-priming "stimulants" a chance to work.

Speedy Bankruptcy

Enactment of broad changes in the bankruptcy laws to speed the process of putting "through the wringer" and rebuilding with private capital unwieldy capital structures "wherever they exist in business."

Suspension of all governmental restraints which are retarding the effectiveness of the spending policy, which should be steadfastly regarded merely as an emergency program.

Exercise of business regulatory powers in a "discriminating" way, always with a view to conserving to the utmost "the advantages of free and competent leadership."

Program Is a Surprise

Presentation of this program by the tall, sedate business captain came as a surprise. He had been called to the witness stand by the Securities and Exchange Commission, which is submitting data in the present series of hearings on ways to use idle dollars to create jobs for the millions of unemployed.

White-haired Edward R. Stettinius, jr., 38-year-old chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation, another of the SEC witnesses, told about the "new frontiers" arising in the wake of technological advances in steel. He revealed plans to market in the South, for $2,500 each, complete farm building units made of fabricated steel, consisting of dwelling, barn, smokehouse, and cylindrical, cone-roofed privy.

The purpose of the SEC in calling Stettinius and Young was to show that United States Steel and General Electric are "self-sufficient corporations. That is, no matter what the Government does, these concerns will not tap the "stagnant pools"

Swedish Airman Feared Lost on Transatlantic Hop

Stockholm, May 17 (AP).—Fears for the safety of Charles Backman, 34, Swedish Transatlantic flier, increased tonight as the time passed when his gasoline supply should have been exhausted and no reports were received of his arrival anywhere in northern Europe.

Backman's plane was not equipped with radio and no word of him has been had since his take-off from Botwood, Newfoundland, early yesterday.

One of the flier's brothers expressed fear he was down at sea. The aviator's mother, brothers and sisters, who had known nothing of his flight plans until they received press reports of his take-off, remained by their radio in the village of Rattvik, in Delecarlia.

Queen's Diamonds Dazzle Canadians

Tiara, Bracelets and Other Jewels Believed To Be Worth Million Worn at State Banquet, Ending Splendor of Day's Events

By Edward T. Folliard
A Staff Correspondent.

Quebec City, Quebec, May 17.—The royal standard of a reigning British monarch was unfurled on this side of the Atlantic for the first time in history today.

King George VI, head of a mighty empire of 497,000,000 souls, and Queen Elizabeth stepped on Canadian soil at 10:30 a. m., to begin a tour that will carry them across this richest of their dominions and ultimately to the Capital City of the United States.

A brilliant state banquet in the Chateau Frontenac, with two red-coated footmen from Buckingham Palace serving the King and Queen, brought the first day of the Royal tour to a close.

The King, having changed from a resplendent admiral's uniform to formal wear, appeared with only a few decorations against the black cloth of his full dress coat.

The Queen fairly glittered with diamonds, including a diamond tiara on her dark hair. Compared to others in the royal jewel box, it was a modest bauble and not to be confused with the real crown that will be worn at Ottawa, the capital.

Besides the tiara, the Queen, smiling and vivacious from the moment she landed in the New World, wore a diamond necklace, diamond eardrops, a diamond bracelet twice as wide as a policeman's handcuffs, and a few assorted rings. A million dollars probably would be a conservative estimate on the lot.

Her gown (so it was said) was a pompadour crinoline dress, with gold sequins on pink satin, the bodice in pink net, with the skirt caught up on the left side with red roses.

Next to the Queen, the most brilliant figure in the banquet hall was not one of the thrilled Quebec matrons, not one of Her Majesty's ladies in waiting; in fact, not a woman at all.

It was Cardinal Villeneuve, Catholic primate of Canada. His Eminence, who earlier in the day had heard King George make a luncheon speech in French and had told him it was "Tres bon," sat only two chairs removed from His Majesty tonight. He had on his cardinal red robes and heightening the color of these was his gold cross and chain and a brilliant decoration of some kind.

Lord Bishop Carrington, of the Church of England in Quebec, sat about six places from the Queen's left, and he was a colorful figure, too, in his plum-colored jacket and his high-buttoned gaiters.

On the menu were three kinds of wine, including a sherry from the King's own stock; three kinds of champagne and an 1811 Napoleon brandy.

The food started off with Russian caviar. Then there was brook trout from Lac a Noel, crown of Quebec lamb, champagne sherbet, and breast of Isle of Orleans snowbirds, the little sparrow-sized fellows which, it was feared, had all been spoiled when the isebergs delayed their majesties.

Finally, there were cookies with a fancy French name, ice cream with

Tenderfoot Farley Rides Horse Just To Win It as Gift

Amarillo, Tex., May 17 (AP).—Jim Farley is a tenderfoot.

Right smack in the middle of 50,000 people today he admitted it.

"I haven't been on a horse since I was a barefoot boy," said the skittish Postmaster General as he looked at "Dynamite," a beautiful white Arabian steed offered Farley by Editor Gene Howe—if he could ride it.

Farley got on, managed to stay on while pictures were taken—then got off quickly.

Wallace Slips Up; Son Soon to Wed

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace inadvertently gave away a family secret yesterday that his son, Henry Browne, 24, was to be married in Iowa this summer.

Asked if any political significance was to be attached to his family taking up residence in Des Moines, he said:

"We have kept our home in Iowa right along," he said, "and a member of the family is to be married this summer." The bride's name was not disclosed.

School Children Given Holiday To Greet Royalty

District public schools will be closed all day June 8 to allow children to witness the arrival of King George and Queen Elizabeth, the School Board voted yesterday. Night schools will remain open.

Dionnes' Clowning Worries Dr. Dafoe

Callander, Ontario, May 17 (U.P.).—The Dionne quintuplets are clowning so at rehearsals for their presentation to King George VI and Queen Elizabeth that Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, their physician, emerged from a practice session today with only a doubtful "hope for the best."

"Boy, you should have seen the way they did it," he said. "Emilie still insists on doing a head stand."

John Roosevelt To Be Father

Mrs. Roosevelt announced at her press conference yesterday that Mrs. John Roosevelt, the former Anne Clark, is expecting an heir and will not attend White House festivities during the visit of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth early next month.

Senate Kills Florida Canal Bill, 45-36

The Senate yesterday refused by a 45-to-36 vote to authorize construction of the $200,000,000 Florida ship canal, cutting a 195-mile waterway from the Atlantic to the Gulf of Mexico.

The vote effectively killed the legislation for the session. The bill had been favorably recommended by the President, who spent $5,400,000 of relief funds in 1935 to start construction.

Twenty-three Democrats combined with 21 Republicans and 1 Progressive to defeat the authorization, while 34 Democrats, 1 Farmer-Laborite and 1 Independent voted for it.

Toll System Voted

Before dealing the death blow, the Senate amended the bill to require a system of tolls to finance the project and to defer actual construction until President Roosevelt had investigated and reported on the proposed self-liquidating toll system.

Another amendment named the project after the late Senator Duncan U. Fletcher, of Florida, who died while fighting for Congressional approval of the undertaking.

It was the second time a coalition headed by Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, had checkmated work on the canal. It was under Vandenberg's leadership that Congress in 1936 refused to vote funds to continue work on the waterway.

Linked with the canal in the 1936 fight was the Administration's proposed tide-harnessing project at Passamaquoddy, Me. The President this year renewed his recommendations for both projects. A modest authorization for test borings and surveys at Passamaquoddy already has been approved by the Senate and is on the House calendar. But the Senate balked stubbornly at reviving the Florida project.

Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, who took up the fight for the canal where Fletcher left off, refused to admit it was "killed" by yesterday's Senate action. He called it a "delay," but said he will continue his fight.

Barkley Urged Passage

The amendment authorizing toll charges to liquidate the costs was offered by Senator Lee (Democrat), of Oklahoma, and this was amended by Senator Adams (Democrat), of Colorado, to provide for a survey and report by the President. Senator Chavez (Democrat), of New Mexico, proposed naming the canal after Fletcher.

A concluding plea for passage was made by Senate Majority Leader Barkley, who urged the military value of the undertaking, and declared it could be further justified on its own merits.

Senators Rebuke President, Order U. S. Beef for Navy

Rebuking President Roosevelt for ordering Argentine canned beef for the Navy, the Senate Appropriations Committee, by a vote of 9 to 7, yesterday approved a provision in the House-passed Navy Department supply bill to require the fleet to use American produced food.

The only loophole is that needed supplies which are not produced in this country, such as coffee and bananas, may be bought from foreign countries.

That the Senate will support the committee's action appeared certain.

The President's order for Argentine beef is not affected by the committee ban, since it is to be paid for out of this year's funds.

Nazis Excel in All But Big Bombers, Lindbergh Says

Hitler Can Produce 20,000 of the Best Planes Every Year, He Tells House

By J. Gilbert Norris

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh told a Congressional committee yesterday that the United States is far behind European nations in both types and numbers of military airplanes.

Testifying behind the closed doors of the House Army appropriations sub-committee, he declared that Germany has superior planes to ours in all categories except heavy bombers and made the flat statement that the Reich has a minimum production capacity of 20,000 military planes a year.

Lindbergh told the committee that the United States is in no danger of aerial attack from abroad. Members said he testified that while it was possible for a foreign bomber to cross the ocean and return, such an attack was not practical.

The famed flier urged increased expenditures for research, contending that while the United States need not attempt to compete with European states in quantity of planes this country should get ahead and stay ahead of them in quality.

Nazi Planes Faster

Citing the fact that German pursuit planes are faster than those of our Army, Lindbergh said that in all types except our "flying fortress" bombers, we are excelled.

Now on a special mission for the War Department, surveying aviation research facilities in the United States, and having a wider first-hand knowledge of the "inside" of Europe's mighty air fleets than any other man, Lindbergh was called to give the sub-commmittee his wealth of information and advice on the President's huge armament program. The group is now holding hearings on a $300,500,000 supplemental Army appropriation bill, which carries $250,000,000 to expand the Army air forces to from 5,500 to 6,000 planes.

Expansion Indorsed

Members of the sub-committee said the flier indorsed the special defense program as appropriate and timely and declared he considered the plane objectives "not excessive." His only recommendation, they said, was that air research facility should be "considerably expanded." Plane performance rather than numbers is the essential thing, was the theme of his discussion.

Representative Engel (Republican), of Michigan, said he was much impressed with Lindbergh's "lack of hysteria" about the matter. "He gave us a calm, dispassionate picture of affairs in Europe," he declared, "and in the face of the wild reports about what some nations are doing, urged that we emphasize quality rather than try to match their numbers."

Say Advice Will Be Heeded

After the session, several members predicted that his advice will be heeded. They said that while $3,000,000 is provided in the estimates before them for research plus $5,000,000 in the regular supply bill, the group will probably allow additional money for this purpose. The funds will go to the Army's Wright Field experimental station and to the various universities carrying on aviation research, one member said.

Lindbergh's testimony was given as the Senate received the largest naval appropriation bill in peacetime history. Carrying $773,049,151 for expansion of the Fleet and regular maintenance of the naval establishment, next year, the measure will be taken up today. It provides for laying down two 45,000-ton battleships and 21 other naval vessels in addition to carrying on construction of 121 war vessels now building. Funds are also allowed in the bill

3 Nations Land Forces, Japan Quits Kulangsu

U. S. Rejects Demands For Greater Control of Foreigners at Shanghai

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai (Thursday), May 18.—Japanese authorities were reliably reported today to have yielded to the demand of American British and French authorities by withdrawing all but a few troops of their Kulangsu landing party.

The United States Navy landed 43 bluejackets on Kulangsu, on the southeast China coast yesterday while British and French warships moved in close to the island to counter Japanese demands for control of the International Settlement.

The American sailors and 84 French and British marines, equal to the Japanese marines remaining in the settlement, were still on patrol for protection of foreign property.

Japan Gets Ultimatum

The French cruiser Emile Beltin arrived from Hongkong to strengthen a naval force consisting of the United States cruiser Marblehead and destroyer Bulmer and four British warships.

British sources said British Vice Admiral Sir Percy Noble delivered an ultimatum to the Japanese last night, refusing to yield to demands for Japanese control of the Kulangsu municipal council and informing the Japanese that the British would keep naval forces on the island so long as the Japanese remained.

The Japanese withdrew most of their landing party to nearby warships.

(In Washington last night the State Department announced that U. S. Ambassador Grew had delivered to the Japanese government a rejection of Japanese demands for greater share of control of the International Settlement at Shanghai. Seizure of Amoy settlement last Friday and subsequent demands for control were generally interpreted as a prelude to similar action at Shanghai.

Demand More Authority

(Japanese had demanded increased representation in the Shanghai municipal council, but their demands on Kulangsu were announced by the Japanese Embassy in London to involve replacement of all Occidental officials with Japanese.)

Kulangsu, in which the United States and Britain are the chief foreign powers concerned, is the first international settlement to be invaded in the Japanese-Chinese war.

$225,000 in 'New Ability' Asked To Help Hopkins Aid Business

By Robert C. Albright.

Secretary of Commerce Hopkins yesterday renewed his pledge of constructive aid to business, as the Budget Bureau called on Congress for a $255,000 appropriation to provide "a new kind of ability and a new kind of energy in the Department of Commerce."

Coincident with the estimates, transmitted by the President, Hopkins informed Congress he will staff his department with "the best brains and experience that I can get." The House Interstate Commerce Committee promptly approved his initial recommendation for a new $10,000-a-year Undersecretary of Commerce.

"It is my hope that I can so organize the Department of Commerce that it will play a constructive part in a more uniform and higher level of industrial activity," Hopkins wrote Chairman Lea, of the House Interstate Commerce Committee.

Budget Director Smith said $225,000 of the $255,000 supplemental sum asked for the department would be used to pay salaries of a "highly qualified" executive staff in the Secretary's office to be used for "developing and carrying through new constructive work, that will be welcomed by businessmen," and "directed toward improvement of business conditions at the earliest possible moment."

Smith said the new staff also will "participate with the Secretary in

BAGDAD-ON-THE-POTOMAC

Lady Lindsay, wife of the British Ambassador, was astonished the other day when one of the Capital's talkative taxi drivers spotted her as a foreigner and told her so. "But how can you tell?" she asked him. "Oh, it's easy," said the cabbie. "It's the way you all talk."

This is especially funny because Lady Lindsay, who was an American girl, was born on Long Island.

Several eminent husbands invited to the British garden party for the King and Queen without their wives are in something of a quandary . . . Their position, not being concealed from the embassy, is that their wives should go too . . . But the Britons seem firm.

Next time New York asks Congress for something, perhaps Grover Whalen had best be kept in the background. . . . When 100 Congressmen visited the World's Fair last week-end, Whalen failed to welcome them and spent that morning hobnobbing exclusively with Sir Ronald Lindsay and other foreign diplomats in shiny, incongruous silk hats.

The lawmakers were the guests of Whalen and Mayor LaGuardia at a luncheon, but neither of the hosts was much in evidence; they just put in a brief appearance.

RESEMBLANCES: At certain moments Francis Sayre, Assistant Secretary of State, looks like his father-in-law, Woodrow Wilson. . . . Pennsylvania's photogenic Congressman, Robert G. Allen, looks remarkably like the statue of his distant forebear, Ethan Allen, which stands in Statuary Hall. . .

Incidentally, the statue of the Revolutionary hero is one of the few that really looks heroic; some of the statues are unintentionally comical . . . Too small, pompous and almost caricatures.

"—a bet on Mars or the dove"

If I have seemed sanguine about the improbability of a big war in 1939, it is because I adopted a successful ruse to ascertain how Washington statesmen and other bigshots really felt, deep in their hearts, about the prospects of war.

When I asked them the simple question, their tradition of reticence was a stumbling block.

They hemmed, hawed and hedged; it was impossible to get anything like a "Yes" or "No" answer.

So I fell to asking them how they would bet if obliged to wager a large sum of money, say $100,000, on the likelihood of war this year. Of the first 30, including cabinet members and important diplomats, 29 said they would bet "No war in 1939" . . .

And the other one didn't say he'd bet there'd be a war . . .

Just a straw in the wind.

When I published recently a list of ten words being used by wags to embarrass Capital bigwigs about their spelling, I checked and double-checked the list first. . . . But through some sort of black magic three of the words—innuendo, vilify and plaguy—appeared incorrectly in some newspapers. In self-defense I reprint the list:

Inoculate, embarrass, harass, supersede, innuendo, rarefy, vilify, plaguy, desiccate, picnicking.

Better luck this time—I hope.

When a trainload of Senators and Representatives and their wives journeyed to the World's Fair recently, through some slip the train was composed entirely of day coaches—all except one Pullman car for bigshots and the wives of Senators. . . . This outraged the wives of the Representatives, and didn't hasten solution of the Railroad Problem, at all.

Incidentally, the word "Congressman" used to mean both Senators and Representatives. But now it has come to be used only for members of the House, and the word "Representative" is seldom used in the Capital . . . Many Americans think Senators' salaries are higher than Representatives, but their salary is the same—$10,000 a year. But a Senator gets it for six years at a time—and he has five clerks instead of two. That's why the House has just voted a third sec for each member.

Doctors Vote Opposition to Wagner Bill

Delegates Unanimous; Society Presents Own Plan for Sick Poor

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, May 17.—The House of Delegates of the American Medical Association today, without dissenting vote of its 174 members, opposed the Wagner bill now before the United States Senate.

In a resolution adopted without discussion from the floor, the delegates held the Wagner bill failed to make use of existing facilities for the sick poor and that it would impose Federal control of spending for the sick.

The resolution was couched to serve as a statement of principles to guide the thinking of doctors. The A. M. A. and the Federal authorities are in agreement on the basic principle, which is that tax moneys be used to help care for the indigent sick.

Official Summary

The official summary of today's resolution declared:

The bill does not recognize resolutions adopted by the House of Delegates of the A. M. A. in September, 1938.

The bill does not safeguard private practitioners.

It fails to provide for the use of the thousands of vacant beds now available in hundreds of hospitals.

Food, Housing Called For

It does not recognize the need for suitable food, sanitary housing and the improvement of other environmental conditions necessary to the continuous prevention of disease.

The bill insidiously promotes development of a complete system of tax-supported Governmental medical care.

It proposes complete medical service in addition to compensation for loss of wages during illness.

Program Put Forth

No method is provided for determining needs for preventive and other medical services.

The bill is inconsistent with the fundamental principles of medical care established by scientific medical experience.

The A. M. A. urges a mechanism for meeting needs for expansion of preventive medicine, extension of medical care for the indigent, with local determination of needs and local control of administration.

Catholic Peace Day to Be Held At Georgetown U.

With an outdoor rally and benediction before a temporary altar on Georgetown University campus tonight at 8:15 o'clock, Catholic youth of Washington will join the student body in a spectacular observance of the second annual National Catholic Peace Day.

The Very Rev. Arthur A. O'Leary, president and rector of the university, will be celebrant, assisted by the Rev. John E. Grattan, dean of the college, as deacon, and the Rev. Joseph Cohalan, as subdeacon. Cadets of the R. O. T. C. unit will attend.

Called by the Georgetown Student Council and Sodality, the rally will open with an invocation by the Very Rev. James P. Sweeney, vice provincial of the Maryland-New York Province of the Society of Jesus. Dexter L. Hanley will read the Easter peace message of Pope Pius XII, and Thomas J. Kill Capital Gains Tax to Spur Investment, Owen Young Urges

More U. S. Spending

If big business is in a large degree able to provide out of earnings its own capital outlays, SEC experts feel other means for using savings must be found. This means Government spending and getting equity money, which is obtained by selling stocks, to small and medium-sized concerns. The central theme of the present series of hearings, in fact, is expected to be the necessity for continuance of Government spending as a necessary outlet for savings.

Self-Sufficient Firms

Young and Stettinius agreed that their concerns were self-sufficient, and that there was little likelihood that either would enter the capital market for new money within any foreseeable period.

Young read a lengthy history of the General Electric Co. He then outlined his suggestions for diverting hoarded savings into productive enterprise.

He sought to drive home his belief, which Commissioner Jerome Frank of the SEC supported, that the foremost need now, as far as use of idle money is concerned, is to enable the great mass of small and middle-sized corporations to get equity capital. Loans will not do, he said, because they bear a specific rate of interest. What numerous struggling corporations need, Young said, is "adventure money," willing to take a chance through investment in stock.

Loans Peril Solvency

The SEC, it was learned, is considering plans whereby the Government may aid in diverting private money into this channel.

Young said that, as chairman of the board of the New York Federal Reserve Board, he found that numerous applications for long-term loans were corporations that did not need loans so much as equity capital Loans would tend to undermine their solvency, in case of a severe business slump, whereas equity capital would not.

Saying furnishers of equity capital naturally should have a share in management, Young warned against any plan to have the Government do it. Commissioner Leon Henderson of the SEC agreed.

Wants Discriminate Regulation

Young was cross-examined by Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming, on the points raised in his criticism of Administration policy. Questioned as to what "restraints" he thought should be repealed, he asked O'Mahoney if he really wanted him to answer. He did not want to appear critical, he said.

He made clear that he was not opposed to all Government regulation. He was insisting that it should be applied discriminatingly.

His criticism of the capital gains tax caused committee members to point out that it was in effect during the 1920's. It had no retarding effect in that decade, he declared, because "nothing had any effect." The trouble, he said, was a runaway credit condition.

Deterrent to Risk Money

Young was confident, however, that repeal of the capital gains tax would have a stimulating effect in the present situation.

He said the General Electric company could not have survived the panic of 1893 if this tax has been in effect then.

"The impact of the tax has become a serious deterrent to supplying adventure capital," he said.

"Speculation over the stock exchange," he continued, "is only a flea-bite in our national economy. Insofar as the capital gains tax is an instrument to reach the profits so made, it is a weapon which not only kills the mosquito of speculation but the goose that lays the golden egg for the development and expansion of industry."

Hardship on Small Firms

Universal application of the undistributed profits tax, he declared, "works great hardship on smaller concerns, which find it difficult to get capital, especially new enterprises in which investors are hesitant to embark their savings."

He was entirely sympathetic with the view that "retention of profits in the corporate treasury ought not to be permitted where it is merely a ruse to relieve large stockholders from personal taxes." He favored using the undistributed profits tax as a weapon in this case.

Young questioned the advisability of trying to bolster up, by Government aid, concerns which are not economically efficient.

He favored temporary deficit financing, but emphasized that it should be supplemented by "an affirmatively stimulating and helpful attitude toward the railroads, utilities and the construction industry."

Greed Leading U. S. to War, Chase Declares

Writer Would Let People Vote Whether to Fight 'To Give Stocks Ride'

Stuart Chase, economist and writer who favors the war referendum proposal, asserted yesterday that "contemptible" and selfish economic desires were "leading this Nation toward war."

He stated these "grave economic temptations" thus:

"Shall we kill a million boys to give stocks a ride in Wall Street, and a temporary boom to business?

"Shall we kill a million boys to give our excess savings an outlet in war investment, because we are too stupid to find adequate channels in peace investment?"

Testifying before a Senate Judiciary sub-committee which is considering a proposal that the people decide whether America goes into a foreign war, Chase added:

"These bloody and cowardly paths out of business depression are not good enough for me, gentlemen, not nearly good enough. I profoundly doubt if they are good enough for the majority of the citizens of America. I would like them to pass on the question."

Women Oppose It

The National League of Women Voters opposed war referendum legislation in a statement today submitted to the committee.

The statement, forwarded by Vice President Louis G. Baldwin, said that a national vote on whether the nation should go to war "offers no sure and certain safeguard against the involvement of this country in a foreign war."

The committee is holding hearings on the war referendum proposal submitted by Senator La Follette (Progressive), Wisconsin.

Meanwhile, in Boston, Henry I. Harriman, former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, called upon the United States to adopt a policy of "world co-operation," asserting that the time was past when "any one nation can live in isolation."

Declaring that "economic need dominates world politics," he advocated changes in the United States neutrality laws to permit sale of goods, including arms and munitions, "to any nation which can pay for them and carry them away in its own vessels," with the provision America may refuse to trade with a nation which "has broken a treaty with us or is obviously an aggressor."

Spain Seeks Cotton Through Export Bank

By International News Service.

Spain is seeking to purchase up to 200,000 bales of American cotton through the Export-Import Bank, official quarters disclosed yesterday.

The bank would share with banks or cotton factors in underwriting the risk of sales on long-term credits, according to present plans.

Officials represented the Department of Agriculture as objecting to the transaction, the State Department as favoring it.

Officials indicated any agreement on the sale will probably incorporate a stipulation against re-export of the cotton to Germany.

Navy to Co-operate With the Press

Seeking closer co-operation with the press, the Navy has named a public relations officer for every ship of the fleet and called on "all hands" to assist in news gathering.

Instructions sent out by Admiral C. C. Bloch, commander in chief of the fleet, direct that when "events of a possible newsworthy nature" occur at sea, they shall be immediately reported to higher authority. "Human interest" material, as well as rescues, crashes and more important events, shall be sent in, the order directs.

Florida Senate Votes Doubling of Pensions

Tallahassee, Fla., May 17 (AP).—The Florida Senate voted a doubled State appropriation for old-age pensions today after rejecting yesterday a proposed State Townsend plan for a $200 a month pension. The bill sets aside $7,200,000 for pensions.

On Capitol Hill

Ignoring an unusual plea from the floor by Speaker Bankhead, the House yesterday struck out of the rivers and harbors bill authorization for the Tombigbee waterway, running close to Bankhead's district in northwest Alabama.

BANKHEAD

The House reduced the $120,000,000 authorization bill by $36,000,000, shearing off not only Tombigbee but also the Umatilla Dam project on the Columbia River. However, both items may be restored to the measure before final passage today.

In one of his rare speeches from the floor, Speaker Bankhead told the House that he considered the Tombigbee waterway of importance to his district. Total cost would be $66,000,000, although authorization in the current bill was to have been for only $12,500,000.

Laughter rocked the House when Representative Rich, economy-minded Pennsylvania Republican, asked Bankhead to yield and the Speaker refused, observing with a smile, "No, I might not be able to say where we are going to get the money."

Although some members had expected to vote on final passage of the bill last night, Rayburn obtained adjournment until today.

The only promise the New Deal has not kept is the "impossible task" of balancing the budget, Senator Minton (Democrat), of Indiana, told the National Democratic Council yesterday at a luncheon in the Cosmos Club.

Only $9,000,000,000 of the national debt arises from the recovery and relief program, he asserted, and that sum is only three-quarters of what Congress spent in one year during the war.

President Roosevelt yesterday sent to the Senate the name of Leon Henderson for reappointment as a member of the Securities and Exchange Commission to serve a term expiring June 5, 1944.

The present term of Henderson, appointed to the SEC to succeed William O. Douglas when the latter was named to the Supreme Court, would have expired in June. Other Presidential nominations sent to the Senate included:

Alva M. Lumpkin, of South Carolina, to be United States District Judge for Eastern and Western District of South Carolina; Leslie A. Darr, of Tennessee, to be United States District judge for Middle and Eastern districts of Tennessee, and Robert A. Cooper, former Governor of South Carolina, for another term as Federal judge for Puerto Rico.

Senator Johnson (Republican), California, blocked action by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on a bill to authorize United States co-operation with 21 South American countries.

The Californian raised a question as to whether Bolivia intended to join the anti-comintern pact originated by Germany and Japan.

The committee will call George S. Messersmith, Assistant Secretary of State, to testify next week on what he knows about published reports, since denied, that Bolivia might become a signer of the pact.

White Paper On Palestine Stirs Protests

Washington Jewish Organizations, A. F. L. Chief Voice Objections

The British government's White Paper restricting Jewish immigration in Palestine yesterday brought protests from Jewish organizations here and from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Addressed to the British Ambassador, a statement presented at the embassy by a delegation of leading Jews declared "the plan would have the effect of closing the gates of the Jewish homeland to the refugees from lands of oppression." The delegation included Rabbi Isadore Breslau, president of the District Zionist Organization; Mrs. Raphael Turover, president of the Washington chapter of Hadassah; Morris Simon, chairman of the United Jewish Appeal; Zalmen Henkin, spokesman for the District Labor Zionist Organization; Edmund I. Kaufmann, Isidore Hershfield, president of the Seabroad Region Zionists, and the Rev. Louis J. Novick, representative of the Mizrachi Zionists.

The statement pointed out that successive British governments have accepted the meaning of the Balfour Declaration as an obligation to facilitate establishment of "a national home for the Jewish people." The new policy, it held, is a "repudiation of a sacred covenant."

Representatives of the Washington Zionist District, Hadassah, the Women's Zionist Organization of America, the Poale Zion, Labor Zionists, and Mizrah, the Orthodox Zionist organization, met and issued a call for special services at all synagogues Friday night and Saturday morning.

"The present action of the British government," read a statement issued by Rabbi Breslau, Mrs. Turover, Dr. Harry Spigel, the Rev. Mr. Novick and Morris Garfinkle in connection with the services, "comes in an attempt at appeasement of terrorist Arab action and at a time when thousands of Jewish refugees look to Palestine as a haven and their main hope in an effort to find refuge and homes. Jews of the world, relying upon international pledges to 52 countries . . . rebuilt Palestine and have colonized over 400,000 Jews there. Now, when this land is needed for Jewish refugees, the doors are being closed."

Green, for the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, appealed "to the government of Great Britain to keep its pledged word, to carry out its solemn promise to make Palestine a homeland for Jewish people . . . It is unthinkable and inconceivable that the British government would desert the cause of humanity at a period in the world's history when civilization is hanging in the balance."

Stephenson Made Executive Officer In Wage Division

The appointment of William A. F. Stephenson to the position of executive officer in the wage and hour division was announced yesterday by Administrator Elmer Andrews.

Stephenson, 34, was special assistant to Administrator Ickes in PWA.

As executive officer, he will deal chiefly in personnel matters. He also will have some concern with fiscal affairs. His duties will begin Monday.

A native of Chicago, Stephenson entered the Government service in the AAA in 1933. He is a graduate in public administration from the University of Chicago.

Johnson Praises Patriotism of Universities

Deploring "new un-American thoughts springing up in American seats of learning," J. Monroe Johnson, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, last night told 30 alumni of The Citadel, South Carolina Military College, that America's future depends on the "heritage" of patriotic universities.

Speaking at the Continental Hotel, Johnson, who was a colonel in the World War "Rainbow Division," declared no one, not willing to do any service, to give his life" for this country, can call himself a citizen.

Other speakers at the dinner included Burt W. Andrews, alumni club president; Col. R. H. McMaster; Commander T. E. Hipp, and Larkin H. Jennings, of the Department of Justice.

Admiral Hurt And Pedestrian Killed by Autos

Taylor, Retired Officer, May Have Fractured Skull; Others Injured

Rear Admiral Montgomery M. Taylor, 69, U. S. N., retired, sustained a possible fracture of the skull last night when he was struck while crossing Connecticut avenue near California street by a car operated by Mina G. Bowman, 39, of 3105 Northampton street northwest, police reported. He was taken to Emergency Hospital and after treatment was removed to the Naval Hospital.

James Hockaday, 12, colored, 1144 Sixteenth street northeast, was killed when he was hit by an automobile driven by David H. Rodford, 35, of Cheverly, Md., on Bladensburg road near M street northeast. He was the thirty-second traffic victim of the year.

Rodford was held on a technical charge for the coroner's inquest by Ninth Precinct police.

Nathan Plotnick, 58, 2931 Tilden street northwest, was in a serious condition in Emergency Hospital last night after his car overturned following a collision with a car at Ninth and I streets northwest. He suffered a possible broken back and a fractured skull.

Genevieve Little, 9, of 326 Channing street northeast, and Doris Jean Wagner, 9, of 14 Rhode Island avenue northwest, received first aid treatment at Sibley Hospital after they had been felled by a car while crossing Rhode Island avenue near North Capitol street.

Busch Denies Bolivia 'Totality' Is Like Others

La Paz, Bolivia, May 17 (AP).—President German Busch, who assumed a "totality of powers" April 24, announced a "planned economy" and denied his regime had "any similarity or contact with foriegn systems" in a radio address tonight.

Though he did not mention nazism or fascism by name, the Bolivian President declared his lack of sympathy with "foreign systems and doctrines which are strange to our national reality."

He proposed a simplified tax on mining, establishment of a "buffer" stock of tin, Bolivia's chief product; maintenance of the currency at its present rate of exchange, and introduction of a system of planned economy co-ordinating "production, circulation and consumption of wealth to lower the cost of living and raise living standards."

D. C. Carpenters' Strike Awaits Official's Arrival

A threatened walkout by 2,000 local carpenters is being held up pending the arrival today of William J. Kelly, of Indianapolis, official of the international union, it was announced yesterday. The Carpenters' District Council voted Monday to strike against the Master Builders Association unless paid $13 for a seven-hour day.

U. S. Corned Beef Next to Impossible To Purchase Here

President Roosevelt's espousal of Argentine corned beef led to a survey of the Washington canned meat market yesterday which disclosed that it is next to impossible to buy the domestic product.

The reason is simply this: The Argentines, Brazilians and Urugayans can sell their canned beef so much cheaper than United States dealers that the price asked for the American can is almost prohibitive by comparison.

Two large meat packers with braches here said they handle very little of the "home grown" brand because of its higher price. They were wary against talking too much or being quoted, however, because the corned beef issue precipitated by the President is rapidly becoming a hot potato.

You can buy a 12-ounce can of South American corned beef for 15 to 20 cents, depending upon the brand and the store. The domestic variety will cost about half again as much, if not more.

$750,000 Suit Beaten by Ickes

Justice Cox yesterday dismissed a $750,000 libel suit brought against Secretary Ickes by John D. Glass, a Tyler, Tex., lawyer who claimed Ickes used official publications to attack him.

Glass claimed that his professional standing was injured by an Interior press release.

Justice Cox sustained the position of Ickes' lawyers that the press release was a part of his official duties and he could not be sued personally. Appearing for Ickes were Nathan R. Margold, solicitor of the Interior Department, and two assistant solicitors, Frederick L. Kirgis and Harry M. Edelstein.

Dewey Given Tax Charges Against Bund

National Leader Kuhn Among Those Accused By Mayor LaGuardia

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 17.—In the first attack of its kind on the pro-Nazi German-American Bund here, Mayor LaGuardia tonight turned over to District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey a series of tax-dodging accusations against National Bund Leader Fritz Kuhn and others.

The mayor submitted "for such prosecutive action . . . as you may deem proper," the report of an inquiry made by William B. Herlands, the city commissioner of investigation. In it Kuhn, seven other individuals and four corporations were accused of having been involved in city sales and allied tax delinquencies.

Those mentioned in the report, which did not have the force of a formal criminal charge, were:

Kuhn, president of the Bund, the German-American Business League, Inc., the A. V. Publishing Corporation and the German-American Front, Inc.

The German-American Business League, Inc., as a corporation.

Max Rapp, treasurer of the German-American Business League.

The A. V. Publishing Corporation, publisher of the Bunds' organ Deutscher Weckruf und Beobachter.

Richard Mettin, treasurer of the A. V. Corporation.

James Wheeler-Hill, national secretary of the Bund and secretary of the A. V. Corporation.

Max Buchte, a tailor whose shop manufactures uniforms for Bundsmen.

Kienzler and Schimpf, Inc., makers of swastikas and other emblems sold to the Bund.

Karl Kienzler, president of that firm.

The Hackl Press, Inc., a printer for the Bund and its affiliates.

Herlands said Hackl was not a Bund member.

The report disclosed that two Bund officials had sailed for Germany since the start of Herland's investigation—Karl Nicolay, a Brooklyn unit leader, and Fritz Schwiering, business manager of the A. V. Corporation. Schwiering was said to have sailed despite the fact that the State Department had refused to issue a passport pending completion of the inquiry.

Committee Favors 365,000 More Under Social Security

Liberalizing the social security act to provide coverage for about 365,000 bank employes and maritime workers, the Ways and Means Committee yesterday applied finishing touches to amendments designed to hold down taxes while increasing benefits. A final vote will be taken on the measure later this week.

Savings to employers and workers estimated at $1,250,000,000 in the next three years from adjustments and avoidance of step-ups in payroll taxes, and about $1,200,000,000 in increased benefits to the aged, widows and orphans and dependent parents in the next five years, were claimed for the measure.

Voted unemployment insurance and old-age benefit coverage by the committee yesterday were some 200,000 employes in national banks. State bank members of the Federal Reserve System, and certain building and loan associations. Old-age benefits would be extended to between 150,000 and 165,000 maritime workers, now exempt.

Spending Means Inflation, Says G. O. P. in House

Continuation of New Deal spending and fiscal policies will produce currency inflation, House Republicans in a party conference warned yesterday.

Adopting a report prepared by a national debt policy committee headed by Representative Reed, of New York, the Republicans demanded the Roosevelt Administration launch a constructive program to produce "real national income," instead of using Federal spending on borrowed money.

Picketing Halts as Sea Bureau Tells of Fining Tanker Lines

As members of the C. I. O. National Maritime Union picketed the Commerce Building yesterday this fair lady took up a sign and joined the line. Members were protesting issuance of seaman's certificates. She refused to give her name

As more than 100 members of C. I. O.'s National Maritime Union picketed the Commerce building, Judge Allan D. Jones, acting director of the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation, yesterday told reporters that during the past two weeks more than $50,000 in penalties have been assessed against oil tanker companies "openly violating safety at sea laws."

The bureau will continue its drive against the violators, he declared, and will push a test case against a tanker's master "to determine whether those in charge consider they owe allegiance to the ships' owners, or are true to the seaman's oath each takes."

He said that in some instances tankers engaged in coastwise trade "without a single able-bodied seaman aboard" and that "there has been no abatement since we started our general checkup two weeks ago."

Union leaders have expressed the belief, he said, that tanker companies will pay the assessment set by law—$200 for each seaman hired without regard for regulations—and continue to recruit their crews among the inexperienced, in an effort to operate in spite of the N. M. U. strike.

He said the department had no objection to the N. M. U. picket lines, but that Commerce officials had assured N. M. U. leaders they were making every effort to see that the Copeland law, enacted after the Morro Castle disaster, was carried out strictly.

Stephen Harvey, union legislative agent, blamed "lax enforcement" by inspectors of the bureau for more than 600 instances of violations of the statutes regulations issuance of identification certificates to seamen which he said had been noted since the N. M. U. strike began.

Judge Jones declared that while unable to discontinue issuance of the certificates, the Bureau had put inspectors in port "working day and night" to see that all tankers carry their full quota of qualified workers. In case of violations found, he said, the $200 fine seemed to be "the best we can do."

The picket lines, made up of N. M. U. members from Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, and other cities, were dissolved soon after Harvey talked with Commerce Department officials.

told him that he and J. Edward Burroughs, jr., committee counsel, were in danger of being shot.

Bates explained the threat to "shoot him" occurred about ten days ago and he had not taken it seriously.

Dr. Howe, in explaining his plan for treating milk as a quasi-public utility, presented the draft of a bill to put it into effect.

Cites Distress of Farmers

Prefacing his plan with a resume of the distress of dairy farmers over the country due to what he termed the growing monopolistic practices, Dr. Howe said:

"Unless Congress takes a hand very shortly, the next generation is going to suffer from bad bones, rickets, bad teeth, and other disabilities due to the fact that the children don't get enough milk."

European countries have adopted the quasi-public utility control of milk with considerable success, he said. His plan is based upon a fair price to the farmer, as well as the consumer.

Intimating that the greatest profits in the milk industry are gobbled up by the distribution monopolies, Dr. Howe outlined a plan that would reduce the spread between the price farmers get for their milk and what the consumer pays to a fraction of what it is today.

Would Lower the Cost

He indicated that milk sold over the counter, either through chain grocery stores or in dairy distribution shops, would lower the consumer's price several cents by eliminating the costly delivery service. At the present time, he said, the dairy monopolies prevent stores from selling the milk under the delivery price.

Dr. Howe's bill calls for the establishment of a department of milk and dairy products, which would regulate the local dairy industry in much the same fashion that the Public Utilities Commission does the electric, telephone, and gas utilities.

Lee's admission of "bootlegging" came in connection with an attack on the 1921 District milk act, which he charged was written by health department officials and local producers to create a monopoly.

He said that, because of the conflicting provisions of the act and the health department's regulations, he now can sell ice cream mix but not ice cream to Washington restaurants or other wholesale buyers. Likewise, he said, he had been barred from selling cream, bought from an Indiana dairy, to a large Washington bakery. The same cream, however, he said, may be placed in pastries by a bakery outside the District and sold to Washington consumers.

200 Farmers to Confer

Distressed by falling prices on what they sell and rising prices on what they buy, 200 dairy farm leaders from the principal dairy States will assemble in Washington this morning to confer with Senators and Representatives from their States.

The conference was called by the National Co-operative Milk Producers Federation, whose 61 member organizaztions market the dairy products of 350,000 farmers in 41 States. The meetings in executive session will be at 1731 I street northwest.

He received a bronze medal for the best iris, named San Francisco.

Mrs. F. D. Burgess, 4011 Twenty-second street northeast, won the artistic arrangement classes, receiving a year's membership in the American Lris Society. There were 46 exhibitors, 46 classes and 300 stalks of iris in the show

Partiality to C. I. O. Charged to NLRB

An A. F. of L. leader charged yesterday that the National Labor Relations Board "had given the C. I. O. much better service," and had failed to remedy "evils" of administration.

Joseph A. Padway, federation counsel, made the complaints before the Senate labor sub-committee, as he continued his lengthy plea for amendments to the Wagner act.

Holding up a thick stack of letters, the gray-haired lawyer said, "These are complaints from all over the country about delays."

Padway urged an amendment to the labor act that would fix definite time limits for holding elections to determine collective bargaining agents for workers when rival unions were contesting.

He said the staff needed was "quite different from that required to carry out the normal administrative functions of the department."

President Concurs

In his letter of transmittal to Speaker Bankhead, the President concurred in these "comments and observations" by Smith.

Hopkins wrote Representative Lea (Democrat), of California, that an Undersecretary of Commerce was needed as the first step toward developing affirmative policies in aid of business.

"What we need in the department," he told Lea, "is more organization at the top that will utilize and apply for the benefit of industry the good work that is being done by the bureaus. The creation of the office of Undersecretary is only a part of my program in that respect, but it is an important part."

Meanwhile Chairman Doughton, of the House Ways and Means Committee, said Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau, who with Hopkins, has been a prime mover in the Administration's business improvement gestures, will be called before the House Ways and Means Committee for expression of his tax views.

Doughton said he favors opening House tax hearings before the House proceeds to consideration of his committee's social security act amendments. He indicated the tax question will be referred to a subcommittee headed by Representative Cooper (Democrat), of Tennessee.

Would Lift Bars

"If there are any tax deterrents to business that can be removed without loss of revenue," said Doughton, "I would like to remove them."

President Wants July Adjournment

By International News Service.

Democratic leaders yesterday disclosed President Roosevelt wants Congress to wind up its business and adjourn by not later than mid-July, even if it means scrapping neutrality legislation and other phases of the Administration's program.

Definite Administration plans were revealed also to block revision of the national labor relations act at this session despite a threatened Congressional investigation into the activities of the labor board. Strategy adopted by Administration leaders is to prolong hearings until late in the session to make action by both branches impossible before adjournment, party leaders disclosed.

Dinner Tonight Will Honor Mrs. Roosevelt

In Recognition for Youth Work; Dr. Rainey Also to Be Feted

For her constructive work toward solution of current youth problems, Mrs. Roosevelt will be honored at 7 o'clock tonight at a testimonial dinner in Pierce Hall, Fifteenth and Harvard streets northwest. Sharing honors with her will be Dr. Homer P. Rainey, director of the American Youth Commission and president-elect of Texas University, and Aubrey Williams, director of the N. Y. A.

With Charles W. Taussig, national advisory committee chairman of the N. Y. A. as toastmaster, more than 160 prominent Government leaders, educators, social workers and civic representatives are expected to attend the dinner.

Mrs. Roosevelt will be introduced by David H. Scull, chairman of the Washington Youth Council. Joseph Cadden, executive secretary of the American Youth Congress, will introduce Williams and Dr. Rainey will be introduced by William W. Hinckley, also of the American Youth Congress.

Following the dinner, guests will adjourn to the Pierce Hall auditorium for an open forum discussion on "Can Youth Chart Its Future?" The first act of "There's Always Juliet" will be presented by the Civic Theater.

Other members of the panel for the forum will be:

Dr. George F. Zook, president, American Council of Education; Dr. Floyd Reeves, chairman, President's advisory committee on education; Dr. Fred Buschmyer, pastor, Mount Pleasant Congregational Church; Father Dwyer, St. Anthony's High School; Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune, director, division of Negro affairs, N. Y. A.; Prof. Doxey Wilkerson, Howard University; Dr. Ben Cherrington, chief division of cultural relations, State Department; Miss Margaret Ostroy, secretary, local council of Congress; Miss Mary Jeanne McKay, president, National Student Federation of America, and William Dailey, chairman, Civil Libertie Commission, local council.

Teller Indicted On 12 Charges Of Embezzlement

Twelve embezzlement charges were presented by the District grand jury yesterday against George Phillips Pollock, 47, former savings teller at the National Savings & Trust Co. The thefts charged were from 20 accounts between April, 1938, and January, 1939, and totaled $1,019.

Pollock was released by Commissioner Turnage on $1,500 bond on his plea of not guilty.

Justice Proctor also received 27 other indictments. Those accused were:

Joy-riding—Edgar B. Jones, 19, colored; Lawrence D. Harris, 19, colored.

Housebreaking and larceny—William D. Hooper, 22, colored; Robert Penn, 25, colored; Ray Eli Pierce, 29; Robert Gordon, 38, colored; Alford C. Ford, 25, colored; William Gray, 22, colored.

Robbery—Ganell Kidd, 24, colored; Josephine Burns, 20, colored; Percy Mann, 18, colored; Ernest Bailey, 18, colored.

Larceny after trust—William N. Bell, 24.

Grand larceny—James A. Watson, 22, colored; Louis E. Brown, 19, colored; James R. Holt, 18, colored; Roy S. Wilkerson, 25.

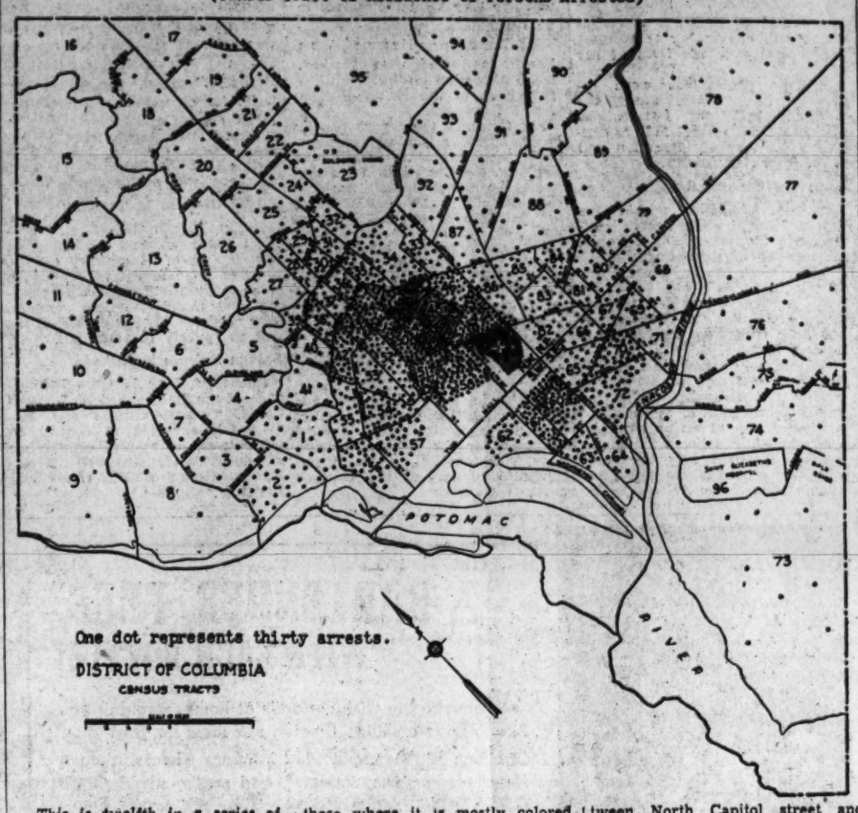
Blackmail—John Mitchell, 23; Bernhardt N. Wende, 49; James Lutz, 26; Edward J. Furey.

The grand jury ignored the following charges: assault with dangerous weapon, Henry Witcher, 51, and James Cannon Nixon; receiving stolen property, Russell E. Ester; assault with dangerous weapon, John C. Allen, colored.

Examination of Arrests Shows the Fallacy Of Trying to Explain Crime Along Racial Lines

TOTAL ARRESTS MADE BY METROPOLITAN POLICE DURING 1937
(Exclusive of Traffic Violations)
(Census Tract of Residence of Persons Arrested)



This is twelfth in a series of articles on social and health conditions in the Capital. The thirteenth will appear tomorrow.

By Eugene Pharo.

The tendency to simplify explanation of bad social conditions in Washington along race lines is opposed by an analysis of total arrests in the District in 1937. The analysis was made recently by the research department of the Washington Council of Social Agencies.

The accompanying map shows most arrests traceable to census tracts that have stood out because of inadequate housing, overcrowding, disease and death. But they include those in which the population is heavily white, as well as those where it is mostly colored. And the arrests are almost evenly divided.

The counsil's explanation is based on low, or inadequate, incomes. For such inadequacy is indicated in both white and colored tracts that have contributed most numerously to arrests.

Dot Means 30 Arrests.

Each dot on the map represents 30 arrests, for if one were included for each arrest some sections near the Capitol and running north from it would have been entirely black. Of the 45,386 arrests thus pictured for the District, 21,387 were of white persons, 23,972 were colored, and 27 were residents of other races.

Nearly a fourth of the total were residents of four census tracts between North Capitol street and Fifteenth street between the Mall and New York and Massachusetts avenues and north of these avenues to S street and Florida avenue, between Eleventh street and New Jersey avenue.

In this area, tract 48 has a population that, according to the 1930 census, is 88.8 per cent colored, and 49 has a colored population of 60.3 per cent. In these two tracts there were 5,396 arrests, of which 4,470 were of colored and 924 were of whites.

The other two tracts, south of these, are 58 and 59. The former has 96.7 per cent white population, and the second has 70.4 per cent white population, also according to the 1930 census. In this area there were 5,444 arrests in 1937, of which 4,433 were white.

U. S. Lags in Air, Lindbergh Says

Other developments were:

The Army announced that to speed up the air training program, 1,000 enlisted men will be sent to selected civilian schools for training as air mechanics. Seven civilian schools will be used during the next fiscal year, pending expansion of the Army's own air mechanic training centers at Chanute Field, Ill., and Denver.

Senator Bridges (Republican), of New Hampshire, in a minority report on the Lee bill to draft capital in time of war, sharply criticized the measure as "a breeder of economic chaos and confusion" which would "seriously impede and hamper" the prosecution of war.

The Army announced that intensive military training will be given to 293,996 Regulars and citizen soldiers this summer at 132 camps throughout the United States. A total of 18,128 Regular troops, National Guardsmen, Reserve officers, and members of the R. O. T. C. and C. M. T. C. will train at 13 Army posts in the Third Corps Area, embracing the District, Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania, it was said.

A report to the Senate Appropriations Committee revealed that construction of the aircraft carrier Wasp is more than 16 months behind schedule, though most of the other 74 warships building on May 1, were up to schedule.

Senator Bridges' denunciation of the Lee bill, which would force all persons with a net wealth of more than $1,000 to loan a percentage of their assets to the Government in time of war, was signed by Republican Senators Austin, of Vermont, and Gurney, of South Dakota. They called the bill "mischievous legislation," an "appeal to emotion and prejudice" and declared that no proper hearings were held on the measure.

The minority challenged an assertion of the majority that the voluntary system of financing the World War was on the verge of breaking down, quoting a statement made in 1931 by Eugene Meyer in support of their stand. They said that Meyer, former Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, "who as director of the war finance corporation from 1918 to 1922 had an opportunity to know the merits of our financing of the war" testified that the war loans were all oversubscribed, adding:

"I feel that the United States has nothing to be ashamed of and a great deal to be proud of in connection with the financing of the war. While there was some discussion at the time by economists and others about the interest rates being too low, it seemed to me then, and reviewing it since, I believe that the policy pursued of holding interest rates to a level, which we will all agree was artificial but which was patriotically met by the people of the country, was right and has been justified by time."

British Police Fire on Jews In Palestine

5,000 Rioters Storm District Offices, Set Fire to Desks

By the Associated Press.

Jerusalem, May 17.—British police fired into a crowd of Jewish youths demonstrating at Tel Aviv tonight against the newly announced British policy governing Palestine, and wounded several of them.

The crowd of more than 5,000 Jewish youths, after taking an oath to fight for Jewish independence, had marched to the British government district offices.

Raising a Zionist flag, they forced their way into the building, broke up the furniture and set fire to desks and tables, police said.

Shoot Into Crowds

Police fired first into the air, then as the disorders continued, shot into the crowds.

In Jerusalem several bombs damaged the government immigration department building, and two Jewish employes were injured.

Police patrolled the streets of Tel Aviv tonight.

The demonstrations by youths wh ohad taken an oath to fight for Jewish independence continued several hours after the clash.

Earlier, sabotage had delayed the British government's attempt to relay a summary of its White Paper, announcing the plan to create in Palestine an Arab-dominated state, over the radio.

Lines between the radio transmitting station at Ramallah and the Jerusalem studio were cut just as it began the broadcast.

In Jerusalem 300 youths marched through the streets to the Jewish Agency building, where cries were heard of "Down with Chamberlain, MacDonald and Halifax," "Long Live the Jewish State."

At Haifa a copy of the White Paper was burned in a symbolic demonstration. The participants dispersed quietly after they pledged to "fight to the last" against the new policy.

Nation-wide demonstrations were organized by the Jews for tomorrow with hundreds of thousands expected to participate.

Meanwhile, the Jewish population closed down all public activity, and by order of the chief rabbi prepared to observe tomorrow as day of fast and prayer.

Demonstrations Planned

Placards were posted in Jerusalem, Haifa and Tel Aviv announcing places for Jews to gather at 10 a. m. tomorrow for demonstrations including a 24-hour strike.

Jewish nationalist institutions opened offices throughout the country where Jews between the ages of 18 and 35 might register for service in the Jewish cause.

Householders, anticipating a long strike, depleted the stocks of grocery stores and markets.

Lee Introduces New Cotton Bill

Senator Lee (Democrat), Oklahoma, introduced a new cotton bill yesterday which he said would assure growers a fair income and pay its own way.

He presented the "domestic allotment income certificate cotton bill" sponsored by the National Farmers Union.

Processors of cotton, wheat or other farm commodities would be required to buy "income certificates"—similar to processing taxes—from the Secretary of Agriculture. These funds, Lee said, would be "passed on to farmers without disturbing the private marketing agencies or the price of the commodity on the market."

Britain to Hand Palestine Over to Arabs in 1944

"His Majesty's government are satisfied that when the immigration over the five years which is now contemplated has taken place they will not be justified in facilitating, nor will they be under any obligation to facilitate, the further development of the Jewish national home by immigration."

It was a bitter day for Jews, who have worked for years for a national home in Palestine and a place of refuge there for scores of thousands of their race forced from Germany and other central European states.

Jewish leaders announced they would refuse to co-operate in any way with the British program, foreshadowing critical days in the future of Palestine.

"The Jewish people regard this breach of faith as a surrender to Arab terrorism," said the Jewish agency's statement.

"It delivers Great Britain's friends into the hands of those who are fighting her. It must widen the breach between Jews and Arabs and undermine the hope of peace in Palestine. . . .

"It is the darkest hour of Jewish history that the British government propose to deprive Jews of their last hope and to close their road back to their homeland. . . .

Will Not Accept Dictate

"The Jews will never accept the closing against them of the gates of Palestine nor let their national home be converted into a ghetto.

"Jewish pioneers who in the past three generations have shown their strength in the upbuilding of a derelict country will from now on display the same strength in defending immigration, the Jewish home and Jewish freedom."

Jews considered the advisability of appealing to the Court of International Justice at the Hague if other efforts to defeat the plan fail.

The British White Paper announced the government's determination "to check illegal immigration" into Palestine and said additional preventive measures were being adopted.

Should Jewish immigrants succeed in entering the country, their number will be deducted from the yearly immigration quotas. Thousands of refugees from Europe have been turned back in recent months.

The League's Permanent Mandates Commission is expected to consider the scheme early in July, passing it on to the League Council. The House of Commons will be asked to approve the plan next Monday. Debate on the proposal was expected to cross party lines, as conflicting views are held in all parties.

The White Paper stated the purpose of the British government as "the establishment within ten years of an independent Palestine state in such treaty relations with the United Kingdom as will provide satisfactorily for the commercial and strategic requirements of both countries in the future."

The Jewish statement declared that "it seems only too probable that the Jews would fight rather than submit to Arab rule" and continued:

"Repressing a Jewish rebellion against British policy would be as unpleasant a task as the repression of the Arab rebellion has been. The government has disregarded this warning."

The White Paper said Jewish immigration into Palestine had raised the Jewish population to 450,000 and added:

"Although it is not difficult to contend that a large number of Jewish immigrants who have been admitted so far have been absorbed economically, the fear of the Arabs that this influx will continue indefinitely until the Jewish population is in a position to dominate them has produced consequences which are extremely grave for Jews and Arabs alike and for the peace and prosperity of Palestine.

"The lamentable disturbances of the past three years are only the latest and most sustained manifestation of this intense Arab apprehension.

"The methods employed by Arab terrorists against fellow Arabs must also receive unqualified condemnation."

Policy of 1922 Repeated

Much of the section explaining the British interpretation of a "national home" for Jews in Palestine was a repetition of a British statement of policy in 1922, the year in which the League of Nations council confirmed terms of the British mandate.

"When it is asked what is meant by the development of the Jewish national home in Palestine," the 1922 statement said, "it may be answered that it is not the imposition of a Jewish nationality upon the inhabitants of Palestine as a whole but the further development of the existing Jewish community . . . in order that it may become a center in which the Jewish people as a whole may take, on grounds of religion and race, an interest and pride."

Of the 1922 statement, the White Paper said:

"His Majesty's government adhere to this interpretation of the declaration of 1917 and regard it as an authoritative and comprehensive description of the character of the Jewish national home in Palestine."

In the section declaring the government's intentions as to the future of Palestine, the White Paper contained the following passages:

"The independent state should be one in which Arabs and Jews share in the government in such a way as to ensure that the essential interests of each community are safeguarded . . .

"Both sections of the population (in the transitional period preceding establishment of an independent state) will have an opportunity to participate in the machinery of the government and the process will be carried on whether or not they both avail themselves of it . . .

"H. M. government make no proposals at this stage regarding establishment of an elective legislature. Nevertheless they would regard this as an appropriate constitutional development . . ."

Zionists to Resist

New York, May 16 (AP).—Dr. Solomon Goldman, chairman of the National Emergency Committee for Palestine and president of the Zionist Organization of America, today denounced the White Paper on Palestine made public in London and called upon American Jews to take a Biblical oath to oppose the British policy.

The oath he proposed is embodied in the 137th Psalm, which says:

"If I forget thee, oh Jerusalem, let my right hand wither.

"If I do not remember thee, let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth; if I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy."

The emergency committee met immediately after publication of the White Paper and asked thousands of Jewish organizations and synagogues to administer the oath to members and worshipers.

French Airliner Off for New York

Horta, the Azores, May 17 (AP).—The 70-passenger French flying boat, Lieutenant de Vaisseau Paris, left for Bermuda tonight at 8:20 o'clock (3:20 p. m., E. S. T.), on an experimental flight to New York. The plane alighted here at 1:04 p. m. today from Lisbon.

British Report Concessions To Moscow

Note Said to Meet Russia's Demands For Reciprocity

By the Associated Press.

London, May 17.—The British cabinet was said by informed sources tonigh: to have approved a new note to Moscow offering important concessions to bring Soviet Russia into the French-British front.

Whether the note has been delivered yet was undisclosed, but Soviet Ambassador Ivan Maisky was said to have been told of the proposals, and one source said the British message would be transmitted to Moscow tonight.

[Prime Minister Chamberlain intimated that Britain is anxious to weld the Moslem world into a solid bloc giving the Anglo-French "peace front" the potential backing of 21 nations in either active or passive roles, the United Press said.

Ready to Co-operate

[Chamberlain told Commons the government is ready to co-operate not only with Turkey but with other near Eastern powers to keep peace in the eastern Mediterranean.

[The statement was given pointed significance by reports in French diplomatic circles that Britain was contemplating an effort to line up Egypt, Iran (Persia), Iraq, Arabia and Afghanistan. Some French sources understood that the British government already had put out "feelers."

[It appeared that the British government's announcement tonight of its "final plan" for palestine might be designed to placate the Arabs and secure their support.—Editor's note.]

Consultations In Progress

The foreign office spokesman said "active consultations are in progress" both in London and Moscow, but failed to mention the nature of Britain's new proposals.

The amended suggestions, however, were reported to be an advance toward the Soviet plan for a full military alliance among Britain, France and Russia, and to be designed to meet Moscow's desire for reciprocal commitments.

The new proposal envisages a Russian promise to fight for Poland, Rumania, Estonia, Latvia and Finland. In return, Britain and France would promise to go to Russia's aid if Russia went to war to fulfill these pledges.

Britain's quick action on a reply was believed to prepare the way for discussions to take place at Geneva Monday while Maisky, Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax, and French Foreign Minister Bonnet are there for a League of Nations council meeting.

Compromise Proposal Offered

Paris, May 17 (AP).—The French government, pressing for conclusion of a triple entente with Britain and Soviet Russia, dispatched to London tonight a compromise proposal.

It was understood the French plan provided a tri-power mutual assistance pact without a guarantee of assistance to the small Baltic states.

Proposals Rouse Interest

Moscow, May 17 (AP).—Reports new British-French front proposals would offer aid to Soviet Russia aganist attacks aroused interest here today, but it was not disclosed whether they would result in real advance toward an agreement.

Some foreign observers expected little progress unless Foreign Secretary Halifax or Prime Minister Chamberlain come to Moscow.

Reich Minorities Alarmed as Nazi Germany Orders Census to Establish Allegiance

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, May 17.—Nazi Germany today frightened her military defenses and carried out a census which will enable her to increase her control over the lives of her people.

Military precautions were especially in evidence along the "Western wall" of fortifications where Reichsfuehrer Hitler continued his tour of inspection and at the Port of Hamburg.

Minorities Concerned

Various minorities within the Greater Reich were deeply concerned in the outcome of the great enumeration of population.

These were the day's principal developments:

Hitler examined water traps for tanks, and other fortifications in the Saar region on the German-French frontier.

Orders were issued for a blackout in the harbor of Hamburg Friday and Saturday nights to test defense against air attack, a highly unusual action since it will affect international shipping.

Seven hundred fifty thousand volunteer census takers began an enumeration of the Reich's population in which foreign nationality groups were being asked whether they "feel themselves to be German."

Ex-Chancellor Franz Von Papen, ambassador to Turkey, made his report on that country's adherence to the British-French front.

For Germans the census starting today meant a routine questionnaire the answers to which may, however, determine the work they should be doing to serve the state most efficiently. Officials said census data would be used to show which callings or branches of labor were overcrowded and which needed more workers.

Must Name 'Folkdom'

For minority nationalities, however, there was one difficult question to be answered:

"Of what 'folkdom' (nationality group) do you feel yourself a part?"

Czechs in the Sudetenland and Poles along the eastern frontier were in many instances debating whether, for the sake of expediency, they should declare themselves to be part of the German national group.

Although the government declared that no pressure was being brought to bear to answer this question one way or another, it was believed many in the minorities will acknowledge German "folkdom," giving Germany material for control of many persons racially non-German.

(Polish newspapers charged the census was to obtain material for claims that the Polish minority in Germany was negligible.)

230,000 Ordered in Training

Berlin, May 17 (U.P.).—The government today ordered an estimated 230,000 men of 11 military classes, most of them untrained conscripts, to be ready for three months' training and maneuvers this summer. War ministry officials described the call as "purely routine."

Balkan Entente in Balance

Europe Fears New Menace In Axis Pact

Terms Go Further Than Was Announced, Italians Admit

By the United Press.

Rome, May 17.—Premier Mussolini consented to an "automatic offensive and defensive" military alliance with Germany only after Reichsfuehrer Hitler promised to make every effort to obtain a peaceful settlement of his dispute with Poland, it was reported reliably tonight.

Disclosure that the alliance, which will be signed formally in Berlin next Monday, will bring the Italian and German armed forces together "automatically" in an offensive as well as a defensive war came as a sharp surprise to foreign diplomats, particularly the British.

Treaty Unlimited

[Simultaneously, high Nazi quarters in Berlin said the treaty had no limitations as far as mutual aid was concerned, International News Service reported.

[Persons in a position to know said the new pact called for full, unreserved and immediate unity of defensive or offensive action by both partners.—Editor's note.]

Even after announcement ten days ago at Milan that the two totalitarian powers had agreed to convert the Rome-Berlin axis into an outright military alliance, many British observers hoped an opportunity still might be found to wean Italy away from Germany.

"Final and Rigid"

The revelation that Italy and Germany will fight together if either country becomes involved in war, either by its own initiative or in defense, gave an entirely new menace to the pact, however.

Persons close to Italian Foreign Minister Ciano described the pact as "final and rigid." It goes considerably further than originally announced, they admitted.

Il Duce was understood to have stressed that it would be difficult for him to whip up the Italian people to any enthusiasm for a war in which Italy would have no direct interest and against a country with whom Italian relations have been on a friendly basis.

Chamberlain Loses Commons Backer

London, May 17 (U.P.) — Prime Minister Chamberlain's government today suffered the loss of one supporter in the House of Commons in three by-elections held on the issue of the government's new peace policy and military commitments on the continent.

Conservative candidates won in two of the elections, but in the third the Laborite candidate defeated the National-Liberal contender. The government showed a loss in strength in all three electionstions.

Schuschnigg Reported Moved by Nazis

Vienna, May 17 (AP).—Informed persons expressed belief tonight Kurt Schuschnigg, last chancellor of independent Austria, had been removed from the Vienna headquarters of the Gestapo (secret police) to some other place in the German Reich.

Schuschnigg has been a prisoner since Germany's absorption of Austria March 13, 1938, held by the Gestapo "for his own safety."

Only Danes Accept Nazi Bid to Confer

Berlin, May 17 (AP).—Denmark today cautiously accepted Germany's offer of negotiations for a nonaggression pact while Sweden, Norway and Finland politely declined Reichsfuehrer Hitler's proposal of parallel accords.

Danish sources said, however, that their country did not pledge herself to accept such a pact under any and all circumstances. It still has to be negotiated. Denmark is the only one of the four states having a common frontier with Germany.

Japanese Leave Amoy Settlement

Friday, which was carried out with the explanation that the life of the Japanese naval commander had been endangered by an incident in which a Chinese was killed.

There are seven Americans living in the settlement.

The Marblehead's report to Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commander in chief of the U. S. Asiatic fleet, lacked details, but it was presumed here the patrol party would remain ashore until the crisis is liquidated.

The Japanese Navy had reported yesterday that a portion of their landing party had been withdrawn, but that the part remaining was believed to equal the Occidental parties.

Japanese press dispatches from Amoy quoted Japanese naval authorities as saying their attitude toward the Kulangsu situation was "hardening."

expressing determination to win control of the settlement following the council's rejection of their demands

The Japanese naval authorities at Kulangsu were reported to have described the council's attitude as "highly unsatisfactory," indicating fresh Japanese demands might be coming up.

The Kulangsu crisis hinges on the conflicting attitudes of the Japanese and other foreign powers regarding the inviolability of the foreign-controlled settlements of China. Kulangsu, the smallest of these, is established as an international territory by treaty between China and other powers, principally the United States and Britain. One American is on the governing municipal council.

Demands Rejected

By the Associated Press

The United States refused yesterday to grant, for the time being, Japan's demand for increased Japanese representation in the International Settlement at Shanghai.

On Instructions from the State Department, the American Ambassador at Tokyo, Joseph C. Grew, delivered a memorandum to this effect.

The communication, answering a Japanese memo of May 3, declared:

"The Government of the United States would be ready, as it has been in the past, to become a party to friendly and orderly negotiations properly instituted and conducted regarding any needed revision in the land regulations of the International Settlement at Shanghai.

"The Government of the United States is constrained to point out, however, that conditions in the Shanghai area are, from its viewpoint, so far from normal at the present time that there is totally lacking a basis for a discussion looking toward an orderly settlement of the complicated problems involved which would be reasonably fair to all concerned."

The memorandum on Shanghai and the landing of troops at Kulangsu were not connected, officials said. Unofficially, however, the strong positions taken by the government in both centers were linked closely together.

The State Department said the American naval forces had been landed "for the purpose of protecting American citizens . . ."

Actually, it was reliably learned here, the landing was effected to prevent Japan from acquiring sole control of the Kulangsu international Settlement.

'Man of Conquest' Is Equal to Its 'Ballyhoo'

New Dix Vehicle Proves an Inspiring Film; Dozen Dancers Wanted by Loew's Capitol; News Notes and Gossip of the Theater

IT IS A STURDY historical melodrama that Republic Pictures has turned out in "Man of Conquest." It pursues a course of cumulative interest and excitement and has been executed on as grandiose a scale as any "super-specials" that have come along during a season that has abounded in "de luxes."

On the say-so of Jimmie Grainger, president of Republic, Sam and Jake Flax, Washington representatives of the company, and others, this column has spouted a good many words of late concerning the probable superiority of this subject. All of them were vindicated by yesterday afternoon's preview screening in the Warner Brothers private projection room. "Man of Conquest" is a superior picture.

BELL

Perhaps it falls most nearly into the groove with "The Buccaneer," since it deals with the conquest of the Southwest, following the British ravage of the National Capital in 1812. The picture spans the years from about that date to something like 1845, if I had my glasses on straight.

But aside from its historical importance and its ringing rally-call to democracy, "Man of Conquest" is notable for its comparatively accurate re-creation of the life of Sam Houston, member of Congress, twice Governor of Tennessee and later the hero of the acquisition of Texas from Mexico and its establishment as a sovereign State in the Union. This is the role that is played by Richard Dix. Dix in this subject should restore himself to the prestige he enjoyed after his fine performance of the role of Yancy Cravatt in "Cimarron." He does an uncommonly fine job, even down to his impersonation of a young Cherokee chieftain, when he joins the Indians after his fight for freedom among the members of his own race seems to have been futile—a source of mental anguish aggravated by a heart-breaking disappointment in love. Dix again proves himself a pretty competent actor. He plays without offensive mannerism, with fine intelligence and reads his lines in that voice of his that always carries more than a modicum of conviction.

Mr. Dix, however, is not the only one in the cast who lends this film distinction. There is a character actor whom you have seen many times before, but probably would not identify by the name of George Hayes, who turns in a characterization of the old backwoodsman, Lannie Upchurch, that is comparable to the one Walter Brennan portrayed in "The Buccaneer." Lannie also was a friend of "Andy" Jackson. Then there is that fine delineator of character roles, Edward Ellis, in the role of Andrew Jackson.

A Splendid "Andy" Jackson

You may remember Mr. Ellis in the title role of that modest, but exceedingly excellent "B" release, "A Man to Remember." He was the salvation of that picture. With the surrounding cast of players with whom he now is associated, Mr. Ellis may not be said to be the salvation of "Man of Conquest"—it needs no salvation, as a matter of fact—but his impersonation of Jackson, nevertheless, is one of the finest things in the film.

"Man of Conquest," of course, has its locale, for the most part, in the West. It should not on that account be set down among the current crop of "Westerns." It goes deeper and fulfills a more profound purpose than that. Its settings should not be allowed to obscure the more important point that here is a vigorous and vital item on the side of American patriotism, freedom, democracy and all of the fundamental principles for which this country always has stood. It is a thrilling and inspiring picture.

We reiterate that it never is the intention of this department to accord a film play a formal review in advance of its public opening, but in this instance mention of some of the other members of the cast of "Man of Conquest" would seem not amiss, as the man said, as indicative of the probable corroboration of our preceding enthusiasms when you see it yourself—as you certainly will want to. In addition to those named, then, you will see Gail Patrick, Joan Fontaine, Victor Jory, Robert Barrat, Ralph Morgan, Robert Armstrong, C. Henry Gordon, Janet Beecher, Pedro de Cordoba, Kathleen Lockhart, Ferris Taylor and Leon Ames, all in congenial assignments. That, I submit, is a list of principals to conjure with—if you go in for conjuring.

Something is brewing up—or down—around Loew's Capitol Theater. Announcement was made yesterday by Gene Ford, production manager, that 12 extra dancers will be needed for the "Royal Welcome" stage revue, to be staged the week of June 9. This means that a dozen Washington girls will be given an opportunity to show what they can do behind the footlights.

There are, needless to say, a few rigid requirements. For example, every applicant must be over 18 years of age; each must be possessed of good looks; training in the dance also will be an essential. Apart from that, there isn't much to it. All that needs to be done is make application to the Capitol Theater, stating name, age, address, telephone number, height and weight. It all could be done on a postcard.

Somewhere in town are 12 girls who will be lucky, if stage aspirations are what they have been worrying about.

Our old friend Don Zelaya is back in town. The mastodonic Don—if I am not invading Mary Harris' territory too deeply—will be a "guest star" in the Blue Room of the Shoreham for the next week. I believe he opened there last night. Zelaya is known to Washington theatergoers as a concert pianist and vaudeville headliner, who has played the Earle and Capitol Theaters many times, always with notable success. To me, he is known as a lad, who, some 25 or 30 years ago, was playing the piano in establishments of a little less renown. Don hasn't played the Capital in quite a spell now and the reason comes to me more or less confidentially. He has been flirting around with the World's Fair and Olsen and Johnson, in New York. It was not so long ago that the rotund and amiable Zelaya was also a "guest star" in "Hellzapoppin," at the Winter Garden, on Broadway. Don and Ole Olsen are pals of long standing. So Manhattan's prize zanies put Don in their show for a performance or two, just as an added fillip. If there is anything Zelaya can do, it is fillip. He will prove that at the Shoreham. And more power to him.

The Virginia straw hat season will be opened June 5, by the Cross Roads Theater with "Abie's Irish Rose." The Ann Nichols comedy will be enacted, or so I am told, by one of the best casts the Cross Roads ever has assembled, led by Paggy Johnston and Don Sisler. Howard Wentworth, who has achieved a bit of a name for himself locally as director of the Pierce Hall Players, will have the production in charge.

Seats will be reserved at the Cross Roads this summer, as has been said here before, and are available at the downtown ticket office of the group, located in the Earle Florist Shop, 1221 E street.

Speaking of "barn theaters," as we were by implication, the Roadside Theater, which will not get under way until June 12, is advocating the purchase of subscription tickets to its list of six plays, each to run two weeks. The Roadside will present seven plays during the summer, but "The Drunkard," a revival, is not included in the subscription arrangements. But to get back to the point. Subscription to all six plays may be purchased for $4.40. For any four of the six, the price is $3. These prices—and I haven't any pencil and pad handy—are said to result in a saving of 12 cents a ticket. If that interests you, there it is.

The first act of "There's Always Juliet" will be presented by the Washington Civic Theater tonight at Pierce Hall on the program of the opening meeting sponsored by the Washington Youth Council. This segment of John van Druten's play will be acted by Virginia Rand, Marvin Beers and Betty Leaf. The performance will be at 8 p. m.

By Leonard Lyons

New York, May 17.

CRIME: Albert Chaperau, whose sentence for smuggling was reduced recently, now is confessing to United States Attorney Cahill and the G-Men just how he secured the passport which designated him an attache of the Nicaraguan Consul . . . Chaperau's case will be linked to the prosecution of Federal Judge Manton . . . He's involved one of the men indicted as a fixer in the Manton case.

WISH: Gen. Vladimir Kokkinaki, who piloted the Russian transatlantic plane, sailed for home. On the eve of his departure, I asked him: "Since this is your last night in America, what's the one thing you want to see?" . . . Gen. Kokkinaki speaks but a few words of English, and so he resorted to pantomime. He hesitated, then placed the palms of his hands against his face, and moved them up and down . . . "Bathing?" I asked. "You mean Coney Island? Jones Beach? Aquacade?" . . . He shook his head and tried again . . . He turned to a colleague, asked some questions in Russian, and then beamed . . . "I—I want to see—how you say?—oh, yes—Cotton Club!"

SUCCESS: Exactly 20 years ago, the Yale Dramat presented three one-act plays written by three students at the University . . . The undergraduates were Stephen Vincent Benet, Phil Barry and John Farrar . . . This week Benet's American opera, "The Devil and Daniel Webster," will be produced—and also will be published in book form . . . The book is dedicated to Phil and Ellin Barry. And it is being published by John Farrar and Stanley Rinehart.

DEFEAT: Paul Robeson left London hurriedly to rush back to America, after a two-year absence. He arrived on the Normandie, but didn't reveal this to the reporters: In London, Robeson had sponsored the paintings of Cristobal Ruiz. Ruiz's paintings will be exhibited here for the benefit of the Spanish refugees . . . Robeson had booked passage on the Normandie, because he thought the exhibit would be held Tuesday. The exhibit, however, is being held next Tuesday—one week later.

CHATTER: When the news of Oumansky's appointment as Russian Ambassador reached Washington, a State Department official copied all the passages concerning Oumansky in Eugene Lyons' "Assignment in Utopia," and this memo was passed through the department as a confidential memorandum . . . Before the Preakness, Johnstown was the only horse which didn't make the traditional walk around the paddock. He remained in his stall, guarded by a Maryland cop . . . Ira Gershwin, who will write the lyrics for the new Spewack musical, is trying to get Maurice Chevalier to appear in it . . . The Gershwin family arranged for a mausoleum to be erected for George Gershwin at Mount Hope Cemetery.

ENTERPRISE: A Hollywood producer was discussing the recent cycle of doctor films . . . "You can buy the re-make rights on 'Arrowsmith,'" he was advised. "The public would go for it again. Why don't you revive 'Arrowsmith?'" . . . "But it's just been done," the producer replied . . . "When?" he was asked . . . "A short time ago," informed the producer, "only they called it 'The Citadel.'"

WELCOME: When Vera Zorina went to Washington recently for the road tour of "I Married an Angel," she registered at the Willard Hotel, and the next morning raised the window shades of her third-floor room . . . Beneath her she saw rows and rows of soldiers, who immediately turned to stare at the nightgown-clad lady . . . "Such a nice welcome," said Zorina. "All for me?" . . . "All for you and some other guy," the soldiers shouted back . . . "Guy?" asked the star. "What guy?" . . . "Oh, shrugged the commanding officer, "some guy—who's the President of Nicaragua."

AMBITION: Sinclair Lewis will return to the stage on August 7 at Algonquit, Me. He will portray the role originated by Frank Craven in Thornton Wilder's play, "Our Town" . . . Last night Lewis met Stella Adler and Harold Clurman of the Group Theater . . . "If you ever decide to return to play-writing," Lewis was told, "the Group will get you good actors and good direction" . . . "If I ever return to playwriting," Lewis replied, "the first thing I'll get me is a good playwright."

Herbert, Pitts Learn Hand-Shadow Gags

ZaSu Pitts and Hugh Herbert, both noted for their "jitterbug hands," have learned some new tricks with them in Paramount's "The Lady's From Kentucky," starring George Raft.

For a running gag, they have to train their expressive paws to make shadow pictures on the wall, and the studio has employed Alex Powell, an old vaudeville trouper, to teach them.

Both can already do rabbits (eating and still-life), horses, giraffes, kangaroos, dogs and cats. Herbert is now working on a "self portrait."

Protest Photo of Aunt in Slacks

Sara Haden wears slacks when she works in her garden, but doesn't dare pose in a photograph wearing them. When such a picture did happen to get out, she received wholesale protests from Canada against the prim Aunt Milly of the Hardy family pictures wearing them.

Five New Films Dominate New Theater Week

Notable Releases Are Booked for Showing; Open-Air Amusements

"MAN OF CONQUEST." Sam Houston comes to the screen in the person of Richard Dix, who, after his "Cimarron," is an expert at such a characterization. His meeting with Andrew Jackson in the War of 1812, his campaign for the governorship of Tennessee, his fight to free Texas from Mexico and his romances made the life of the great Texan a vital influence in early American history. Gail Patrick, Joan Fontaine, Edward Ellis, C. Henry Gordon, Robert Armstrong, Victor Jory and Ralph Morgan have leading roles in the large cast. Wayne King and his orchestra, with the personalities familiar to the King broadcasts, will be on the Earle stage, which also presents Peppino and Camille, dancers, and Lynn, Roy and Van, funsters, in addition to the popular radio rhythms. Opens tomorrow.

Palace

"THE HARDYS RIDE HIGH." What happens when $2,000,000 come to Andy Hardy's father forms the plot of the newest in this popular series. Judge Hardy acquires a high silk hat; Andy, a dress suit; Marion and Aunt Milly, new clothes, and Mother, a new frying pan. Lewis Stone, Mickey Rooney, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden and Sara Haden continue as the members of the Hardy family, and Virginia Grey, Ann Rutherford, William Orr, Don Castle, Ann Morriss and Halliwell Hobbes are others in the cast. Opens this week at the Palace Theater.

RKO-Keith's

"EAST SIDE OF HEAVEN." Bing Crosby and Joan Blondell join forces with one "Sandy," a 10-month-old baby in a comedy romance with music. Bing sings four numbers, Joan is his anxious-to-be-married girl friend and Sandy is the baby Bing harbors for a young couple, whose happiness is threatened by a dictatorial farther. Mischa Auer, Irene Mervey, C. Aubrey Smith, Jerome Cowan, J. Farell McDonald, Mary Carr, Robert Kent, Douglas Wood, Arthur Hoyt, Jack Powell, Russell Hicks and Edward Earle are in the cast. Opens this morning.

Capitol

"BROADWAY SERENADE." Jeanette MacDonald is the star of this story of New York theatrical life, in which she and Lew Ayres are a struggling song and dance team. Miss MacDonald makes good, but Ayres doesn't, a failure made more unbearable to him by a reported romance between Jeanette and her Broadway angel, Ian Hunter. The music ranges from opera to swing and the cast also includes Frank Morgan, Rita Johnson, Virginia Grey, William Gargan and Al Shean. Charlie Barnet and his orchestra will be the stage attraction, bringing melodies from New York's swing alley. Judy Ellington, the Robbins Brothers and Margie, Nora Williams and Don Rice also will be on the stage. Open tomorrow.

Metropolitan

"YOU CAN'T GET AWAY WITH MURDER." Humphrey Bogart is the star of this screen play by Lewis E. Lawes, based on the actual material gathered by Sing Sing's famous warden. Bogart plays a racketeer who involves former "Dead End" kid, Billy Halop, in a murder. Harvey Stevens, Gale Page, Henry Travers, John Litel and Joe Sawyer are in the cast, which Lewis Seiler directed for Warner Brothers. Open tomorrow.

Columbia

"STAGECOACH." Returning to F street after its run at the Palace, John Ford's production of a stagecoach journey through Arizona and New Mexico relates the adventures of the nine passengers on the stage. Claire Trevor, John Wayne, Andy Devine, John Carradine, Thomas Mitchell, Louise Platt, George Bancroft, Donald Meek, Berton Churchill and Tim Holt are in the cast and the Monument Valley setting gives the film fine pictorial sweep. Opens tomorrow.

Trans-Lux

PERU is the subject of the newsreel theater's leading travelogue for the new week, "The Land of the Inca Memories." Other subjects, in addition to a half hour of news coverage, concern the U. S. Coast Guard, "Wild Ducks," a Disney cartoon, "The Boat Builders," and "Screen Snapshots." Opens tomorrow.

Glen Echo

THE COASTER DIPS are one of the biggest attractions at the Amusement Park and the World Cruise, Waterway Canal, Airplane Swings, Pretzel, Carousel, Shooting Galleries and the Midway House of Fun are other leading recreation centers. Cecil Golly and his collegiate musicians tantalize dancers and jitterbugs with their melodies, and Nancy Gay and Gene Eyman join the orchestra, the Three Gees and Ray Carroll in the Spanish Ballroom.

Mount Vernon

OPEN-AIR AUTO-THEATER. A compilation of recetn issues of "The March of Time," titled "Europe, May, 1939," opens this evening to run through Saturday with Jack Oakie and Lucille Ball in "Annabel Takes a Tour" as the accompanying feature. "The March of Time" releases are shown at 7:45 and 10:35 and the comedy about the film press agent is shown only once, at 9:25. Next Sunday through the following Wednesday, "Grand Illusion."

Player's Club

"THE SATURDAY EVENING GHOST" will be presented, tonight only, at the Roosevelt High School auditorium by the Players Club of the Central Community Center as its last production of the season. May Pollock heads the cast and Eileen Fowler is directing.

S. S. Potomac

MOONLIGHT SAILING on the Potomac River is the seasonable attraction of the Potomac Line steamer, S. S. Potomac, which leaves its berth at Seventh and Water streets at 8:45 each evening. There is an orchestra on board for dancing and refreshments are available. On Sundays the steamer makes daylight trips down the river to Quantico and Colonial Beach.

French Film Wins Acclaim At the Little

"Courier of Lyons" Is Impressive Picture; Disney Parades Hits

With the passion for unvarnished truth that is so inherent in the nationality, the French have recreated one of the most infamous miscarriages of justice of their history in "The Courier of Lyons." In combination with a titivating collection of five Walt Disney color cartoons, prize winners all, this thoughtfully constructed film yesterday opened what should be a highly successful run at the Little Theater.

The story concerns the execution of an innocent man. Carefully, at first even slowly, the story reveals the true facts of the crime. A band of highway robbers have a shrewd plot to steal bank notes known to be on a stage between Paris and Lyons. Napoleon is warring with Italy and the notes are all marked for Italy. They murder the driver, capture the stage, split the gains and flee. But the money has been marked and is easily identified and four of the five men are apprehended.

But the fifth, and ring-leader, has not been caught, by the coincidence which makes fact so much stranger than fiction, he has been careful that he capitalize upon the similarity of his looks with those of an innocent and well-to-do gentleman, Lesurques. With the hysteria of excited people and the anxiety of the authorities to convict someone, a substantial case is argued against the innocent man. To prove his innocence is difficult, for the criminals, seek to shield their leader. The prisoner's wife undergoes bitter embarrassment to prove her husband's innocence, but despite the uncertainty of one of the judges, the law must have its head.

Parallels American Case

Strangely paralleling the Sacco-Vanzetti case, which Maxwell Anderson used to such fine advantage in "Winterset," this judge is revealed by Director Maurice Lehmann to have a tortured conscience and after the truth of the story has been sifted, years later, the cries of Lesurques still ring in his ears.

The suspense with which the conclusion is reached is expertly handled. By making clear both what happened and what the prosecution so fatefully decided had happened, the issue becomes all the more stirring, for instead of tracking down a murderer, the search is for justice.

Pierre Blanchar, whom we remember from Charles Boyer's "Orage" and as the depraved physician in "Un Carnet de Bal" ("Life Dances On") has the dual role of the innocent and guilty look-alikes and plays with that spirit and finesse which has made him one of this country's favorite French actors. Dita Parlo, the unforgettable woman of "Grand Illusion," is the beautiful wife, a part which she plays with moving simplicity. Like the dialogue, the other players are also French. The subtitles are succinct and more than enough to convey the stirring tempo of the film.

The Disney collection of special Academy Award winners of five years includes "The Three Little Pigs," "Flowers and Trees," "The Tortois and The Hare," "Three Orphan Kittens" and "The Country Cousin." Revealing their creator's sincere wit, the cartoons also remind us of the steady improvement in color these cartoons have achieved through the years. They are a delightful portion of a superlative bill.

Brien McMahon To Resign May 20

President Roosevelt has accepted, effective May 20, the resignation of Brien McMahon, Assistant Attorney General in charge of criminal prosecution.

Attorney General Murphy announced, however, that McMahon would continue serving the Justice Department as a special assistant to the Attorney General for the trial of the Societe Suisse case, arising out of war claims, and the Harlan County (Ky.) civil liberties cases.

McMahon, whose home is at South Norwalk, Conn., has been active in recent months in the McKesson and Robbins case. He said he wanted to resume private law practice.

Wilson Line

THE WILSON LINE steamer, City of Washington, is making moonlight cruises down the Potomac each evening, sailing at 8:30 from Seventh and N streets southwest, with entertainment and deck attractions. McWilliams Orchestra is on board. Trips are also made to Mount Vernon at 10 in the morning and at 2 in the afternoon. Marshall Hall Park is to open on Saturday, May 27.

Louella O. Parsons

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, May 17.—The supper dance Elsa Maxwell and Constance Bennett gave for the Duchess of Westminster proves Elsa's party-giving talents aren't exaggerated. I have been to lots of dinners, dances, etc., here but never one that equaled this affair in gaiety, excitement and fun. There was a dance contest in which Joan Bennett, George Murphy, Norma Shearer and George Sanders, Joan Blondell and Dick Powell were elected as contest winners. Ann Sheridan and Cesar Romero, Virginia and Darryl Zanuck scored as rumba experts and all were given prizes. Fannie Brice did a solo dance and was a riot. Bee Lillie brought down the house with a recitation and a ney girl, Ruth Terry, scorde a hit as a torch singer. Even the go-home-earlys forgot to leave. I said goodnite at 3:30 and only a few of the guests had gone home then.

LOUELLA PARSONS

When you read this I shall be well on my way for a two weeks' holiday—a fishing expedition far, far from Hollywood and movies. I feel safe in leaving now, for all glamour boys and girls are married and I don't look for any surprise elopements. Still you never can tell. In my absence my very able assistant, Dorothy Manners, will take over. She will give you all the news and keep a watchful eye out for you so I feel sure you won't even miss me. So cheerio to my kind readers and I'll bring you back a fish story.

Chatter in Hollywood: The first dinner party the newlyweds, Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck, attended was at the Zeppo Marx valley home. And talk about happy, these two were radiant. Barbara's unique wedding ring of gold with a band of rubies was much admired and so was her trousseau frock of gray. Those whom Marian Marx asked to meet Mr. and Mrs. Taylor were Sally Eilers, Harry Joe Brown, the Jack Bennys and the Fred MacMurrays. Bob has put his ranch home up for sale, since it's really built for a bachelor and he and Barbara will live at her house at Marwyck, adjoining the Zeppo Marx estate, for the next few weeks at least.

A line of two: Lawrence Tibbett knocked them cold at Grace Hayes Lodge when he gave out with about $5,000 worth of free concert. Larry sang "On the Road to Mandalay" and "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" and was going strong at 4 a. m. . . . the switchboard gals are already saying "Sam Goldwyn Studio" instead of United Artists when you call up at U. A. (Pardon me, Sam, I mean S. G.) . . . Geraldine Spreckels who is more interested in her career than her sugar millions, has a part in Henry Duffy's "Mrs. Lincoln" at the Ebell Theater. Surprising as it sounds, Richard Dix is up for one of the top roles in "Here I Am Stranger" with Richard Greene and Nancy Kelly at Twentieth Century-Fox . . . bet Joy Hodges was glad she was looking her best when she ran into two of her former fiances at the Sam Jaffe cocktail party. Lee Bowman with Virginia Peine and Robert Wilcox with his bride, Florence Rice, were the principals in the romance mix-up who all exchanged good wishes and congratulations . . . the Basil Rathbones, aided and abetted by Mary Pickford, Bette Davis and C. Aubrey Smith are sponsoring Cissie Loftus in a series of sketches at the Beverly Hills Hotel June 4. Bette became interested in Miss Loftus when she played a role in "The Old Maid" . . . Errol Flynn has not only entered his yacht for the annual mainland to Honolulu race but he's going to be the skipper and pilot.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: George Raft back in town denying that he and his wife got together on an amicable settlement of their financial woes. They're no nearer to a divorce than ever; Sigrid Gurie and Dr. Spangard are admitting they'll be married in July; Joan Bennett donned her seagoing togs today and joined the William Leedses on their yacht heading for Mexico. Maybe we'll be seeing them fishing around Guaymas; too bad that Dick Arlen's mother is not improving and he may remain in St. Paul for weeks; Richard Greene's big moment right now is Katherine (Sugar) Kane; what in the world are all the gals going to do now that Rudy Vallee is taking off for the East tomorrow; he'll certainly leave a dent in the "twosome" news around town; the Judy Garland-Artie Shaw romancing is really just a kid's crush on a band leader; you won't know Polly Moran who is just out of the hospital and 22 pounds thinner.

Now that the Alex d'Arcy-Arleen Whelan idyll is ended, his favorite dinner partner at the La Conga is Priscilla Totten. Forgot Patricia Ellis was so young; she doesn't reach voting age (21) until Saturday. Adrienne Ames arrived at the Troc with Voltaire Perkins, but before the evening was over they were joined by her real heart, Adrian Samish; the Ronald Colmans motoring in from San Ysidro Ranch, where they're spending most of their time now; Bing Crosby riding the kids on the "Star Maker" set around the lot on his new bike; John Gerfield gifting the newlyweds, the Leo Gorceys, with table silver; that was William Lundigan playing handball with Jane Bryan at the Santa Monica Beach Club today.

That's all for today—and I won't be seeing you for two weeks!

In Hollywood

—With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., May 17.—George Cukor is trying out a new idea in "The Women." Yes, it takes a man to think up a new gag for 'em. They have a giant beauty parlor, with the ladies pedicured, pummeled and preened. Seventy-five chattering females, demanding exclusive attention. A whole picture should be done there—more dirt is scattered there than comes off a woman's head!

HOPPER

So George did a dress rehearsal on a circular traveling boom, using only young players instead of stars. Then will run it off to pick flaws, build up weak spots, before doing it with the star cast. Which will save the studio about $100,000 in retakes.

Roz Russell thumped off her hips to music. Yes, she's doing it the hard way!

I don't believe Elaine Barrymore will reconcile with Jack even if he uses the bended-knee method, which he will. Every one knows it was through her watchfulness that he was able to make that rare comeback in "The Great Man Votes" and "Midnight." She had courage enough to make him buck up. A neat trick anyway you look at it.

After 11 years of pleading, Garbo gets her wish. She'll play light comedy in "Minotaka" with all the Lubitsch touches.

Luise Rainer got the vote for being our worst-dressed actress. Metro hasn't a picture for her, but her name is still on a dressing room door.

The only star writer I know who calls it "home work" is Bob Benchley. He comes to the studio when everything's ready to shoot, and makes a short in a day.

Had a grant chat with Maria Ouspenskya, who's playing the Maharani in "The Rains Came." She walked barefoot through the rain scenes wearing a jeweled ring on her big toe and a diamond earring in her nose. A good idea for you gals who misplace an earring at parties. She believes in Yogi philosophers; they despise material comfort. She always flies to and from New York, can't afford to miss that much time living on a train. She read me a love note from Charles Boyer. And how I envied her. Remember he was her grandson in "Love Affair?"

Our candy store Cinderella, Ellen Drew, made the front pages of the English papers on her arrival there.

When Lou Schreiber was Al Jolson's secretary he never dreamed he'd be casting him 25 years later for "Rose of Washington Square."

Newest rendezvous in town is cocktail room at our Union Station, so pleasant there it's a joy to miss your train. No one wants to catch one.

The Dobie Appointment

On the theory that all's well that ends well, there will be general gratification over the nomination of Dean Armistead M. Dobie, of the University of Virginia Law School, to the vacant Federal judgeship in the Western District of Virginia.

Dean Dobie is a very eminent lawyer who can be expected to fill the post to which he has been named with real distinction. And because he happens to be persona grata to both the Virginia Senators his confirmation is assured. It is certain, therefore, that the Dobie nomination will arouse none of the bitterness occasioned recently by the President's naming of Judge Floyd H. Roberts to fill the same vacancy.

The opposition of Senators Glass and Byrd to the Roberts nomination apparently did not arise out of any doubt as to the latter's qualifications. It seemed to be entirely the product of irritation with the action of the President in passing over the Senators from Virginia in making a selection for an important judicial post. But that was enough to doom this nomination. By a vote of 72 to 9, the Senate stood by their Virginia colleagues and rejected Judge Roberts.

Happily, the bad feeling engendered by this dispute over Senatorial prerogatives has subsided. The naming of Dean Dobie deserves, and presumably will receive, nothing but the fullest commendation.

It is to be hoped, however, that the filling of the vacancy in the Federal bench of the Western District of Virginia will soon be followed by the filling of the vacancy which has been allowed to continue all too long on the bench of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia. Months have passed since Congress passed and the President signed a bill adding three additional judges to the local Federal bench. Thus far, only two of these vacancies have been filled. And this inexplicable delay has operated to clog an already heavy calendar.

The Bear And The Lion

Politics makes strange bedfellows. For two months Great Britain has been seeking to draw Russia into the antiaggression camp. These efforts have so far fallen considerably short of success. It is significant, however, that they continue to be made and that the gap separating the British and Russian viewpoints is apparently narrowing.

Moscow's chief complaint has been that Russia has not been invited to become a full-fledged partner of the antiaggression combination, enjoying full equality of rights and duties. She has refused to accept the status of contributing member. On the other hand, Great Britain has hesitated to conclude with Russia the same kind of thoroughgoing alliance she has made with France and Poland. In this hesitation the Polish fear and dislike of communism obviously plays a part.

Were the present international emergency less real, the dilatory nature of the Anglo-Russian negotiations would long ago have condemned them to futility. Britain and Russia stand at opposite ends of the ideological pole. For years they have been suspicious of each other. That mutual suspicion has by no means been dispelled. But dour necessity appears to be driving them into partnership.

Looking at the situation from very different angles, Russia and Great Britain both find that their common interests tend to transcend their far-reaching differences. They feel themselves in varying degree menaced by the spread of aggression in Europe. Both nations feel that something practical ought to be done about it. And both also believe that the threat can best be met by a consolidation of the European forces opposed to aggression.

In other words, differences of ideology, while constituting a real barrier to Anglo-Russian cooperation, are not an insurmountable barrier. Great Britain tried desperately to find ways and means of cooperating with Germany and Italy, whose political systems are as antipathetic to British democracy as is Russian bolshevism. But the policy of appeasement could not survive Hitler's destruction of Czecho-Slovakia and Mussolini's conquest of Albania.

To meet the threat from the axis, Great Britain finds it necessary to use whatever instruments are available. She has made an alliance with Poland and another with Turkey. She has extended guarantees of support against aggression to Rumania and Greece. But these very commitments make it the more necessary that Russia be brought into the new collective system.

History is repeating itself. Because of Germany, the chronic nineteenth century hostility between Great Britain and Russia came to an end in 1907 and the dual entente of France and Britain became the triple entente, including Russia. The German threat is again serving as a catalytic agent to bring together the Russian bear and the British lion.

The Visit To Canada

The Canadian Prime Minister, Mr. MacKenzie King, well explained the primary importance of the royal visit to that country in his address of welcome at Quebec yesterday. "Today, as never before," said Mr. King, "the throne has become the center of our national life."

He was, of course, referring to Canada. And in a single sentence he pointed out both the quasi-independent status of the Dominion and the importance of the British connection as a unifying force in the development of Canadian nationalism.

Canada is in many ways an unnatural country. In spite of its great area more than 90 per cent of the population is found within 200 miles of the United States border. And in this narrow strip of land, stretching nearly 4,000 miles from the Maritime Provinces to the Pacific, no single racial element is wholly dominant. Those of French ancestry form 80 per cent of the population of Quebec and are numerous in other provinces. All told, a trifle less than half the population is of British ancestry and only about one Canadian out of ten was born in Great Britain.

These factors, and others springing from them, have retarded the growth of Canadian nationalism. Hence the paradox, emphasized by the Prime Minister yesterday, that the British throne is an essential factor operating in behalf of Canadian unity. In their common allegiance to the King all the disparate elements, strung out in the narrow stretch of territory from Halifax to Victoria, have a common loyalty. And that loyalty, shared by socialistic Alberta and Catholic Quebec, seems to become more rather than less important as Canadian nationalism develops.

It was, therefore, as the King and Queen of Canada, rather than as the reigning monarchs of Great Britain, that George VI and Queen Elizabeth were welcomed on their landing yesterday. And it is primarily as the King and Queen of Canada that the royal couple will travel throughout the length of the great Dominion, showing themselves to subjects whose loyalty to the throne is an expression of, and cannot be divorced from, their strong Canadian patriotism.

The British Empire is an extraordinary political institution. History shows no parallel, and the individual imagination could scarcely conceive, so strange a conglomeration of self-governing nations and variegated colonies, splashed and scattered in every quarter of the globe. In that empire the only common factors are the Anglo-Saxon tradition of individual freedom and loyalty to the British throne. There is nothing else uniting, for instance, Quebec and St. Helena.

Canada rejoices today in the presence of a couple which curiously symbolizes both the practical independence of that nation and its essential unity with the most far-flung political confederation ever operated by mankind. The royal visit is interesting from many viewpoints. But it is most important as a demonstration that statecraft may be most successful when it is opportunist. For it is pure experimentation, without logic or plan, which has slowly built the British empire, united today by nothing more tangible than a faith and a symbol.

Experiment In Relief

The Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation has a dual function. It undertakes to remove surplus agricultural products from the market in order to support prices, and it also disposes of its surpluses through local relief agencies. On several occasions, the vegetables and fruit distributed by this agency have been a windfall to communities in which local relief funds had been exhausted and the unemployed were in dire distress.

However, it is obvious that an organization engaged in the business of supporting prices by removing abnormal surpluses from the market is not in a position to provide adequate or regular aid to the destitute. All it can do is to supplement local resources by giving away such goods as it has on hand. Moreover, this distribution has to be effected with great care to prevent injury to private interests engaged in sales of foodstuffs.

The more interest is therefore being taken in an experiment just launched in Rochester, providing for a new method of distribution of surplus commodities by the FSCC. Relief clients have been afforded an opportunity to obtain certain foods, of which there is at the time a surplus, merely by presentation of blue stamps to local retail grocery stores.

These stamps really represent an addition to regular relief allowances. The sole stipulation is that for each blue stamp an orange stamp of twice its value must be bought and paid for out of the regular relief allowance, and used to purchase other foods.

This ingenious scheme is designed to achieve several purposes. In the first place, it shifts to the local stores all the work of distributing surplus commodities. It is also hoped that a larger volume of business may make it possible for the stores to lower prices, thereby facilitating the disposition of surpluses. Another advantage of the system over direct distribution is that it assures a more balanced diet for those on relief.

According to reports, about 3,000 families on relief in Rochester have already taken advantage of the offer of free food. Doubtless others will follow their example as they begin to realize the advantages of the plan. They are in fact being presented with a variety of foods, free of charge, on the one condition that they do not substitute this gift food for the staple articles that constitute their main diet. The orange stamps are a guarantee against such substitution.

The experiment is interesting in itself. And it will also throw light on the intelligence of the relief clientele. For few alert minds will fail to appreciate the value of the offer that is being made to qualified beneficiaries under the Rochester plan.

Investment Problems

President Roosevelt is evidently deeply impressed with the importance of the hearings on investment and savings which began this week before the Temporary National Economic Committee. In a letter to Senator O'Mahoney, the committee's chairman, he says: "It is a matter of common knowledge that the dollars which the American people save each year are not finding their way back into productive enterprise in sufficient volume to keep our economic machine turning over at the rate required to bring about full employment. We have mastered the technique of creating necessary credit; we have now to deal with the problem of assuring its full use."

The first witness to appear before the TNEC on Tuesday was Dr. Alvin H. Hansen, of Harvard University, who presented an imposing array of facts and figures to show that a solution of the unemployment problem lies in a release of idle dollars for capital expenditures. "We are completing a decade of unemployment on a scale never before known in our history," said Dr. Hansen. "For the time being at least we are experiencing a chronic maladjustment, a failure of adequate outlets for capital expenditures for a society geared to a high savings, high investment level."

That being the case, it is most important to determine the reasons for the inactive condition of the investment markets and to find means of stimulating interest in new enterprises. Some of the causes of the existing depression are not of a nature to yield to suggested panaceas, if Dr. Hansen's views are correct.

He points out, for instance, that in a highly-geared industrial society, progress is not continuous. We advance unevenly, boom periods being followed by years of depression. After the feverish expansion of the twenties, Dr. Hansen concludes that for a time "there was no room left for further plant expansion or for other new capital outlays."

This witness also stressed the marked decline in the rate of population increase. The mere fact that the population is still increasing is, we are told, not enough to insure prosperity. Retardation of the pace of expansion is depressing when the economic planning of a community has been predicated upon a more rapid rate of growth.

There is, no doubt, a large element of truth in these philosophical generalizations, but that does not justify taking a purely passive attitude toward the problems that the TNEC is now studying. Indeed, Dr. Hansen himself followed his somewhat pessimistic survey with various suggestions for remedial action. Among them were proposals for reducing the tax burden resting upon industry, and a recommendation for lowering the FHA guaranteed rate of interest in order to stimulate residential building.

He also stressed the alleged need for continuing to invest public funds on an extensive scale to supplement private investment activity. Despite his stress upon the opportunities for developing self-liquidating public enterprises, Dr. Hansen is evidently committed to huge-scale public spending as a partial panacea for investment paralysis. He urges Government outlays that would further unbalance the budget, in the belief that the resultant increase in national income would justify the outlay.

As Dr. Hansen's testimony shows, it is much easier to diagnose the ills of industrial society than to prescribe a safe remedy. There is no question that new capital outlets are urgently needed. But we shall not be making real progress toward a solution of the investment, and the related unemployment, problem by experiments that further weaken the Government's already badly-unbalanced fiscal structure.

An evangelist says the devil will take over the world in September, 1939. Just a matter of foreclosing the mortgage, eh?

A moralist says no new sin has been devised in 5,000 years. But just look at the fun we're having with the old ones!

The world has never before had as long a list as it has today of things something ought to be done about.

Birth control might have more to recommend it if there were any way of making it retroactive.

Through Glass

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have been very much interested today in hearing about the wonderful new Doctors Hospital now in process of construction on I Street, and its innovations have crystallized in my mind an idea which seems to me would be enthusiastically received by future mothers. As far as I know it is entirely original.

In the present maternity section of a hospital the babies are kept secluded in a nursery from outside contact but not from each other, and as I have learned from experience, infection often attacks whole nurseries. Why would it not be possible to have one end or portion of the mother's room glassed off with soundproof plate glass?

In that compartment the baby could still be kept from outside contacts, could have his own crib, scales, tub and accessories. He would be much more accessible to the private nurse. I am assuming that the mother in such a room would have a private nurse, and while the baby remained in the hospital all his necessities would be his own.

When visitors came to see his mother he could be viewed through the glass much more conveniently than is the custom now, and one of the greatest advantages would be that the mother, through the glass, could learn daily the routine and the actual mechanics of the bath, the dressing and the innumerable details which she will have to know when she takes the baby home.

There would, of course, be a shade which could be lowered at any time when privacy was desired for the baby, and the ventilation control would be regulated entirely separately from the mother's room. The only time the baby would be brought out would be, as now, at feeding time.

It would certainly give the family a much closer touch with the baby and would be very entertaining and, as far as I can see, entirely practicable. I have had three hospital babies and I feel that such an arrangement would have added a great deal of enjoyment and interest to my sojourns. I should be interested to hear whether or not my inspiration has ever been considered, and if so, what are the reasons it has not been adopted.

Unworried

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post of May 15 carried a report of an address by Postmaster General Farley in which he told the boys of a military school that they had no worries except the election of 1940. The wish seems to be father to the thought.

As one who has been active with boys for 35 years let me assure the Postmaster General that boys have few worries at any time, in the mass, and least of all a worry over an election 18 months away. Eighteen months in the life of an average boy is years and years and years away. If you do not think so ask one what he will be doing on November 15, 1940.

Of course I am well aware that Mr. Farley was talking for other eyes and ears and minds. Six years of bungling spending and six years of untackled problems have left little for him to say to the youth of America. Our youth demand the right (and God grant it will ever be so) to enter into citizenship on a competitive basis.

The Postmaster General may be a good campaign manager to the "faithful" who demand election victory at any cost but his ears are still young and seemingly detect rumblings of discontent from coast to coast.

Others await 1940 entirely unworried. VETERAN.
Washington, May 15.

Stumbling Blocks

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Much has been published in regard to traffic accidents, and how to make the city streets safer for pedestrians. I am sure the general public will appreciate it if you will give me space to call attention to a danger to life and limb in the stumbling blocks in the so-called safety zones.

Since last December 13, when I was crippled by a fall over one of these useless obstructions, I have heard many criticisms of these public nuisances, which should be removed at once and replaced by platforms. Another elderly woman was also taken to a hospital with injuries caused in the same manner and on the same morning on which I was injured.

I was crossing the street to board a car which the motorman had motioned he would hold for me. Unfortunately, he had stopped his car where it hid the raised obstructions, instead of leaving them visible to passengers approaching from either side of the street. As I passed the front of the car (a front entrance), I was unable to see the stumbling blocks just out of sight of the front end of the car. As I rounded the front, my right foot struck the bump, throwing me heavily to the pavement with the full weight of my body on the right knee, and twisting my left ankle. I was unable to move and was carried to a taxi.

The general public should start a crusade for the abolishment of these useless stumbling blocks to protect others from similar experiences.

War In China

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Recently a Senate committee had before it a writer of books who told them that the way to stop Hitler was to check Japan.

Why did the Senate need such information? Isn't it a matter of common knowledge that the United States is responsible for the prolonged warfare in China? That it is the supplies that we have furnished and continues to furnish that makes the continued slaughter of civilians in China possible? Documented evidence was given a year ago to show that we, and we alone, make Japanese warfare possible. Missionaries write that unexploded shells bearing United States markings make a painful impression on Chinese. Did not an A. F. of L. official say that it makes their men sick to carry scrap iron for Japan through lines of pleading Chinese women and children?

Did not a military committee a few days ago state it was considering an embargo on all war supplies to Japan? Is it time to consider? How long before we act? The time to act is now. Japan is taking advantage of Western preoccupation to seize strategic positions which will enable her to dominate all the Far East.

Help China, and eventually that nation will be able to break the power of the invader, and win her freedom. Surely the sympathies of the American people are with that wronged and suffering people. Hundreds of thousands have expressed that sympathy in protests and appeals. Why are not such protests heard? Who is responsible for this indifference on the part of our Government?

The war is on between brute force—as represented by Germany, Italy and Japan—and the rule of reason as expressed by all the peace-loving nations of the world. It will be to our eternal disgrace if we as a Nation permit brute force to win by our support. "Speak now or forever hereafter hold your peace."

INDIGNANT SPECTATOR.

Compliment

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a native of Puerto Rico I wish to state the opinion I think prevailing among my countrymen in New York, Philadelphia and other Eastern cities regarding Admiral Leahy. We consider the designation of the admiral to the governorship of Puerto Rico as a high compliment to our country and people, because of the following reasons:

1. He is a man of high caliber, of proved ability, wide experience, broad sympathy and unsullied integrity;

2. He has the absolute confidence of President Roosevelt, whose friendship for Puerto Rico is real, practical, consistent and all-pervasive; and

3. He has handled bigger and more complex questions successfully than any question that may arise or could arise in Puerto Rico, either in the political, economic or strategic field.

JOSE AMANDO FLORES.

Why A Maginot Line?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Through the Associated Press I learned that Puerto Rico is going to be of importance in the defense plan of the United States of America. We Puerto Ricans feel very glad, with the exception of a few fanatics who would like to conquer our independence.

The fact that a few of our friends, both Puerto Ricans and continental Americans, have been assassinated by some of these fanatics does not worry me in the least. What worries me is the vital ignorance and the criminal negligence of our fellow citizens at the helm of the Administration with respect to Puerto Rico and Puerto Rican affairs.

What will be the use of establishing a "Maginot Line of Sea" here if the Administration's policy of late is unconsciously making out of every Puerto Rican an enemy of everything American?

We have proven our loyalty to our Nation; we have fought with our fellow citizens on the French battlefields; we gave as they did our blood to preserve democracy and the right to live as human beings.

Nevertheless, our State Department considers it of more importance to negotiate reciprocal trade agreements with Dictator Batista, of Cuba, granting him privileges which will bring about disastrous effects in the economy of our island wherein 1,800,000 American citizens live.

We are the only place under the American flag where coffee is grown. More or less, 600,000 people used to earn their daily bread through its cultivation. As in negotiating reciprocity agreements, the life and well being of those 600,000 American citizens have never been taken in consideration by our fellow citizens at the head of the State Department; that very important and necessary source of income in an agricultural island like ours has been destroyed and those citizens now are on the verge of starvation.

Our sugar lands, responsible for the feeding of 500,000 of our working masses, are largely unproductive. Our national Administration prefers flirting with Cuba's dictator, granting his country sugar quotas which, as aliens, they are not entitled to, thus reducing ours to a point where starvation is menacing these 500,000 American citizens.

Last but not least in this chain of events, our Congress, without study, research or conscientious investigation of our insular problems, extended to our island the dispositions of the wages and hours law, thus killing the second most important source of revenue for 300,000 American citizens employed in the needlework business.

Through lack of study and coordination of our national lawmaking body we Puerto Ricans are considered as aliens as far as the application of some of our national legislation, in which we have never been granted the right to intervene. It will sound ridiculous to state that the writer, a full-fledged American citizen by virtue of the Jones act of 1917, when he faces the application of the provisions of the 1938 revenue act, is considered an alien, and that any citizen by naturalization would be in a more advantageous position than myself. Treasury Department officials have even recommended to me to apply for naturalization papers, not knowing that if I should ever do so, any United States district judge would consider me a very ignorant lawyer.

"The Thrifty Style"

"The feet will pass, but the shoes they have worn
Two thousand years onward
Time's road shall tread."
—Sir Edwin Arnold.

IT STRUCK the poet as rather queer that such a trifle, tiny slippers of gold and green in an Egyptian exhibition in Piccadilly, had lasted so many centuries after the Egyptian girl who had worn them was only "dry spiced dust."

In like manner the civilization of ancient Laconia has vanished, and no one cares now except perhaps the archeologists. But time has some way preserved a relic of Laconia, as slight as the gold sandals, which is curious enough to bear looking into. This is the word "laconic," along with its kindred words "laconize" and "laconicism."

There was in ancient Laconia a peculiar genius for the abstemious, for discipline, rigor, for all those virtues called "Spartan," which make the word a synonym for endurance and bravery. Laconia, or Sparta, was also known throughout the ancient world for austerity and brevity of speech.

We are told that there is one seed after the flesh and another after the spirit. You will find spiritual children of Laconia on the rocky hill farms in New England where laconic speech persists. This may be due in part to suspicion of the frivolous, which is a Puritan inheritance, but it is also the result of real lives. When you farm stony land for 50 years and try to work unmalleable rock into gentle fields and gardens, you come to believe that talk is cheap. When you go to the barn in a blizzard to milk the restive cow, with the temperature at 25 degrees below zero, a frosty rime on your whiskers, you make acquaintance with hard facts which you will probably emit in speech seasoned with native salt and straight to the point.

There is an extensive literature of this Laconian speech, to which Calvin Coolidge was a well-known contributor. An example is his reply to a detractor of Washington's fame. Everyone in Washington remembers that Mr. Coolidge is reported to have strolled to a southern window overlooking the Monument Grounds and remarked, "I see that his monument still stands!"

Another Coolidge laconicism is quoted from the days when he was courting. The story goes that there had been some delays in plans for the wedding, and one day while the couple strolled together, Mr. Coolidge is said to have remarked out of a clear sky, "If you want me, you'd better take me now!" One wonders how such an intimate pronouncement got into circulation.

Anyone who takes the trouble can compile hundreds of others quite as characteristic from the speech of rural New England. One of the best is the remark of a shrewd fellow who had become a little tired of a wordy relative's complaints about the high price of food.

"Well," he drawled. "I never calculate that it's entirely wasted."

It was the same prosperous farmer who remained unimpressed when a flashy fellow from the city pulled out a $100 bill one day in the blacksmith shop and demanded to know if any of the bystanders could change it. "Shucks," the farmer said later, "I had twice that in my pants' pocket."

"Then why didn't you show him up?" someone asked.

"Not worth it," was the reply, and that settled the matter so far as he was concerned.

The islands along the New England coast are as fertile soil for the laconicism as the mainland.

One evening we were standing on the breakwater at New Harbor on one of these islands. I have a feeble sense of direction, and in this case I was completely unable to orient myself. I pointed out over the pounding surf and demanded of a native islander, "What's over there?" I expected that he would say "Providence" or perhaps "New London," for I thought we were facing toward the mainland though we were too far away to see it. But we happened to be looking out straight upon the Atlantic, and he replied in one word:

"France."

It was on this same island that it was decided to install a traffic light on the main street where there is a little circular park and a fountain. I wish I could explain fully about the fountain, for this monument to temperance is said to have a peculiar origin. However, concerning traffic, it was decided to direct vehicles to the right around the circle and the law was present to enforce regulations. There came down the street an islander, driving his Model T in the free and unrestrained manner of the citizenry of the island. He went around the circle to the left. The law rushed out to interfere, and in the cause of duty got his toe badly mashed.

"What in the dickens did you do that for?" demanded the officer, or at least that is an expurgated version of his question.

"If you'd kept your blamed foot out of the way, you wouldn't have got hurt," replied the islander.

And I don't suppose anything was done about the incident, because the officer wasn't exactly garrulous himself, and was probably willing to let the matter drop in the interests of verbal economy. E. DALWICK.

Ravishes Of Time

EVERYWHERE I roam in the United States there is evidence in the dilapidation of old homes that, if wealth does tend to concentrate in the possession of a small group of people, then that group is like a golf club in that the membership is always changing. The old ones die off or go broke and quietly vanish, and the heirs of those who did not go broke, on coming into the money, take second or third cut after the taxes have been collected and, dividing it among them, find that individually they are unable to maintain the old mansions of the best families.

Some of the heirs are fools who lose their money in silly investments, a good many are drunkards and given to marrying frequently and on slight provocation—an expensive way of doing, what with legal expenses, alienation settlements and all—and some are just average persons who stretch out their money until they die, when it is taxed again, and that remainder, in turn, is divided among several in diminishing portions.

Mansions Become Shacks In 25 Years

IF AN HEIR does not possess the knack of making money to add to his inheritance, then the process is like that of the chuck-aluck board, which skims and skims until there is nothing left to raise a skim. Fortunes lack stamina, and the new-rich are always rising.

All American cities—and 100 years will cover the age of many of them—have overwhelmed and obliterated in their physical growth whole rows of old mansions where once abode the rich men of an earlier day, and many buildings now masked and jazzed up with hotel fronts or store fronts were palaces not so long ago in which the banker or the streetcar magnate lived on rich meats and heavy gravies.

Anyone who is rising 40 years, on revisiting a city after an absence of 20 or 25 years, will notice the total disappearance of blocks which in his youth gave him an impression of impregnable riches and permanence and the transformation of others into tire stores, kitchenette apartments and palmists' studios.

Residential Areas Are Transformed

IT IS TRUE, of course, that some of the rich and well-to-do have moved into the suburbs to occupy imitation English or godawful Spanish dwellings with plate glass shower stalls but very little room for books, on grounds from which the milkman of 30 years ago retreated at a decent profit on his acreage, but a majority of those families are lately come into money and many of them are house poor, even so.

Come 1960, when the elders are thinned out, the young ones in prep or college today will have taken their grabs at the leavings of their estates, married and moved away, and the wealth of the suburb, if wealth it be, will be concentrated no more.

In New York in 20 years, Fifth avenue, which once meant society and riches, has been transformed into a street of shops and business below the park, and to the north of Fifty-ninth street has become a mixture of old homes, many of them apparently worked only by skeleton crews like laid-up ships, and co-operative apartments whose owner in many cases would be delighted to move out and abandon their equity if their equity would do as much for them.

Many Inherit Only An Error

THE MARKET-RICH of the era of wonderful nonsense who bought apartments then, but were mangled in the crash, are rich no longer, and the heirs to a town house ten floors up may discover that they have inherited only an error.

Newport, R. I., is haunted, and every inland city has its miscellany of the boomtime big shot who joined the polo club and flew his own plane but jumped out a window and barely beat the rap in a criminal action and tossed his cuff links and his wife's pearls into the blanket to stand off the creditors.

The story can be read in the names of those who constitute that which is known as society or cafe society in any city, for the names of the old rich families are rarely represented and the names which do appear were found only in the births, marriages and deaths and in the humbler brackets of the pay rolls 40 years ago.

Goldman to Discuss Britain and Palestine

The Unemployed Savings

IN ANY HONEST inquiry, such as that which the Temporary National Economic Committee has just begun, the chances of finding the right answer depend on the capacity to ask the right questions. More often than not in public discussion the question is unanswerable because it is a false question, and until the question has been restated, no one, were he the world's greatest thinker, could answer it.

What, with the President's letter to Senator O'Mahoney and the extraordinarily able testimony of Dr. Lauchlin Currie of the Federal Reserve Board and of Prof. Alvin H. Hansen, of Harvard, the TNEC is off to a very good start. For the committee is now in a position to define its problems in a way that every informed person, whatever his other views, can accept. Agreement on a definition of the problem will clarify the whole subsequent discussion about public and private investment, tax policy, deficit spending, price and wage policy. Without agreement on the nature of the problem, the discussion will degenerate into the special pleading of conflicting interests and political factions.

Unspent Income Must Go To Work

A CENTRAL POINT of agreement has been developed gradually in the past ten years by the leading economists of all countries, though historically the idea has been known for much longer than that. It is that if the income received by the people is not spent, or invested (which is another form of spending), then the unspent income will produce unemployment of labor and capital. This must be true. If Smith earns $100 and spends only $70, saving the other $30, and if then he does not invest his savings but buries them in the garden or in his bank, there are $30 less in the market demanding goods for labor and capital to produce. The problem of recovery is, therefore, how to induce Smith to spend or invest the $30 he has saved.

This is not New Deal economics or Wall Street economics. Democratic economics, or Republican. It is the central economic truth on which everyone is agreed who is discussing the matter at all. It is of the highest importance that we should emphasize and hold fast to this major proposition on which there is agreement. For by doing that we can narrow and clarify the debatable differences of opinion which now exist among competent and sincere men.

Stimulant Possible From Two Sources

LET US NOTE, then, that, starting with the proposition that unspent and uninvested savings are the cause of unemployment, we find men taking the following positions:

1. That the Government must undertake to get these savings spent by distributing them as relief and pensions and subsidies, and must get them invested by inaugurating public works.

2. That private industry would invest these savings, and get them spent through its purchases of raw materials and through wages to labor if it were not deterred by taxes that destroy profits, by restrictions that raise costs, and by a general fear of the Government's fiscal policy.

These are the two extreme theoretical positions that men take in argument, starting from the same major premise, namely that recovery depends upon the spending and investing of the people's savings. But, actually, except among fanatics and doctrinaires, neither of these extreme theoretical positions is tenable.

Government Can't Do All Spending

THUS IT IS evident that the Government cannot spend and invest all the savings of the American people. It is no less evident that in a modern state the amount that has to be spent collectively—for social services, public health, education, the conservation of natural resources, for highways, bridges, parks, recreation, for waterways and the development of primary power, and, unfortunately, for armaments—is in absolute amounts much greater than it was in the century before the World War. It would, therefore, be a wholly false question to ask ourselves whether all the savings or none should be spent and invested by the Government or by private enterprise. It is not only a false question but a misleading question when it is stated as if an exclusive choice had to be made between the two forms of investment.

The true question is how they can be made to supplement each other. But this question is unanswerable when men start, as so many New Dealers do in their thinking, by supposing that they or anyone else can determine in advance, by some sort of calculation, how much capital private industry can use and how much the Government can wisely use. That is where the whole discussion bogs down.

Private Investment Hampered By U. S.

THE QUESTION can be answered only by letting the two forms of investment, public and private, compete fairly and openly for the savings of the people. They do not compete fairly today. For the Government itself not merely taxes and borrows to finance itself but it also imposes restrictions on private enterprise which make very difficult profitable private investment. These restrictions artificially increase the supply of idle money which the President deplores in his letter to Senator O'Mahoney.

In order to find out how much more savings there are in America than can be profitably invested by industry, in order to find out what proportion of the savings the Government can wisely invest, it will be necessary first to remove the unnecessary restrictions on private enterprise. Then we should be in a position to learn from practical experience the correct answer to the question which the President has put to the committee. Then private industry would take what it could, and what the Government took would be the real excess rather than an apparent and artificial excess.

If a sincere attempt were made to remove the deterrents and restrictions on private enterprise, then we should have an objective measure of how much private and how much public investment was possible and necessary. But until this is done, the problem is falsified: the fact that private industry is not permitted to invest profitably is made to look as if there were no opportunity for private investment; the fact that money is idle because private enterprise does not use it is made to appear the justification for an indefinite expansion of the public expenditures.

Del Vayo to Speak For Refugees

Senor Julio Alvarez del Vayo, war-time foreign minister of Loyalist Spain, will arrive in Washington May 26 to speak on behalf of the Spanish Refugee Relief Campaign.

Secretary of the Interior Ickes is honorary chairman of the national campaign, to raise funds for the 400,000 refugees in southern France. A former journalist, del Vayo has served as Spanish Ambassador to Mexico, a member of the League of Nations Commission on the Chaco conflict, Spanish delegate to the League of Nations, and minister of war as well as foreign minister of Republican Spain.

The New Deal Tug-Of-War

By Mark Sullivan

Radicals Always Win

THIS TAX MATTER illustrates the heart of the situation at Washington, a situation that few understand.

First, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, and an assistant, propose repeal of what they call "business deterrent" taxes, or "friction" taxes. These deterrent taxes bear down on capital at the precise point where capital, if not deterred, would move into active business, would build new plants and expand existing plants. The purpose of repealing the deterrent taxes is to cause capital and business to become active. By thus becoming active, business would recover and produce more revenue through the ordinary forms of taxation.

In the effort to get rid of the "deterrent" taxes, and in other measures to promote business recovery, Secretary Morgenthau is joined with others in various branches of the Government. The group comprises those in the Administration who believe in preserving the system of individualism, of privately owned business. In order to preserve it, they wish it to recover promptly; they wish to end the semi-paralysis in which business now is.

Constant Conflict Between Groups

OPPOSED to this group are the persons in the Administration who—to put it in the baldest words—do not like individualism, privately owned and operated business. Call these the radicals. Not all this group go so far as to oppose the system of privately owned business. Some merely have theories about business which are impossible to incorporate in any system of privately owned business. Some others of the radicals are, I think, merely reckless or headlong men who, without having any very definite convictions about theories of government or society, enjoy the sense of power and have a taste for maneuver. Yet others of the radicals actually believe in, or hope for, the extinction or partial extinction, of privately owned business.

Some who believe this way describe what they hope for as "twentieth century collectivism." Whatever the more extreme of this group believe in, the true word for it is "collectivism"—collectivism as opposed to individualism. If it came into being it would not be an exact duplicate of communism, but it would be close to communism. Possibly "modified communism" might be an appropriate term for it, or modified socialism, or state socialism.

Between the group that hopes for some kind of collectivism and therefore does not strongly hope for recovery of the existing American system, and, on the other hand, the group symbolized by Secretary Morgenthau, who hope for recovery of the American system—between these groups within and around the Administration there is constant conflict.

Radical Group Always Wins

PRACTICALLY always the radicals win. Again and again it is announced that there is going to be "business appeasement" or a "breathing spell." Again, and again some business leader is summoned to Washington, is given a post, and starts out to promote business recovery. Again and again this happens. Again and again it ends in nothing. Always the radical group wins.

It happened in the tax revision matter. After Secretary Morgenthau started the idea, it became apparent Mr. Roosevelt was increasingly cold to it.

How does the radical group win? This brings us to President Roosevelt. It would be inaccurate to class Mr. Roosevelt with the group who affirmatively or consciously wish to get rid of individualism and bring about collectivism. Mr. Roosevelt, in a tepid way, believes in individualism, in the private ownership of business. But Mr. Roosevelt has no burning zeal for individualism. Mr. Roosevelt does not believe in individualism in the whole-hearted way that, for example, Stalin believes in communism, or Mussolini in fascism. And, in the competition of systems going on in the world, the great handicap of the American system is that the quarter which should be aggressively zealous for it, the champion of it, is in fact, lukewarm about it, actually takes frequent steps that injure it.

Why does Mr. Roosevelt take these steps? Why, in the contest between the conservatives and radicals in his Administration, do the radicals usually win?

THE ANSWER is to be found in several aspects of Mr. Roosevelt's very unusual temperament. While he does not affirmatively dislike individualism, he does affirmatively dislike some individuals who are heads of businesses. As to some, his distaste may be shared by many, for some heads of businesses practice theories which are utterly out of tune with the times.

But it is not primarily for any theories or practices followed by heads of business that Mr. Roosevelt is not an impersonal person. His attitude toward these men is personal. He thinks of them as challenging him. Or he thinks of them as having power, or potential power—and power in others, or independence in others, often stirs truculence in Mr. Roosevelt. He thinks of such men as he thought of the Senators who were independent, and whom Mr. Roosevelt therefore tried to "purge." Mr. Roosevelt's controversies are usually personal, have the spirit of feuds. His reluctance to back up Mr. Morgenthau in the matter of revising the "deterrent" taxes, is probably inspired in part by the fact that the proposal is supported by conservative Democratic Senators, toward whom Mr. Roosevelt has personal feeling.

These traits of Mr. Roosevelt are well known to the so-called "liberals" about him. They know how to appeal to his temperament. And this, more than any other one condition, accounts for the fact that Mr. Roosevelt is usually moved to opposition to conservative proposals.

British Surrender

By Barnet Nover

A Munich For The Holy Land

THE CHAMBERLAIN government's capacity for "appeasement" was apparently not exhausted by the surrender of the Sudetenland to Hitler or by the capitulation to Mussolini on the Spanish question. Palestine is the latest part of the world to feel the impact of the Munich mentality.

Judged in its most charitable light, with due allowance being made for the difficulties of the British position in the world today, the latest White Paper on Palestine must be regarded as a repudiation of obligations voluntarily undertaken and no less binding because there are real difficulties in the way of fulfillment.

THE WHITE PAPER announces the British government's intention of establishing an independent state in Palestine.

The plan is obviously designed to meet the clamorous demands of the Arab states—Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Irak, Transjordan—which have made the cause of Palestine Arab nationalism their own. It is also designed to insure the support or at least the neutrality of those states and others in the Moslem world in the event that Great Britain is forced into war.

The new state, when and if formed, will, it is assumed, be bound by the closest military and diplomatic ties to London. Its external freedom of action will presumably be as great, but no greater, than that of Irak. And if Palestine were Irak or Egypt—which won its actual independence of British control some while ago—something could be said for the British plan concerning the Holy Land.

Palestine, however, is not Irak or Egypt. A majority of its inhabitants are Arabs. But the principal minority consists of Jews who are there, in the words of Great Britain herself, "by right and not of sufferance," who came there because under the Balfour Declaration and under the League mandate the British government solemnly pledged itself to the establishment of a Jewish national home in Palestine. Into the building up of that national home has gone a tremendous amount of energy, idealism and the expenditure of vast sums of money.

THE WHITE PAPER provides for Palestinian independence in ten years. A great deal can happen in that time, including the shelving of this plan as previous plans for the solution of the Palestinian problem—for instance, the partition scheme of 1937—have been shelved.

But the latest British program also provides for the limitation of Jewish immigration into Palestine to 75,000 during the next five years after which, presumably, all Jewish immigration would cease. That provision, being of immediate applicability, will no doubt be carried out. The plan would also grant power to the British high commissioner "to prohibit and regulate transfers of land," a provision which, it is understood, would apply chiefly to Jewish acquisitions of land.

THEORETICALLY under the new Palestinian dispensation, the Jewish national home would continue to exist with the Jews enjoying all the rights and privileges of full-fledged citizens of the new state. But since the White Paper stipulates that the Jewish population in the Holy Land shall not exceed a third of the whole it is open to question whether these rights and privileges would mean anything.

They might, if Great Britain agreed to protect the Jewish minority and if she lived up to this pledge. In that case, however, Great Britain would continue to bear the very burdens she is now so anxious to drop from her shoulders. In other words, having, by the Balfour declaration and her assumption of the mandate, encouraged the Zionist experiment to go forward, Great Britain now washes her hands of declaration and mandate and forces the experiment to fend for itself in what is certain to be an extremely hostile environment.

Certainly the fact will not be forgotten that it was not long after Irak, with Britain's consent and approval, achieved her independence that the Assyrian minority in that Arab land was massacred by the tens of thousands. The same horrid sequel to independence may not occur in Palestine. But there is no guarantee that it will not.

THE FACT IS that Great Britain's administration of the Palestinian mandate has, from the first, been hamstrung by bureaucratic insolence and stupidity, by muddling and double-dealing, by weakness and timidity. The story is one of opportunities forever wasted. And bad as the situation already was by 1937, it was made worse by the announcement of the partition plan which showed very clearly that Great Britain could be intimidated into the surrender of a difficult position. This surrender is now complete.

In the meantime the restriction of Jewish immigration to an average of 15,000 for the next five years cuts off one of the few places on earth to which refugees could go. Indeed, despite immigration restrictions that have prevailed in the past, and despite the turmoil and confusion through which the Holy Land has been passing, Palestine has managed to absorb a goodly number of the victims from the Nazi terror in central Europe.

For Palestine, Gulana and Tanganyika and the other areas Mr. Chamberlain would open to harassed Jews are no substitute. Where bread is called for, Mr. Chamberlain offers a stone.

Hints On Receiving The King And Queen

1. Guests at dinners to the royal couple may make the trip by bicycle if they wish, but should not ride them into dinner.

2. It is bad form to try to board the royal carriage or motor car to try to sell insurance, get subscriptions to magazines or ask contributions to build a new Elks lodge.

3. One should remember that the King and Queen are not movie stars, baseball players or radio performers and should be spared requests to autograph programs, menus, etc.

4. Do not shout "Hello, George!" to the King; and try to remember that even in a democracy nobody calls a queen "Lizzie."

5. It is all very well to cheer the King, wave to him or otherwise register good will in a polite manner, but it is not good form to shout, "We want Eddie!"

6. While it is all right to wish to show respect and even affection for a visiting monarch, it is impolite to offer him cigars or invite him to join a golf foursome next Sunday.

7. All criticism of the King's uniforms, hats, etc., should be limited to letters. The letters should be burned.

8. Under no circumstances should Queen Elizabeth be asked to pose for amateur photographers, skipping rope, leaping, or turning cartwheels across a lawn.

9. Candid camera fanatics desiring to snap the King while shaving have the right of way over those desiring to snap the Queen in the act of eating a stuffed tomato, but neither should be tolerated for an instant.

10. Requests for special musical numbers at dinners to the royal couple are bad manners, especially for such numbers as "There's a Little Spot in Ireland."

11. American auto salesmen determined to sell the King an American car are required, by good form, to do so by letter, and such practices as hiding under the King's bed, posing as a messenger from the British Embassy or hiring a sky writer to fly low over the King's equipage and spell the name of any make of automobile are considered vulgar.

12. Newspaper correspondents should not ask the King "What do you think of American girls?" especially in the Queen's presence.

13. Members of a motorcycle escort are not required to curtsy to the King and Queen while on their motorcycles, even admitting it would add quite a touch to proceedings.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Her Romance Opposed by Patrician Great-Uncle, Girl Plans Elopement; Asks Where to Go?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a girl 21 years old and I live with a great-uncle who comes from a very fine old aristocratic family. He has many old-fashioned ideas and lives a quiet life. Somewhat over a year ago I met a young gentleman of 21 who has become my constant friend. Due to family opposition, we haven't made known our true feelings toward each other. My friend has not as yet acquired a fortune but he is ambitious and I love him. What more could anyone ask?

He is a person of good standing and quite popular. Just because he hasn't had as many advantages as other young men and hasn't a social position, I shall be denied permission to become his wife. But I refuse to let this stand in the way. I don't want to leave my uncle, because he does mean well, I feel. But if my friend and I were to be married in a neighboring State, where there isn't a three-day marriage law (so that the marriage could be kept a secret), I could still live with my uncle and be happy. Could you suggest such a place? I live in Washington.

ANXIOUS.

DEAR ANXIOUS: Offhand, I cannot suggest such a place, although if I were in search of the information, I probably could obtain it by telephoning the District of Columbia Government Building, at Pennsylvania avenue and Fourteenth street northwest, telephone NAtional 6000, and making the nature of my quest known to the switchboard operator. You may do the same, if you are bent on making a fool of yourself and laying waste to your youth—since no greater fool's errand could be imagined than that which you are now tentatively considering.

If you had the character, intelligence and self-sufficiency which would warrant your getting married in defiance of your great-uncle's wishes, you wouldn't dream of going about it in the underhanded fashion which you are currently contemplating. If you are still so much of a child that you couldn't face life outside the shelter of your great-uncle's wing, you have no business getting married. And if the prospective bridegroom isn't in a position to provide you with an adequate home (which I suspect is the truth of the matter), again you have no business marrying him.

And if he would consent to so sneaking and parasitical an enterprise as you propose—namely, perpetrating an elopement which would end in returning you to your great-uncle's home for maintenance and support, after he had legally established a husband's proprietary right over your body—then he is not a fit person to marry, because he has little or no sense of honor, integrity or self-respect. Moreover, it is obvious that you haven't the faintest idea of what love and marriage "is all about," as the saying goes, if you naively suppose that, once married, you "could still live with your uncle (apart from your husband) and be happy."

You would, as a matter of fact, be miserable to the point of nervous illness. You would be tormented by a constant foreboding sense of guilt and fear at having deceived your great-uncle; and by a constant crying need—both psychic and physical—for the reassurance of your husband's continuous companionship. Your anomalous social status would be a constant source of worry; because if you tried to keep the same type of social engagements as before, as you would need to do in order to guard the secret of your marriage from family and friends, your husband would be jealously apprehensive and resentful, in spite of all promises and earnest intentions to the contrary.

And if, on the other hand, you were to put allegiance to your husband first, and decline every invitation that might distress him, then you would become something of a "lost soul," socially—unwholesomely dependent upon his society for diversion. And when you consider that he is persona non grata with your great-uncle, and his visits, I daresay, rather dolefully circumscribed occasions in consequence, it becomes apparent that you cannot look forward to much sunshine from that quarter. So what are you doing, in contemplating elopement along the lines set forth, but laying plans for moving into a self-constructed chamber of torture?

Don't be foolish! Don't jump from the frying pan into the fire, in your desperate eagerness to relieve the tedium of your drab existence with your "old-fashioned" great uncle. I can imagine that you are starved for sympathy, understanding, love and companionship; that your guardian has never known how to play a proper parent's role in your life; that you have been denied a sufficiency of beaux and friends, of romance and light-hearted good times such as every girl craves; and that you have seized on this boy's friendship as the symbol and promise of all you feel that you have missed.

But no matter how deeply you love him, nor how sincere his devotion to you, do not marry him unless and until you are prepared to do it openly, honorably and courageously; and until he has a home prepared for you, to which you two may withdraw and start your life together, in accordance with sound tradition. For marriages which begin with elopement most frequently end in the divorce courts, as witness the old familiar saying: "Marry in haste and repent at leisure."

Full Skirts and Color

Paris (AP).—It would take a Philadelphia lawyer to tell the difference between the gypsy styles and French colonial models. Both have full, shirred skirts, bloused bodices with wide sleeves gathered into wristbands, and little V-shaped shawls to be worn over shoulders or hair. Another important point they share is lush color and lots of it. And there are plenty of jingling ornaments—in hoop earrings and dangling chains and bracelets.

Gingham Goes to Town

Washington will prove the perfect setting for ginghamaniacs this summer. Not only is the once-demure cotton gingham cool and tubable, but it is now disguised as a city slicker. To prove that the gingham girl no longer comes from down on the farm, gaze upon vivacious Dinah Shore, nationally known radio singer, above. She wears a town ensemble of gingham designed by Charles Armour, Manhattan courtourier, who has worked up a passion for humble fabrics for formal wear. Both the dress, trimmed with white pique collar and cuffs, and the waist-high jacket are of red, white and black checks

Armour Favors Gingham for Summer Wear

Cotton Material Processed Against Wrinkles and Sun

The Post Fashion Editor.

CHARLES ARMOUR is a dynamic young American designer who has positive ideas about how the American woman should dress. He is one fashion authority who has actually lived up to his belief in flattery for face and figure, despite his decade in "the creative fashion racket." Although his youthful exuberance and boyish build give Mr. Armour the look of a surprised youngster, his faith in a certain fabric or silhouette is credited as a good "steer" in the trade. Right now his confidence in gingham has established him once again as a maker of prophetic fashions.

MARSHALL ADAMS

Logical for Hot Weather

Last fall in backing his dark horse, gingham, Mr. Armour specified his belief in the humble, clean little cotton which he has long considered a winner among summer entries. Inasmuch as gingham is the fabric most likely to be chosen for Washington heat, Mr. Armour's opinion is worth listening to. With his characteristic enthusiasm, he says: "Gingham is logical for hot weather use because it has been processed against sun, wrinkles and exhaustive wear. It is so color-fast and so friendly with the washtub that it can be sudsed with ease by even the novitiate to the washtub. Once upon a time, it was a mussy little hayseed fabric which wrinkled if you looked at it, but it now has even been made crease-resistant.

"The most desirable feature of the summer gingham crop is the wonderful new color dyeing. Ginghams were once meek little cottons to be pitied or scorned as country fashions. Now their styling labels the wearer as a smart city girl who demands that common sense and summer comfort couple with town chic. Subtle, worldly tones of burgundy and aqua, brown and turquoise, and green and tan replace the gingham checks once done only in raucous table checks of red and white."

Gingham Suits

A local store has such confidence in Mr. Armour's ginghamania that a gay, amusing collection of his sophisticated little suits is already beckoning business girls and other comfort seekers. These combine the essential quality which Mr. Armour has stressed for years—flattery, which he insists is more valuable to the American girl than following Parisian dictated modes. Several of his suits comprise neatly tailored shirt maker frocks with pique collar and tie and jackets trimmed with pique cuffs. Others sponsor demure, bolero-topped, full pleated tailor-mades. Still others, with an eye for the debutante who prefers gingham even for the cocktail hour, are trimmed with pleated organdy jabots, ruffled pastel-tinted cotton collars and great pearl botton blobs.

Little girl cartwheels of rough straw or forward-tilted gingham edged sailors would lend charm to town costumes of this type. A bright suggestion for the practical-minded shopper comes in the form of Mr. Armour's shirtmaker frock with a demure white cotton blouse attached to a black crepe skirt and topped with a rose and blue gingham jacket. Logically enough, this jacket also can be worn over simple pastel linen frocks or with a tailored dark sheer—or better yet, over one of Mr. Armour's zestful white cotton evening frocks.

Your Figure, Madame!

Even Fat Lady in Circus Wants to Be Thin Glandular Avoirdupois Needs Early Treatment

DID YOU EVER wonder about the "fat lady" in the circus? Well, she would like to be slim! And I can tell you that very emphatically, having just been to see Dot Carlson, of the Ringling Circus, who owes her career to the fact that she is about 450 pounds overweight!

Miss Carlson is 5 feet 7, weighs 596 pounds, expects to hit 600, and has these measurements: Hips, 95 inches; waist, 80 inches; bust, 74 inches. The fault lies in the functioning of the pituitary gland and doctors are inclined to agree that something might have been done about it when she was a child, but that it's too late now. And in this connection, please let me diverge to point out that obesity in childhood is neither natural nor pleasant and that extreme cases should be under the treatment of an endocrinologist before it is too late!

Longs to Be Slim

Miss Carlson is resigned to being a fat lady and takes a great delight in watching the people who come to view her. Some of the women who seem most interested, she says, are those who are on diets.

Just the same, if she could be slim, she would.

"I don't think any woman wants to be considered abnormal," she told me. "The thing I would really love to be able to do is walk into a store and buy a dress in stock. I've never done that in my whole life. When I was only 14 years old, I weighed 300 pounds and how I used to agonize over my weight. I've gotten over being so sensitive, but I still have to stand and be measured for everything I wear."

From Heavyweight Family

Miss Carlson comes from a heavyweight family. One sister weighs only 6 pounds less—"and when you get up in our class, what are 6 pounds?" But if you are under the impression that the fat lady spends most of her pay check for groceries, you are very much mistaken. She eats less than many thin people and although she does not even lose weight when she is ill, the doctors are always giving her tonics and eggs and milk to build her up! Furthermore, she would appear to be the final proof that avoirdupois is not compatible with optimum health. The first time I went around to see her, she was at home with a severe cold. Later I was told that she had pneumonia twice and pluriisy twice and that not long ago the doctors decided she was about to contract tuberculosis.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

Summer Brings Transformation to Manhattan Gay Crowds of Students and Sightseers Arrive

New York, May 17.

THE MURRAY HILL apartment house where we try to sleep in the heart of Manhattan has suddenly shed its winter skin and become its summer self—a really amazing transformation. Especially in this World's Fair year, when the entire city seems even goofier than usual, if that is possible.

ALICE HUGHES

All the windows on our courtyard are thrown wide, and the warm weather noises pour in. Kitchen fights with the hired girl, 20 different radio programs from 20 assorted sets, the crash of fallen crockery and, most of all, the thumping and pounding of the mighty artisans who, each spring, knock this house apart and then reassemble it in slightly different form. You can well understand that this is a great help to literary composition. Ooops!—excuse me. The firewagons have just gone down Thirty-ninth street, sirens wide open. Just hand me a couple of aspirins, there's a lamb.

The very personnel of the big igloo has undergone a startling change. In winter it is inhabited largely by elderly, quiet (and shall I say stuffy?) ladies and gents. But when the weather heats up, these free souls creak off to some rural retreat, subletting their apartments to younger, snappier folk—mostly girls here for Columbia summer school. And this year, of course, to people who are going to make a summer of it at the fair if it murders them, which it probably will.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Just because Joan Bennett and Woolworth Donahue, the perennial dime-store kid, went dancing at El Morocco four straight evenings, local gadabouts tried to dream a serious romance out of it. Fie, fie. Wollie has always liked the Hollywood dream princesses. Four years ago he was reported engaged to pretty Wendy Barrie, and since then he has beaued lots of them around town when they came to New York to rest up in the night clubs.

The Gentler Sex

BY MALVINA LINDSAY

No Mother to Guide Them

SHE FELT her first stab of homesickness when she went into the diner for dinner. What were they all doing now at home? Would John remember to make Buddy drink his milk and Jane eat her vegetables? And Eddie use his napkin? She bet Viola had cooked nothing but pork chops and fried potatoes—it would be just like her, so she could get away early to go to the movies.

Oh, well, there was no use worrying. A woman ought to be able to get away from home once in a while. Why, this was the first time in ten years she had ever left the children for a single night. Besides, it wasn't as if she were on a pleasure trip. This was really a sort of duty, being a delegate to a club convention. After all, you were supposed to do something for the world about you . . .

WHILE the porter was making up the berths she sat in the observation car and chatted absently with the other delegates. Looking out on the glowering landscape flitting past, she wondered if John had checked up in the children's bedrooms to see if the windows were open . . . and if there were no drafts coming in. And if it rained or got cold in the night, would he get up to see that the windows were shut so the curtains wouldn't be ruined . . . and if the children had enough cover? She bet he wouldn't—he always slept so soundly. And he'd probably let the children run around outside without their wraps . . . and go to school without their rubbers if it rained . . . and they'd all probably get colds and maybe have pneumonia . . .

Now why on earth had she ever come away? Running around over the country like the club women in the cartoons and letting everything go wrong at home. If she were only there now in her old faded blue bathrobe . . . making the rounds of the house . . . seeing the windows were down and the doors locked . . . and the milk bottle out . . . and Big Boy, the cat, safely in from his nocturnal rambles . . .

IN THE EXCITEMENT of ensuing convention days, she forgot her uneasiness for long stretches of time. But disturbing memories continued to creep in. Were the children having too much candy? Were they doing their home work so that they wouldn't fail in all their studies? Was John making Eddie take his bath and change his underclothes . . . and seeing that he didn't run around too much with that common Jimpson boy? Was he seeing that Jane didn't spend too much time at the Chumleys . . . and that she didn't go to any of those glamour girl movies? Was he remembering to brush his own clothes and get his suits pressed? Oh, he would probably go to the office in his pajamas now that she wasn't there to keep after him.

Then there was Buddy. Was Viola keeping him clean? And watching that he didn't get out in the street with his coaster wagon? There were so many accidents . . . Visions of ambulances, hospitals, white-coated doctors would rise before her and for a moment she would become panicky. Then she would resolutely bring her mind back to the report of the delegate from See-Saw, Ariz.

THE TRAIN home seemed to creep like a tortoise. John's letter had said they were all right but—well, you couldn't depend on that. She visioned the yard overgrown with tall weeds, littered with handbills. There were broken window panes in the house where the Jimpson boy had thrown baseballs. Inside the place was a shambles . . . mud and grass on the carpets . . . dirty dishes and pans stacked in the kitchen . . . Viola gone—she had undoubtedly quarreled with the children and left by this time—everywhere, confusion, chaos. Well, if she ever got things straightened out, one thing certain, she would never leave home again.

JOHN met her at the station. He was wearing a new straw hat and his clothes were freshly pressed

"Everything all right?" she asked breathlessly.

"The children well?"

"Never had a sick minute?"

"Viola still there?"

"Sure."

"Did you have enough to eat?"

"Plenty."

"Well, how did you all get along?"

"Perfectly." He picked up her grips. "Have a good time?" he asked.

Codfish Cakes For Cocktails

Beacon Hill serves fish cakes for Friday luncheon and for Sunday morning breakfast with beans. They also serve them with cocktails. When used for cocktails they add a bit of onion juice, a dash of tabasco and Worcestershire sauce, a shake of paprika and shape into tiny balls and fry in deep fat.

BEACON HILL FISH CAKES

Wash 1 cup salt codfish and shred. Place in cold water and bring slowly to a boil. Drain. Cook the fish and 1 cup peeled diced potatoes until potatoes are done. Drain well. Mash mixture well and add 1 tablespoon butter, dash of pepper, and 1 egg well beaten. Form into cakes and fry in deep fat, 385 degrees, for 1 minute until brown. Serve with tartar sauce.

Society Views Wistaria At Blooms' Patio Party

Discussion of Blossoms Shares Interest With Royal Visit; Many Gowns Match the Flowers

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

THEIR MAJESTIES' forthcoming visit is society's chief topic of talk these days, but yesterday it divided the spotlight with the wistaria, in full flower, roofing the patio of the Bloom house on Columbia road.

A score or so of official, diplomatic and residential notables invited to the "at home" given by Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom and Miss Vera Bloom spent a good part of their time with eyes turned upward, admiring the wealth of purple blossoms, hanging grape-wise overhead.

"Are they artificial?" asked one guest, unable to believe such perfection could be real.

"Certainly," replied the host, eyes twinkling. "I bought them at the dime store and hung them especially for the party."

Truth is, however, the Blooms' wistaria blooms have been a signal for a patio party in many past springs, and yesterday's annual event lived up to the Bloom tradition of hospitality in every way.

Centered with a fountain and goldfish pond, the patio was a moving mass of official and social celebrities from 5 o'clock until long after 7, the final hour set for the party. Guests came early, as they usually do at the Blooms', and many stayed late.

Wearing a frock of brown and white figured crepe, Mrs. Bloom received informally at the doorway leading to the patio. Standing nearby was Miss Bloom, whose print dress of mauve and dahlia blended with the wistaria. Representative Bloom was here, there and everywhere, chatting with one cluster of guests and then another and doing his hosting duties generally as if he never enjoyed anything more.

Six Hostesses At Tea Tables

Among those assisting during the afternoon was Mrs. William E. Borah, whose broad-brimmed lilac hat and figured frock matched the wistaria. "That's why I wore them," she said.

Also, presiding at the tea table, at one time or another, were Mme. Ertegun, wife of the Turkish Ambassador; Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, whose navy blue outfit was most becoming; Lady Chalkley, Mrs. McCeney Werlich and Mrs. William H. King. Still another taking over the tea pouring before the final hour rolled around was Mme. Munthe de Morgentierne, who gets my vote for wearing the most stunning ensemble there. Since Norwegians are still observing semimourning for the late Queen Maud, Mme. Morgenstierne had chosen for yesterday's party a gray two-piece suit, trimmed with gray fox and set off with a matching turban and a purple veil. The only additional touch of color in her outfit was the tiny red, blue and white flag pinned to her coat, all by way of observing Norway's independence day.

Among those present: Mrs. Cordell Hull, who earlier in the day had served as a hostess at the picnic given at the White House . . . the French Ambassador, moving through the throng and seeming to know everybody there . . . Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, arriving toward the latter part of the party for a brief stay and completely surrounded the entire time . . . Mrs. George Barnett, who has been ill for the past few months, being greeted on all sides and adding her own special note of gayety to the get-together . . . Miss Sibella Skidelsky, who has a new hat for every occasion, wearing a most becoming one—a small blue straw turban trimmed with a tall red feather to match the three huge strawberries ornamenting her navy-blue frock . . . the Minister of the Union of South Africa and Mrs. Ralph William Close chatting with a group of friends. About what? Why the arrival of Their Majesties, of course.

Many Notables Seen in Throng

Still others there: Mrs. Truxtun Beale, in a smart black ensemble . . . Thomas Burke talking with Mme. Hurban . . . Mrs. Breckinridge Long arriving toward the end of the party and several other guests lingering on to chat with her . . . Mr. and Mrs. Stanley K. Hornbeck, as popular a pair as I saw there . . . Col. and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim threading their way through the crowd, she wearing a handsome woods' green ensemble . . . The Minister of Finland, Hjalmar J. Procope, glimpsed on his way out . . . Mrs. Thomas Burke, wearing a smart pink frock with a burgundy hat and other accessories and looking unusually lovely . . . William Lacy and Robert Webster, a chatting twosome by the cocktail table; nearby Mrs. Lacy in a group that included Lady Marler, Mr. and Mrs. William P. MacCracken and Miss Carolyn Chantry.

New Figurines Are on Display

The Minister of Portugal and Mme. Bianchi were there, also the Minister of Ireland and Mrs. Robert Brennan, Mme. Fotitch, wife of the Yugoslav Minister; Mr. and Mrs. Pierrepont Moffat, the Minister of Latvia and Mme. Bilmanis, Jacques Truelle, of the French Embassy; Mrs. Hamilton Fish, Mr. and Mrs. Merchant Mahoney, of the Canadian Legation; the Cuban Minister-Counselor and Senora de Baron and dozens of others.

On the way out, a number of guests had an additional treat in seeing Mrs. Bloom's most recently finished set of figurines—ten in all—depicting dancing ladies in a variety of colorful costumes. Last wistaria season, she had on display for the first time another group of dainty dolls that she had made. All part of a table centerpiece, they were dressed as French court ladies of a by-gone era. "My next set is to be All-American," said Mrs. Bloom, who rarely has one thing finished before she has planned another.

Mrs. S. T. Ansell, Jr. Gives Party for Kathleen Knox

Mrs. Samuel T. Ansell, jr., was hostess yesterday afternoon at a small cocktail party and surprise shower in honor of Miss Kathleen Knox, whose marriage to Richard Austin Smith of Washington will take place on Saturday in the Walter Reed Memorial Chapel.

Guests included Mrs. Corcoran Thom, jr., Miss Kate Scully, Mrs. Austin Sullivan, Miss Anne Hollaway, Mrs. I. D. Kirkland, jr., and Miss Peggy Essary, sister of Mrs. Ansell.

Mrs. Summerlin Hostess

Mrs. George T. Summerlin, jr., will entertain at dinner on Wednesday.

Making Plans for Garden Party

1,000 Are Due At Garden Fete

More than 1,000 civic and social leaders of Washington are expected to attend the garden party which will be given on May 22 at the home of Mrs. Charles Carroll Glover on Massachusetts avenue. The event, which is for the purpose of acquainting Washington more thoroughly with the work of Community Chest agencies, will take place from 4 to 6:30 p. m. Exhibits, set up by the various member groups of the Chest, will tell the story of what these agencies are doing. Plans for the garden party were made yesterday at the Community Chest League's opening spring conference at the home of Mrs. Dwight F. Davis.

Children who benefit from the year-round and city-wide recreational and character-building programs of Community Chest supported agencies will appear at the garden party in a colorful round of folk songs, dances and camp and craft activities.

Taking part in the educational entertainment features will be children from Barney Neighborhood House and Friendship House in dancing and songs; the Boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. in an Indian dance; the Girl Scouts Glee Club; Northwest House in an African dance, and St. Rose Technical School, Georgetown Children's House, the Washington Boys Club, Christ Child Settlement House, Southwest Settlement, the Girl Reserves of the Y. W. C. A., and a group of small boys from the Episcopal Home for Children.

In addition to the entertainment features, exhibits set up at various spots throughout the grounds will consist of a showing of hand-crafted articles from Barney Neighborhood House and Friendship House; a demonstration by an Instructive Visiting Nurse, and puppets made by the children from Northwest Settlement House.

Mrs. Stanley Reed, wife of Justice Reed, chairman of the Community Chest League.

Miss Aimee Rusk To Become Bride

The engagement of Miss Aimee Virginia Rusk to Frank Mullen, of West Haven, Conn., has been announced by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rusk, of Kensington, Md. The wedding is scheduled to take place some time in the early summer.

The bride-to-be who is teaching at Gordon Junior High School in Washington, is a graduate of the Wilson Teachers College.

Mr. Mullen, who will receive his D. D. S. at the Georgetown School of Dentistry in June, received his B. A. degree at the Catholic University of America.

Patricia Hurley To Make Bow At Party June 17

Add to the unprecedented number of young ladies who plan to make their bows to society this summer the name of Miss Patricia Hurley, who will be presented by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Hurley, at a garden party Saturday, June 17, from 4 to 7.

The function will take place at Belmont, the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Hurley, near Leesburg, Va. Next winter, during the Christmas holidays, they will give a ball in Washington for their daughter, who is their oldest child.

Mr. Hurley is a former Secretary of War.

Sister Feted By Mrs. Stork

Mrs. William Stork, jr., of Amsterdam, The Netherlands, who is occupying the apartment of her mother, Mrs. Elonzo Tyner, during the latter's absence in the West, was hostess at a small dinner party last night at the Shoreham blue room in honor of her sister, Mrs. Tyner Dugdale. The occasion was Mrs. Dugdale's birthday.

The other guests included the Naval Attache of the German Embassy and Frau Wittheoft-Emden, the Secretary of the Portuguese Legation, Joao de Deus Ramos, Mr. and Mrs. Richard White Miller and Hugo R. Rennert.

Princess Leaves For Home in Paris Aboard Aquitania

Princess Margaret Boncompagni sailed yesterday on the Aquitania for Paris, where she maintains an apartment and lives most of the year, with the exception of her annual winter visit to Washington. She has been in Boston since leaving her apartment at the Mayflower.

Also on board the Aquitania is T. K. Bewley, returning to London for duty after serving as Financial Counselor of the British Embassy.

Elizabeth Nash Plans Wedding

Miss Elizabeth Seymour Nash, daughter of Mrs. A. Allen Nash, of Washington and Hesperides Farm, Warrenton, has completed plans for her wedding June 17 to Dr. John Whitall Nicholson, of Moorestown, Pa. The ceremony will take place at 4 o'clock at St. James' Church in Warrenton and will be followed by a reception at the farm.

As her matron of honor, Miss Nash will have Miss Dorothy Nicholson, sister of the bridegroom-to-be, who will be married to Ralph Ellis June 3, and her sister, Miss Rita Nash, will be maid of honor. The bridesmaids are the Misses Louise Burke, Dudley Gregory and Mary Alice Sturdevant, of Washington; Sylvia Carter, of Boston; Frances Talcott and Helene Peters of Rye, N. Y., and Madeline Drake, of Warrenton.

Latin-Americans, Hosts and Guests At Glen Echo

Several dinners, preceding a merry evening at Glen Echo, were held last night by and for several members of the Latin-American diplomatic contingent.

Pio Correa, attache of the Brazilian embassy, entertained a group of friends before going on to the amusement park, and Miss Anna Wolcott Archibald was hostess in honor of the noted Ecuadorean artist, Luiz Crespo, brother of Manuel Crespo, First Secretary of the Ecuadorean embassy. Her guests were Mrs. Frederick Beatrice Corbert, who entertained at cocktails before the dinner; the Military Attache of the Cuban embassy and Senora de Munilla; Senor and Senora de Crespo; Klemens Johnsson, Miss Ludmilla Floss, Harold Boone and Jose Barretto.

Others who joined the party at Glen Echo were Mr. and Mrs. Sophocles Papas, Senor and Senora Jose Tercero, Senor and Senora H. Martinez Amores, and Miss Anne Myers, who also gave a dinner beforehand.

Mrs. Roosevelt To Hear Four Musical Groups

She and Cabinet Ladies Entertain at White House Picnic

Music—and still more music—is on Mrs. Roosevelt's calendar the next few days. Four groups of musicians are scheduled to play for her at the White House within a week.

The first, a quartet of harpists from Atlanta, will perform for her tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Two choirs—the Stout Institute Chorus and the A Capella Choir from Eau Clair, Wis.—will sing for her Saturday afternoon from 4 until 5 o'clock, and on Monday, she will hear the Dayton (Ohio) Children's Chorus.

Meanwhile, her calendar, as usual, has its full quota of other appointments. Yesterday, following her weekly press conference, she and the Cabinet hostesses entertained the Senate ladies at the annual White House picnic.

To Attend Dinner This Evening

This evening, Mrs. Roosevelt will attend the Youth Council's dinner for Dr. Homer Rainey, retiring director of the American Youth Commission. The First Lady will participate in the forum following the dinner.

At noon tomorrow Mrs. Roosevelt will receive a Farm Bureau group at the White House, and later, shortly after 1 o'clock, she will make a three-minute radio speech over N. B. C. At 3:30 she will receive the Dobb's Miniature Harp Club of Atlanta.

Students to Be Week-End Guests

The graduating class of the Todhunter School, New York, will spend the week-end at the White House, but the First Lady will leave her house guests for several hours on Saturday while she attends the picnic at Greenbelt, Md. This event is being arranged by Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the Bureau of Home Economics.

The spring fete of the woman's National Democratic Club is on Mrs. Roosevelt's schedule for Monday afternoon, and later she will leave for New York, where on the following day she will participate in the program in connection with Rural Woman's Day at the New York World's Fair. The First Lady's next press conference will be held on Monday morning at 11 o'clock. Wednesday, May 31, has been set as the date for the Annual White House dance for "the Fourth Estate."

Miss Julia Brett Will Be Wed to Ensign Rousee

Homer Brett, United States Consul at Lima, Peru, announces the engagement of his daughter, Miss Julia Wellborn Brett, to Ensign George M. Rousee. The wedding will take place on Monday, May 29, at 4 p. m., and owing to the recent death of the bride's mother only the two families and close friends will be present.

Mr. Rousee, who is the son of Mrs. Katherine L. Rousee and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. William Lang, of Washington, was a member of the class of 1937 at the United States Naval Academy.

Winifred Rogers Visits in New York

Miss Winifred L. Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jones Rogers, of Washington, is visiting Miss Frances L. Tooke, of New York, daughter of Prof. Charles W. Tooke, of New York University. While there she will see the World's Fair.

Upon leaving New York Miss Rogers will visit friends in Rutherford, N. J., before returning by plane to the Capital.

Mrs. Eldridge Jordan Entertains At Cocktails in Her Georgetown Home

SEVERAL PERSONS who don't ordinarily go in for cocktail parties were present at Mrs. Eldridge Jordan's yesterday. Among them were Dr. James Mitchell, the well-known surgeon; Mrs. Frank Noyes, and Mrs. William Mason Wright, wife of Gen. Wright, who stepped over from her home directly across the street in Georgetown.

Most of the guests elected to go out into Mrs. Jordan's large and attractive garden, which, like all gardens in that neighborhood, is surrounded by a high brick wall. Pots of scarlet geraniums gave color to the scene, and under a big tree in the corner was a table and chairs.

THE charming blonde hostess wore a white crepe sports frock with buttons down the front and a yellow rose at the neckline. Like so many Washington parties, this was a pleasant mixture of older and younger people.

Among those present:

Mrs. George T. Pettingill, in a sheer black frock with a flowing cape, asking for Frederick Nichols to pour her a "lady's whsiky" . . . former Senator and Mrs. Hiram Bingham, Mrs. Bingham in a purple and while figured print, with a white straw hat . . . Mrs. Henry Latrobe Roosevelt, Mrs. Jordan's next door neighbor and close friend, and Mrs. Peter Gerry.

Dr. and Mrs. Kurt Hetzel . . . Miss Hazel Edgar and Mrs. Mary MacCracken Jones, with their heads together over a good story. . . . Mrs. Mondell Gregg topped off her blue print with her becoming "bird hat" . . . Ralph Snowden Hill, inviting Mrs. Herbert Howard to a cocktail party May 27, and she declining, as she leaves on Monday for Philadelphia, Capt. Howard's new station.

MRS. Theodore Wilkinson . . . Mrs. Wallach Merriam chatting with Miss Ruth Jones . . . Miss Angelica Lloyd, in a blue dress which emphasized her becoming sunburn . . . Mrs. Gale McLean, in navy blue and white . . . Mr. and Mrs. Leonide Ourusoff, the latter wearing a navy blue sheer dress and a hat to match topped with a pink rose.

THE Naval Attache of the French Embassy and Mme. Benech are so hospitable that when they plan a supper party it grows progressively bigger and bigger as they add friend after friend. Last Last night the supper which they gave in honor of Commander and Mrs. Hamilton Bryan turned out to be a gathering of 50, with more coming in afterwards for dancing and a glass of champagne.

GUESTS SAT at small tables to dine on an all-American menu including tomatoes stuffed with rice and sweetbread patties.

Mme. Benech was gowned in a chiffon print with red flowers predominating while Mrs. Bryan wore a dress of blue and cerise tones.

Filling a large portion of the guest list were members of the French aeronautic mission who have been in this country for several months. The contingent from the French Embassy included the military attache, Col. Emmanuel Lombard and Mme. Lombard; Jacques Dumaine, the first secretary; the second secretary, Baron James Baeyens and Baronne Baeyens, she in white lace's and the third secretary, Charles Lucet, and Mme. Lucet, she in black net. Also present from the French Embassy was the air attache, Lieut. Col. Rene Weiser and Mme. Weiser.

STILL OTHERS at the gay party were Mrs. Harold Hinton, who wore a gown of black lace over flesh-colored satin; the Counselor of the Netherlands Legation, Count van Rechteren Limpurg and Countess van Rechteren Limpurg, the latter in a dirndl-effect frock of orange and white, and Commander and Mrs. Paul Cassard.

Still more were Count and Countess Roberti, she wearing a black and white checked print; Mrs. Anthony Coleby, who with Commander Coleby, leaves today by plane for a short trip to the West Coast; George Duca, and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Clark.

Mme. Bianchi Revives Memories of Poetess

Niece of Emily Dickinson, Speaking at Dinner, Refutes Idea Aunt Was Gloomy Mystic

By Jesse Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

Mme. Bianchi, niece of Emily Dickinson, was guest of honor and speaker last night at the poetry dinner of the Washington branch of the American Association of University Women. Introduced by Dr. Carrie Weaver Smith, she told something of her aunt as she remembered her and of her home in Amherst, Mass.

Mme. Bianchi lives in the home of her parents, built in 1856 and now filled with furniture from Miss Dickinson's house. The two places are connected by a little path "just big enough for two who love each other" for only by putting their arms around each other can two persons walk on it conveniently, she said.

It was to her parents' home that Emily Dickinson "came for all her fun." Mme. Bianchi explained and this house has happy memories whereas that in which the poet lived seems somber. She refused the idea that her aunt was a gloomy mystic, and pictured her as an understanding person with a sense of humor which came out in her dealing with her young niece.

"I used to parade my beaux under her window—not serious beaux, because I was too young—only 19 when she died. She would write a little note "Emily has seen and will signify further." Then she would come over and let me talk about the boy. If she did not like him, she would say so in unmistakable terms.

The first floor of Mme. Bianchi's home is devoted chiefly to memorials of Miss Dickinson. There is the bureau in which her poems were found and, under glass on the top Mme. Bianchi keeps several manuscripts. There is a collection of first editions and, in a bookcase, kept locked, are Emily Dickinson's books. The house is not open to the public, but persons who are interested in seeing these things because of their love of the poet's work are welcomed.

There is a vast quantity of material to which outside biographers have never had access but which will contribute to the enlarged "Life of Emily Dickinson" on which Mme. Bianchi is now working with Alfred Leete Hampson. Mr. Hampson wrote the preface to the collected poems. Her works are now being translated into three languages.

Dr. Smith read a letter from Mrs. Roosevelt expressing appreciation of Miss Dickinson's poems and the hope they would be "more and more loved and known."

The dinner program last night also included the poetry awards.

Miss Myrl Rhine, who is publicity director for the club, was awarded first prize on her poem, "Refugees." The prize is an early edition of Emily Dickinson's works. Second prize went to Miss Emma Thom, for "The Titanic," the prize, a Van Doren anthology of British and American verse. Miss Ruth Henderson, chairman of the poetry group, awarded the prizes. Mrs Richard Hogue, chairman of the group studying Chinese translations, announced Mrs. G. R. Wilhelm as winner in this contest.

Mrs. Morris Here; Legion Auxiliary Head

National President Makes Official Visit To D. C. Group

Mrs. James Morris, of Bismark, N. Dak., national president of the American Legion Auxiliary, yesterday made her official visit to the D. C. Department. She was entertained at a small dinner at the Mayflower and later formally welcomed at an executive meeting held at 1500 Rhode Island avenue.

Miss Minnie May Hardy, department president, and Mrs. Ella Louise Warren, department secretary, met the train when she arrived at 6:30 yesterday morning. During the day she was taken to places of interest including Arlington Cemetery, and this afternoon she will attend the White House garden party as will Miss Hardy.

Juniors Take Part in Program

Last night preceding the executive meeting, Mrs. Morris was escorted to the platform by the American Legion guard of honor and presented with a bouquet of roses by the Juniors. The flowers were brought one by one to Dorothy Mace and Louise Ralph, who head the junior organization, by members of the group in uniform.

The program also included solos by Mrs. Alicia Kohrt, of Treasury unit, and selections by the Choral Society and the Colored Juniors' Glee Club.

Committee Heads Present Reports

Committee chairmen, whose reports were heard by the national president, were: Mrs. Mildred Bell, on child welfare; Mrs. Ada Riley, rehabilitation, of which Mrs. Morris was national chairman for the American Legion for three years; Mrs. Mary Killeen for the poppy committee which has made 18,000 flowers this year; Mrs. Mary Klaaphaak, who represented a local membership of more than 1,200; Mrs. Frances Snow, junior chairman; Mrs. Kathleen Abreo, community service; Mrs. Edith W. Quinn, legislation; Miss Margaret Gerry, finance; Mrs. Jessie Curran, Americanism; Mrs. Mary Corwin, national defense, and Mrs. Margaret Carroll, national news.

Official guests at the dinner in honor of Mrs. Morris were Mrs. Thelma Bailey, national chapeau of the 8 and 40, who is here from Birmingham, Mich., and Miss Hazel Nielson, past department president for North Dakota.

Skit Closes Parent-Teacher Congress

District P.-T. A. Closes Session

A "no speech" banquet closed the two-day convention of the D. C. Congress of Parents and Teachers last night at the Mayflower Hotel. More than 400 reservations were made—a record attendance for the annual P.-T. A. affair.

The dinner program was devoted to entertainment after two days of reports, business and serious discussions. Mrs. Walter B. Fry, the retiring president, and Mrs. C. D. Lowe, incoming president of the congress, with other officers were at the head table, and Mrs. Emil Smith, chairman of the dinner, was mistress of ceremonies.

Featured on the program was a skit, "Confidentially—Off the Record," written by Mrs. Edward R. Seal, director of publicity for the District congress. It was a take-off on a called meeting of the executive committee. Members were known by their hats and amusing names were substituted for their own, "Mrs. Broil" for Mrs. Fry; "Mrs. High" for Mrs. Lowe; "Mrs. Chesterfield for Mrs. J. Phil Campbell, and so forth.

The role of Mrs. Broil was taken by Mrs. Clare Jean Speaker; that of Mrs. High by Mrs. J. Hess; Mrs. Chesterfield by Mrs. Robert Lyon; Mrs. Pellet (Mrs P. C. Ellet), by Mrs. Robert Snow; Mrs. Deadtwig (Mrs. W. T. Greenleaf), by Mrs. Paul Neuhaus; Mrs. Foyer (Mrs. W. M. Moyer), by Mrs. M. B. Root; Mrs. Howling (Mrs. E. J. Dowling), by Mrs. William B. Calvert; Mrs. Fish (Mrs. Seal), by Mrs. M. W. Brandt; Mrs. Kickley (Mrs. E. B. Buckley), by Mrs. L. B. Habecker.

A second skit, "A la Carte," was presented by the Dramatic Club of Buchanan Parent-Teacher Association, with Mrs. Edward F. Koegel in charge, and the Mothersingers under the direction of Mrs. T. David Gates, presented a group of songs. There was also music during the dinner by a group from the faculty of the National Institute of Musical Art.

Association Aids 310 Children

The Children's Protective Association yesterday held a luncheon meeting at the offices of the association, 1907 S street northwest. Members discussed the recent survey of the public child welfare services in the District which resulted in three major recommendations the association, out of its 20 years' experience in protective case work and foster home care for children, strongly urges.

Miss Mildred Terrett, executive secretary of the association, reported to the board of directors that 310 children in the month of April were given a preventive case work service by the case workers of the association and that 65 of these children were cared for during this period in private foster family homes. Dr. Loren B. T. Johnson, chief of the psychiatrist clinic at Children's Hospital and one of the directors of the Children's Protective Association, also made a report to illustrate the use of foster home care as a means of preventing the development of delinquency.

Miss Gude Making Arrangements for Zonta Convention

MISS ESTHER GUDE

Miss Esther C. M. Gude, Zonta international convention chairman, returned yesterday from White Sulphur Springs, where she has been making final arrangements for the convention to be held at the Greenbrier June 22, 23 and 24. Judge Camille Kelly, of the Memphis Juvenile Court, will address the convention's Saturday night banquet. In addition to the business meetings, Miss Gude has arranged for an outdoor luncheon, and Friday, June 23, is to be a "Play Day."

About 20 members of the Washington Zonta Club will attend the convention. Miss Mary Sigman has been elected delegate and Miss Emma T. Hahm is alternate.

The Zontians were addressed at their weekly luncheon yesterday at the Y. W. C. A. by Miss Julia Pond, of the National Personnel Service, and Miss Mary Sigman, the new president, presided. Miss Pond, who cited several cases to illustrate her experience in trying to find competent office workers for employers as well as to locate jobs for workers, urged that women in office be more capable.

Choose Your Lamps With a Real Purpose says "Mary Annette," Decorating Hostess of The Hecht Co.

Once lamps were a pure necessity, horrible to look at . . . and clean. With the advent of electricity, lamps took on an important role in decorating, and not so many years ago reached the stage where they had grown so "fancy," their original purpose was almost forgotten. At last lamps have come into their own. Modern lamps are designed, first of all, with their primary purpose given first consideration . . . good, effective lighting. Their style follows closely those of your other furnishings. Early American lamps of maple . . . delicate china and metal lamps for period rooms . . . unique polished wood and chromium lamps for modern rooms. It's easy to find the style you want . . . but the next step is to place it where it fulfills a definite need. See that every armchair has its accompanying reading lamp . . . either floor or table style. Use your small, colorful lamps for decoration only . . . to light up a dark corner at night and lend color to it by day. And above all, avoid fussy shades. State definitely what purpose you wish your lamp to serve, when you make your purchase.

Consult "Mary Annette" or any of our other decorators, at any time without any cost or obligation whatsoever. If you prefer an appointment, call NAtional 5100, Branch 500.

British Rulers May Feast On Hot Dogs

First Lady Undecided Whether to Give Picnic Or Garden Party

How and where the King and Queen of England sleep, what they eat or how much is of no concern to the British Government so long as Their Majesties are safe, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt revealed yesterday at her press conference.

Beset by indecision over whether her royal guests will be feted with a picnic or a garden party and whether they will be fed hot dogs when they visit Hyde Park June 11, Mrs. Roosevelt let it be known neither the British Government nor any individual Briton offered suggestions about entertainment. The government, however, will furnish two detectives from Scotland Yard to augment forces of the Secret Service in seeing that Their Majesties come to no harm at Hyde Park or at the White House.

As for what they will eat, Mrs. Roosevelt revealed she was inclined to the picnic with hot dogs, while the President's mother, Mrs. James S. Roosevelt, favored a garden party. Hot dogs will be on the menu anyway, she said, if the weather isn't too warm.

Members of the royal party who will stay at the White House, it was announced, will be Lady Spencer, lady-in-waiting to the Queen; Alan Lascelles, the King's secretary, and two Scotland Yard operatives, two valets and two maids.

The Roosevelt family will provide the only exception to the "strictly official" list of guests for the State dinner and musicale the night of June 8, Mrs. Roosevelt said. They may include the President's mother, Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt, Franklin Roosevelt, jr., and John Roosevelt.

A special effort will be made to obtain representative American artists for the evening's musicale, and all who appear will be presented to the King and Queen, Mrs. Roosevelt said.

Meanwhile, Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador, has invited all Washington correspondent to attend a press conference at the Embassy at 10 a. m. today, in relation to the visit to Washington of the King and Queen.

The Ambassador has not been in the habit of holding conferences with the press, and the invitation yesterday was taken to indicate that Sir Ronald will supervise relations with the press during the royal visit.

Queen Dazzles Quebec With Gems

another French name and a demitasse.

The King smoked a cigarette, and the men followed suit. The Queen, however, passed up the cigarettes, and so, of course, the other women had to forego them, too.

Altogether it must have been a memorable day for the King and Queen, a day of vivid contrasts, a day which heard them welcomed with booming guns and pealing church bells, English "hurrahs" and French "vives."

But what stood out at the end of the day—what will longest be remembered here and in Buckingham Palace—was a spectacle on the lofty Plains of Abraham, where Wolfe conquered Montcalm in 1759 and thus ended the dream of a new France.

30,000 Children Greet Them

As the King and Queen arrived on this once gory field, they saw 30,000 school children gathered before them, shepherded by priests and nuns, and fluttering tiny flags for all they were worth. In the dazzle of color could be seen the British Union Jack, the French tri-color and the gold, white and purple of the Vatican.

A band struck up a familiar tune—"God Save the King" to those in the Empire, "My Country 'Tis of Thee" to us below the border—and the children began to sing.

"Dieu sauve Le Roi," they chorused.

"En Lui nous avons foi——"

King George, who had seemed nervous earlier, tapping his sword hilt occasionally or touching his collar, smiled with genuine abandon, and the Queen, who smiles easier, did likewise.

The tune continued, but then the language changed:

"God Save Our Gracious King,

"Long Live Our Noble King—"

In the voices of the children, using one language and then the other, was the voice of Canada, and also testimony to the genius of British diplomacy, which has won the support of a people in this particular case by never denying them their culture or their religion.

During an interlude in the singing on the old battlefield, three little girls wearing white cloaks and whit white wreaths on their hair went to the grandstand to present the Queen with a bouquet of flowers. Eight years old — the same age as Princess Margaret Rose — they, too, typified Canada.

One was Paule Delage, who attends a French school for Catholics; another was Emily Fitzpatrick, who goes to an English language school for Irish Catholics, and the third was Marguerite Stobo, who attends a school for Protestants.

After the children had presented their bouquet and had curtsied, the Queen could be seen talking to them exuberantly. Later they said she had asked them their names and how old they were.

"The Queen smelled sweet," added Emily Fitzpatrick.

In the whirl of events that engulfed the British sovereigns from morning until night there was plenty of chance to observe them at close hand.

King George is tall, has blue eyes and brown hair, and a healthy color. It has been said that if he grew a beard, he would be a double for his father. But it is just as true—and this is not always brought out in photographs—that he looks a lot like his older and somewhat shorter brother, the Duke of Windsor. The resemblance is noted particularly in the nose, which has a tilt to it, and in the crinkly eyes.

Queen Elizabeth has real reason to be vexed with the camera lense. Though not statuesque, she is attractive and vivacious. She has a color that couldn't possibly be due altogether to cosmetics, and a striking and friendly pair of blue eyes.

They talked a lot together, this 44-year-old "crisis King" and his Scottish Queen, whose marriage was a love match. They were chatting when they were first spied on the promenade deck of the Empress of Australia this morning. They began chatting as soon as they entered the maroon-colored Royal car and started through Quebec's narrow, flag-lined streets for the Parliamentary halls.

In the course of the day, Their Majesties must have shaken hands with 1,000 persons.

The curtsying of the women and the bowing of the men took many and varied forms. Some of the women seemed to dip, others to sway, while the men did everything from a bob of the head to a jackknife bow of the old Potsdam style and some backed away from the King and Queen, only to bump others who didn't seem to know just what they were doing.

The Empress of Australia, a chaste white in contrast with the foreboding gray of the two British cruisers and the two Canadian destroyers, streamed down the St. Lawrence, the high banks of which were lined with waving thousands.

Prime Minister MacKenzie King and Lieutenant Governor J. E. Patenaude of Quebec went aboard to welcome Their Majesties. A few minutes later, two British marines appeared above the gangplank to sound their flourishes, and that was the signal for the King and Queen to make their historic strides onto Canadian soil.

They came down the gangplank together, he in his admiral's uniform, fore and aft hat, and with 14 decorations gleaming on his breast, and she in a dove gray costume that seemed too light for the weather.

The King and Queen, sitting behind bullet-proof glass in their open car, started up the hills to the legislative buildings, where they sat on thrones, heard the speeches, and held the second reception.

Next was a state luncheon in the Chateau Frontenac. The King made a speech and the band played Annie Laurie for the Scotland-born Queen.

At today's luncheon, the King spoke twice, in English and in French, in English to MacKenzie King and in French to Senator Dandurand and, through him, to his French-speaking subjects.

"I realize that this moment is historic," he said to the prime minister, speaking slowly and distinctly with no trace of the impediment of speech he has conquered. "It is the first time that a British King has crossed the Atlantic. I stand today on the soil of North America. Here, in the past two centuries, through loss and through gain, the British commonwealth of Nations has been largely molded into its present form."

The King obviously referred to England's acquisition of Canada from the French and her loss of the American colonies 17 years later.

"You, in Canada," he said, "have already fulfilled part of the Biblical promise and obtained dominion from sea to sea. You are now engaged in fulfilling the latter part of that promise in consolidating government from the river to the ends of the earth, from the St. Lawrence to the Arctic snows."

To Dandurand he said, "It was here that the door to Canada was first opened and it was here that the Canadian nation was born."

"It was here," he continued, "that great exploits were accomplished—leaving records that will ever remain glorious for France and Great Britain. It is here today that two great races dwell happily side by side. The spirit of Quebec is a happy fusion of vigorous spirit, proudly guarded.

"It is the mixing of the old with the new that makes for a powerful city or nation."

Mackenzie King, welcoming the King and Queen to Canada, said that "today, as never before, the throne has become the center of our national life" and dropped what many considered a hint of Canada's attitude toward the young couple called so unexpectedly to leadership of their nation when King Edward VIII abdicated to marry Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, an American divorcee.

"Greater than our sense of the splendor of your state," he said, "is our affection for two young people who bear, in so high a spirit, a responsibility unparalleled in the world."

250 Disciples Open 3-Day Meeting Here

Modern Church Faces Need for 'Effective Witnessing,' Dr. Miller Says

The modern church is facing a need for "effective witnessing," warned Dr. Raphael Harwood Miller yesterday at Ninth Street Christian Church, as the second joint convention of the Disciples of Christ of the Chesapeake area opened its three-day sessions.

Spiritual leader of National City Christian Church, he addressed more than 250 delegates from ten States at the parley, also marking the 107th Annual Convention of Virginia and the Sixty-second Annual Convention of the Capital Area of the Disciples of Christ.

Greetings were brought by Dr. Clifford H. Jope and Arthur G. Bishop, pastor and lay leader of the host church, and Dr. C. N. Williams, while other participants were Floyd A. Blosser, Joppa, Md.; the John A. Tate, Richmond; the Rev. Ira Harbaugh, Arlington, and the Rev. J. Lloyd Black, of Park View Christian Church, presiding.

Named chairmen of the joint convention committees to lay plans for the next joint gathering were the Rev. Ivan Dugan, associate pastor of National City Christian Church; A. C. Roberts, Richmond, and John Suttenfield, Lynchburg.

Special Capital area committees appointed were led by S. F. Shrout and C. A. Frick, Washington; the Rev. Hillary T. Bowen, Baltimore; the Rev. Ernest Worden, Martinsburg, and Guy Carter, Rockville.

F. W. Long was selected chairman of the Virginia State convention, while other Virginia committee chairmen named were S. M. Bedford, Lynchburg; J. V. Lilly, Shenandoah; Jack Cunningham, Hampton; J. Mitchell Hoye, Richmond, and R. N. Redford, Roanoke.

Members of the Boy Scout Troop of Ninth Street Church volunteered as guides for the visitors, who met last night in the parish hall for a fellowship dinner, with Percy Thomas, of Roanoke, as toastmaster.

Dr. Horace E. Cromer, pastor of Emory Methodist Church, addressed last night's worship service, in which W. E. Braithwaite, of National City Church; E. S. Sweeney, of Charlottesville; A. R. Reynolds, of Ashland; W. M. Norment, Hagerstown, and others took part.

Rabbi Gerstenfeld To Be Inducted Here Tomorrow

Dr. Julian Morganstern, president of the Hebrew Union College, Cincinnati, will formally induct Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld into office as spiritual leader of the Washington Hebrew Congregation tomorrow at 8:15 p. m.

RABBI GERSTENFELD

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will deliver the sermon, and the ritual will be offered by Dr. Albert J. McCartney, chairman of the Committee on Religious Life in the Nation's Capital, and Rabbi Solomon H. Metz, of the Adas Israel Congregation.

Graduate of Hebrew Union College, Rabbi Gerstendfeld served for sometime as assistant rabbi of the local congregation, of which the late Rabbi Abram Simon was leader for 34 years. Dr. Simon was active in the Committee on Religious Life.

Fight Over Spoils Leads to Arrest of 9 in Holdup Ring

Dissension over the spoils led yesterday to arrest of nine colored youths, 19 to 23 years old, who police said were responsible for three shootings and a dozen armed robberies in the past 18 months.

Among the shootings laid by detectives to the gang was that of George E. Warder, son of Detective Charles Warder, February 2. Warder, bus driver, was shot in the arm during a holdup.

Other shootings, in which no one was injured, accompanied robberies in September and December, 1938. Several shots were fired during the robbery September 27 of William Kraus, grocer, at 315 C street northwest, and during the attempted holdup of Lee Poy, Chinese laundryman, December 31.

The youths were rounded up by Lieut. John Fowler and members of the robbery squad.

Capital News In Brief

Company C Meets

Fourteen members of Company C, First District Volunteers, which served in the Spanish-American War, gathered at the Harrington Hotel last night to commemorate the forty-first anniversary of their "mustering in" for action during the conflict.

The group went on record favoring provision of space for veterans' organizations in the proposed National Guard Armory.

Bronze Tablet Memoralizes Miss Given

Chevy Chase Citizens Group Pays Tribute To Farmer Educator

A bronze memorial tablet in honor of Mary Ella Given, for 35 years principal of the E. V. Brown School, was presented to the school last night by the Citizens Association of Chevy Chase, D. C. Miss Given, who retired in 1933, died a few months ago as a result of an automobile accident.

The tablet was received by Miss M. R. Pepper, present principal, from Donald N. Carpenter, president of the association. Miss Betty Richards, a student at the school, unveiled it.

Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Board of Education, spoke, "as a parent and a friend of Miss Given," recounting how the former principal had endeared herself to her pupils and worked in cooperation with their parents.

Other speakers were Pyke Johnson, former president of the E. V. Brown Home and School Association; Edwin Pyke, former president of the Citizens Association, and John Gray, a graduate of the school who had been one of Miss Given's pupils. "Life's Mirror," a song written by Miss Given, was sung by a quartette of former pupils, Bob Northrup, Earl Hurdle, Fred Peterson, and George Hollenbeck.

Before the presentation ceremonies the association heard a talk on traffic safety by Herman V. Schreiber, and a report on an inspection of fire-fighting facilities of the neighborhood by Charles C. Sellers, a retired fireman.

Widow of the Original Ritz Is Delighted by U. S. Hotels

Parisian Manager Stops at Mayflower On Tour of America; She Recalls Queen as Exceptionally Charming

Mme. Marie Ritz, widow of Cesar Ritz, who gave the world several pre-eminent hotels and the American language a new word, namely "Ritzy," was a guest at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday on a tour of the United States for the purpose of picking up new ideas for the Ritz of Paris. She is a director of the company that manages that hotel and several others.

Interviewed at dinner with her friend, Mme. Cessieux, after a day of sightseeing in the Capital, Mme. Ritz was enthusiastic about the beauty and "homelike" quality of residences she found in the Rock Creek and embassy sections of the city. She was also impressed with the way American hotels are managed, and the conveniences they provide for guests—even to ordering railroad tickets and checking baggage for them. And she was thrilled by a dinner in her honor at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York, at which she was the only woman among 60 men.

The impending visit of the King and Queen of England led Mme. Ritz to reminisce about the monarchs' visit to Paris last year. At that time she was delegated to participate in the presentation to the British royalty of an ancient volume bearing on the reign of Louis XIV from the business houses on the Palace Vendome.

Queen Elizabeth, Mme. Ritz said, has "une charme exceptionelle" and a smile that is fascinating, and aroused great enthusiasm in Frnace. The King, on the other hand, "is more grave and serious."

Reverting to the hotel business, Mme. Ritz said that more than 100 employes of the Paris Ritz have been with the hotel since it was established by her husband 42 years ago—including Olivier, headwaiter in the restaurant. Olivier, she said, has received so many confidences from his patrons that she calls him "Je sais tout."

D. C. Norwegians Fete Anniversary Of Constitution

America must either "return to constitutional government or advance to complete dictatorship," Representative J. Thorkelson (Republican), of Montana, told the Norwegian Society of Washington last night.

Members of the Norwegian Legation and Congressmen of Norwegian descent joined with the club in celebrating the 125th anniversary of the adoption of a liberal constitution in Norway at a meeting in Henderson Castle. Jorgen Galbe, counselor of the legation, also spoke.

Among those present were Representatives Andersen and Knutson (Republican), Minnesota; Talle (Republican), Iowa; Senator Wiley (Republican), Wisconsin; Torfinn Oftedal, attache of the Norwegian Legation, and J. Dieserud, former president and one of the founders of the society.

Printers Vote; Manbeck and Desper Ahead

Runoff Necessary For Election of President

Jesse B. Manbeck, Washington Post printer, and Clarence J. Desper, of the Times-Herald, were high men for presidency in the elections of the Columbia Typrographical Union, No. 101, at Typographical Hall. A run-off election will be held June 14.

Manbeck polled 572 votes and Desper 535. Runners-up were G. M. Billingley, of the Daily News, with 496 votes, and James A. Leek, of The Post, with 389. Winner in the run-off election will succeed John B. Dickman, retired Government Printing Office employe.

In the election for vice president, also conducted on majority vote system, John R. Evans, and Walter S. Sonntag, both of the Government Printing Office, were chosen for the runoff, with 845 and 749 votes respectively. William H. Battley, of the Times-Herald, polled 459.

James I. Crockett, of The Evening Star, with 734 ballots, and George L. Rooney, of the Times-Herald, with 859, were high men in the secretary-treasurer vote. William B. Woods, of the Commercial Office Service, polled 465 votes.

In plurality elections Joseph Harvey got 1,154 votes for trustee. Runner-up was Philip P. McClellan, with 750. Both were from the Government Printing Office.

For auditors, Jefferson H. Abercrombie, of the Government Printing Office, 1,053; R. E. Corwin, of the Evening Star, 1,189; Lawrence P. Homan, of the Times-Herald, 1,099.

W. H. Brown Wins

For executive committeemen in the machinist-linotype class, William H. Brown, with 1,069 votes, defeated Albert Stuart, with 682.

Executive committeeman elected in the machinist-monotype class was Frank Kiernan, with 1,190 votes, who won over John Raithe, with 537. Book and job committeemen named were Raymond U. Burgess, of Maxwell Jones Co., 1,157; Leslie P. Cox, of Cornelius Co., 1,054; Harrison B. French, of G. P. O., 1,047; John W. Morgan, of G. P. O., 1,050; Glen O. Murray, of G. P. O., 988, and Norman Sandridge, 1,139.

For executive committeemen from newspapers James D. Poole was elected for the Daily News, Robert J. Hill for The Post, Gilbert H. Crim for the Evening Star and Charles J. Warren for the Times-Herald.

Delegates to the International Typographical Union: William C. Austin, 1155, and William Field, 963, from the Government Printing Office.

I. T. U. delegate from daily newspapers is Walter J. Griggs of The Evening Star, with 823 votes. From other than daily newspapers, James P. Gallagher, of National Capital Co., with 1,019.

Alternates to the I. T. U.: from the Government Printing Office, James Walton Biggers, jr., 997; and John D. McGregor, 952. Daily newspapers: Frank Dobbins, of The Times-Herald, 961. Other than daily newspapers, Lindon L. Lockwood, of Judd and Deitweiler, 1,083.

Unopposed for doorkeeper and sergeant-at-arms were Ernest J. Elwood and Thomas E. Lawton, respectively.

Labor Officers Installed

Hagerstown, Md., May 17.—Officers re-elected at the thirty-fourth annual convention of the Maryland and District of Columbia Federation of Labor were installed this afternoon at the closing business session by James Worth Wilson, of Cincinnati, former international president of the Pattern Makers Union.

Frank Coleman, of Washington, secretary of the State Federation, was named delegate and Miss Anna Neary, of Baltimore, was designated the alternate.

Dr. Fendric Tells Bible Class Of 200 to 'Live Expectantly'

Philosopher-Cleric Warns Calvary Men Against 'Taking Themselves Too Seriously'

Dr. J. Lowrey Fendrich, philosopher-cleric, last night admonished 200 members and guests of the Calvary Men's Bible Class not to "take themselves too seriously" and to "live expectantly."

Spiritual leader of the Metropolitan Presbyterians, he addressed a dinner in the Calvary Methodist Guild Hall commemorating the thirtieth birthday of the class, new officers of which were picked earlier in the evening.

They were Edwin Dice, teacher; Ralph Bodle, president; John W. Fisher, associate teacher; Charles W. G. Brett, first vice president; Theodore La France, second vice president; C. E. Werback, treasurer; Loy W. Brodie, secretary; W. Elwood Baker, assistant secretary; J. William Grange, historian; William B. Wells, chorister, and Ralph M. Wolfe, pianist.

After a fried chicken dinner served by the Calvary Women's Guild, the diners sat back to hear greetings from the Rev. Orris G. Robinson, the pastor; L. A. Bageant, the retiring class president; Rea Williams, Sunday school superintendent; John W. Fisher and others.

Sandwiched between the speakers were vocal numbers by the famed Chevy Chase Chanters Quartette, instrumental solos by A. Granville Bageant, accompanied by Louis A. Potter, and group singing—including "Stand Like Men," the class song, led by William B. Wells.

Dr. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House and teacher of the class from 1916 to 1919, gave the invocation, and Dr. W. L. Darby, executive secretary of the Federation of Churches, offered the benediction on the occasion, for which dinner music was provided by Helen Belt, violinist, and Marie Ozabal, pianist.

Among other guests of honor were Page McK. Etchison, president of the District of Columbia Organized Bible Class Association; Dr. Walter Atkinson, pastor of Dumbarton Avenue Methodist Church and a former Calvary minister, and William R. Schmucker, popular Bible class worker.

The banquet committee included L. J. Johnston, chairman; A. S. and K. P. Vipond.

Four of the 19 charter members forming the nucleus of the class back in 1909 still attend regularly. They are Fred C. Croxton, W. Alfred Falconer, Edward M. Hall and Isaac R. Hitt.

Another Day Given District Bill Hearing

Senate Subcommittee May Begin Study Of Health Budget Needs Monday

Senator Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, chairman of the Senate sub-committee in charge of the District appropriations bill, said last night that members will give another day to testimony of "representative citizens" and probably not reach a consideration of health budget needs before Monday.

Citizens heard yesterday included delegates from the Council of Social Agencies, the Voteless League of Woman Voters, the Federation of Woman's Clubs, the D. C. Association for Aid to the Blind, and the United Federal Workers.

George E. Dieffenbach, speaking for the Council of Social Agencies and the Chevy Chase Citizens Association, expressed opposition to consolidation of recreational facilities under the Department of Education.

Recreational Board Urged

He recommended their consolidation, but said Administration should be vested in a recreational commission. This opinion was echoed by Mrs. Louis Ottenberg, of the Voteless League, who also asked the sub-committee to provide for permanent inclusion into the educational system the nursery school and adult educational facilities now made available through the WPA.

Mrs. Pearl D. Klein led a group of women asking $40,000 with which to buy land for a new building for the women's division of the Police Department.

Miss May Bradshaw, principal of Roosevelt High School, asked that salaries of librarians in the Washington public schools be boosted to a level comparable to that in other cities of this size.

Request for Gallinger

Jacob Baker, of the United Federal Workers, asked that Gallinger Hospital be given 92 additional employes. He was joined in his testimony by Margaret C. Rush, employe at Gallinger, and Paul Stone, his assistant.

Others heard during the afternoon included: Mrs. Ernest Howard, of the club federation; Mrs. F. C. Fishback and Mrs. Allen Moore, who appeared in behalf of child welfare needs; David S. Thomas and Stella E. Plant, who asked aid for the blind; Robert A. McGehee, who asked visiting teachers for the handicapped; George M. Gooch, vice president of the Highland Citizens Association; Mrs. Belle C. Parker, of the First Ward Citizens Association, and Mrs. Marian R. Jefferson.

32 Nurses Get Diplomas at Emergency Hospital; Dean Kayser Stresses Service to Community

Declaring present-day nurses "treat" not only their individual patients, but the community as a whole, Dean Elmer L. Kayser, of George Washington University, last night urged 32 graduating Emergency Hospital nurses to perfect the "unique" technique learned in training courses.

Speaking at commencement exercises in the Nurses Home, Dean Kayser urged the new nurses to perfect health-giving technique "of mind and spirit as well as the mind" to properly fulfill their obligations to the community.

Stressing the duty of medicine to the community, Dean Kayser declared the sense of sympathy for the ill is generally felt . . . but while most are helpless the nurse can effect moral and physical cures "with the implement of her technique."

Awards were presented Miss Ella May Kelly, nurse with the highest scholastic average, and Miss Joan Rowles, Marquerite Stillwagon, and Marian Hodge, for honorable mention, by Mrs. Chauncey Parker, jr., president of the woman's board of the hospital.

The 32 nurses, among them two girls of Cherokee Indian descent, were presented diplomas by Maj. Gist Blair, president of the board of governors, and ping by Miss Janet Fish, superintendent of nurses.

North Washington Council Drafts Its Constitution

Constitution and by-laws for the new North Washington Neighborhood Council were drawn up last night at a meeting in the Petworth Branch Library, and officers for the coming year elected.

D. E. Nichols will be chairman; R. T. Haugh, vice chairman; Mrs. Adelaide Irving, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Sadie Hirschfeld, recording secretary; E. W. Smallman, treasurer; J. W. Tramburg, delegate to the co-ordinating committee.

Beauty to Leave With U. S. Workers Tomorrow for Fair

Several hundred Federal employes leave here at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow for New York, accompanying Miss Mabel Sugnet, winner in The Post Beauty With Brains contest, who will be guest of honor at the World's Fair on Government Employes' Day, Saturday.

Miss Sugnet, who works in an administrative capacity for WPA, will be presented at the fair along with Mrs. Mabel Meeker, the runner-up in the contest, and Miss Charlotte Whittington, the alternate. Mrs. Meeker, who is an attorney at law, is employed in the tax division of the Internal Revenue Bureau, while Miss Whittington works for the Federal Alcohol Administration.

On the first night, Miss Sugnet will be introduced to the crowds at the Paradise Cafe in New York, and on Saturday will be escorted to the Fairgrounds, where she will be entertained by officials. The fair will give a tea in her honor at 4:30 p. m.

There are still a few reservations left on the special train, which the A. F. G. E. is sponsoring. The excursion headquarters are at 1422 F street northwest.

Col. Chandler Is Dead; War Balloon Chief

Heart Attack Fatal; He Held Distinguished Service Medal

Col. Charles deForest Chandler, U. S. A., retired, chief of the balloon section, Air Service, in France during the World War, and one of the earliest aviators in the Army, died at 61 in his home, 3024 Tilden street northwest, last night. He had been ill for seven days of a heart attack.

Col. Chandler was holder of the Distinguished Service Medal, and wrote several books on the use of the balloon. He was first head of the aeronautical division of the Signal Corps, formed in 1907, and the forerunner of the Army Air Corps. When in 1911 the Army decided to experiment with an air school, Chandler was placed in command.

Col. Chandler was born in Cleveland, Ohio, December 24, 1878. He served in the Spanish-American War as first lieutenant, U. S. Vol. Signal Corps. Besides his World War service, he served in the Philippine insurrection, and the punitive expedition to Mexico. He was commander of the U. S. cableship Burnside that laid the first submarine cable to Alaska in 1903-04, and was first winner of the Lahm Trophy for balloon racing in 1907.

Postlude

By Rav C. B. Brown.

Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints presents the Orpheus Club of Salt Lake City in the Washington Chapel Wednesday evening. Director: Albert J. Southwick. Soloists Robert Sorensen, barytone; Nina Kinghorn, pianist, and Dolores Seal Clark, soprano.

On their way to sing by invitation at the biennial convention of the National Federation of Music Clubs in Baltimore, 41 members of the Orpheus Club of Salt Lake City tarried in the National Capital to make an appearance last evening in the Washington Chapel under the direction of Albert J. Southwick. They were welcomed by an audience that filled not only the chapel proper, but also the adjoining recreation room, and their concert was received with the appreciative silence befitting a religious edifice.

This group of male singers emits a massed tone of rather heavy quality, for the tenors are outweighed by the barytones and basses. In such technical matters as precision of attack, accuracy of pitch and control of shading, they have been excellently trained, and their singing has an enjoyable zest.

Their numbers, some accompanied by Vera Frey Beason at the piano and D. Sterling Wheelwright at the organ and other sung a cappella, included Dudley Buck's "Bugle Song," Purcell's "Passing By," an "Ave Maria" by Arcadelt, Sibelius' "Broken Melody," Farley's "The Night Wind," Bruno Huhn's "A Meditation," Flagler's "Boots," and two works by Utah composers: "Beneath a Southern Sky" by Gladys Rich and a setting of the Lord's Prayer by B. Cecil Gates.

Nina Kinghorn, a pianist who will represent the National Parks District in the Federation contest for young artists, contributed the Beethoven rondo known as "The Rage Over a Lost Penny" and Liszt's "Rigoletto" paraphrase. Robert Sorenson, barytone, was heard in "Water Boy" and Oley Speaks' "Morning," and Dolores Seal Clark, soprano, offered Teresa del Riego's "Homing" and Rogers' "The Star."

Norman Freuenheim plays a piano recital Wednesday evening in the Raleigh Hotel ballroom. Program: Variations in F minor (Haydn), Hornpipe (Purcell), "Le Coucou" (Daquin), Gavotte (Gluck-Brahms), Intermezzo in B flat minor (Brahms), "Carnaval" (Schumann), Nocturnes in C minor and F major, Mazurek in F sharp minor (Chopin), "Le vent dans la plaine," "La danse de Puck," "La Terrasse des audiences du clair de lune" and "L'isle joyeuse" (Debussy).

Norman Frauenheim, who has been artistically active for several months both at home and on tour, gave his final piano recital of the season last evening in the ballroom of the Raleigh Hotel. My arrival coincided with his attack upon the preambule of Schumann's "Carnaval" and I settled myself for the enjoyment of a contagiously spirited reading of that delightful work, which is an epitome of the whole period of self-conscious romanticism.

Each of us has his own ideas about the interpretation of "Carnaval," and I found myself disagreeing now and then over certain details of tempo, phrasing and dynamics, but Mr. Frauenheim's fervor and poetic insight were so disarming that I could not hold out against him. He was completely in the vein for exposition, and the episodes were related with a persuasive eloquence. As an extra number he added "Vogel als Prophet," one of Schumann's finest lyric inspirations.

The latter half of the program was devoted to those two poets of the piano, Chopin and Debussy, for both of whom Mr. Frauenheim has an obvious affection.

It's 'Rough Rider Jim' Now!

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

"Gentleman Jim" Farley qualified for the title of "rough rider" yesterday when, with pistol upraised, he remained on Dynamite, white Arabian steed, of Publisher Gene Howe, at Amerillo, Tex., where the Democratic Party leader dedicated a new Federal building. Howe gave the horse to Farley when he was able to "ride" it.

Capital Woman Who Saw Lincoln Is Dead at 95

Mrs. Margaret McAuliffe, a resident of the Capital since the Civil War, died yesterday at Homeopathic Hospital on her ninty-fifth birthday.

Mrs. McAuliffe came to Washington in the first year of the Civil War.

Mrs. McAuliffe was the widow of Cornelius McAuliffe, childhood neighbor in County Limerick, who followed her to Washington to culminate a childhood romance, but died barely four years after their marriage.

Surviving Mrs. McAuliffe is a daughter, Mrs. Margaret Howlin, with whom she lived at 125 Kentucky avenue southeast.

Requiem mass for Mrs. McAuliffe will be held at 9 a. m. Friday in the Holy Comforter Church, where she was an active member for many years. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Col. Kerrick Dies; Founded Schools

Hot Springs, Ark., May 17 (AP).—The Army and Navy Hospital here today announced the death Monday of Col. Harrison Summers Kerrick, 65, U. S. A., retired, who established the first public schools in the Philippines in 1901.

Mrs. McAuliffe Burial Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Margaret McAuliffe, 95, a resident of this city for 75 years, will be held at 9 a. m. tomorrow in Holy Comforter Church, after brief rites at her home, 125 Kentucky avenue southeast. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Mrs. McAuliffe died Tuesday in Homeopathic Hospital. Born in Ireland, she was the widow of Cornelius McAuliffe. She leaves a daughter, Mrs. Margaret M. Howlin.

Dr. William Rock Funeral Services To Be Today

Funeral rites for Dr. William B. Rock, 56, optometrist and head of the local optical firm of that name for many years, who died Monday in Garfield Hospital, will be held at 2 p. m. today at Lee's funeral home, Fourth and Massachusetts avenue northeast. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Surviving besides his wife, Mrs. Willie H. Rock, are a daughter, Mrs. Alma L. Vierbuchen, of Cottage City, Md.; a son, George W., of this city, and two sisters, Mrs. Eva Muck, of Wheatland, Calif., and Mrs. Laura C. McDonald.

G. R. Washington

Funeral services for George Robert Washington, 64, a collateral descendant of Gen. Washington, who died Monday at his home, 2206 First street northwest, will be held at 2 p. m. today in the Episcopal Church of Our Saviour, Sixteenth and Irving streets northwest.

Mr. Washington was a member of the Washington Centennial Lodge of Masons and the Junior Order of United American Mechanics. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Edna Welty Washington; a daughter, Mrs. George M. Miller, of Baltimore, and two sons, John and George Robert Washington, jr., of this city.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

DO 2 Things for DRY SKIN

Dry skin may be caused by a shortage of Vitamin A in the diet. Or it may be due to a need for better "lubrication" of the skin.

Your body needs at least 5,000 U. S. P. units of Vitamin A daily. We supply RITAMINE capsules containing 10,000 U. S. P. units of Vitamin A, together with FIVE other vitamins and FOUR essential minerals. We also supply an excellent dry skin cream made with soybean oil and other vegetable oils. It is called NYCE because it is so nice to the skin.

This week $1 box RITAMINE and $1 jar NYCE, both for $1.50. The Vita Health Food Co., 619 12th St. N.W. and 3040 14th St. N.W. Mail and phone orders filled. Columbia 2980.—Adv.

Dodgers, Chicago Cubs Play 19-Inning Tie

Sports | The Washington Post | Sports

*X WASHINGTON: THURSDAY, MAY 18, 1939 19

Rookie Masterson Defeats Tigers, 4-1

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

"I don't like it."

Just like that, Mr. Clark Griffith expressed himself yesterday on the subject of night ball in the big leagues, after returning from the Cleveland-Philadelphia game at Shibe Park, where with other bigwigs he sat in on the first night game ever played in the American League.

POVICH

There were no complaints with the night-ball facilities at Shibe Park, according to Griffith. They were the latest in arc-lighting and the players were under few handicaps, if any, he said, but he insisted that for him night ball has no appeal.

"This game wasn't meant to be played at night," said Griffith. "It was meant to be played in the Lord broad sunlight, just as it always has been played for most of 100 years. There's more to a ball game than just a ball game. There's fresh air and sunshine and everything that goes to make up a fine afternoon."

Did Griffith mean that Washington would not have night baseball?

"Well, put it that way if you like. I don't want night baseball at Griffith Stadium. I won't put it in unless I have to, at least. Not unless I'm driven to it. It may not be good business anyway. Those lights cost Connie Mack $110,000. He won't get that money back for several years.

It's wonderful, though, how they can light up a park. I saw infielders make stops at night that were just as good as any they could make in the afternoon. The outfielders could follow a fly ball just as well. The hitter may be a bit up against it, though. You can't tell me that they can see a fast ball at night as well as they can in the daytime. Why, I was reading somewhere in some science book that the most powerful electric lights invented are only 15 per cent as luminous as sunlight. I'll take my baseball in daylight."

It's a Very Pretty Picture Indeed

Best described as downright startling are three rapid-fire developments on the Washington ball club during the past week which may have far-reaching effects on the fortunes of the Nats.

They were, in the order of their occurrence: (1) Joe Haynes' seven-hit, 4-2 victory over the Tigers, (2) Alex Alexandra's 12-inning defeat by the Red Sox and (3) yesterday's 4-1, six-hit victory of Walter Masterson over the Detroit club.

Three times during the past week, Bucky Harris sent a young, untried pitcher to the mound to make his first big league start. And all three turned in superlative performances. It is a pretty picture that the three rookies are presenting to the Nats' manager.

In desperation last week at Detroit, Harris sent 21-year-old Haynes to the mound for his maiden start in the big leagues, and Haynes brought a six-game losing streak to a stop for the Nats. Three days later, in the same desperation, Harris sent Alexandra to the mound and only his teammates' errors robbed the Venezuelan of a richly deserved 2-1 victory over the Red Sox. Yesterday came Masterson and his six-hit game.

What does it add up to? Well, the only two games won by the Nats in their last 11 starts were won by two rookie pitchers at their first and only asking. And Alexandra, in defeat, was equally as impressive as Haynes and Masterson.

Harris Stuck by Rookie and Is Rewarded

Surely no big league manager ever had as much license to view a rookie crop with the same encouragement that Bucky Harris has been given by Masterson, Haynes and Alexandra. Within a week, three unknown quantities have established themselves as potent figures with the Washington club. And probably least surprised is Mr. Harris, himself.

From the outset of the Nats' 1939 training camp at Orlando, young Masterson was the pet of Bucky Harris, the one lad on whom he was willing to stake his baseball reputation. Throughout the clamor for Roberto Ortiz, Tom Baker and other husky pitching rookies, Harris steadfastly maintained that Masterson was the best pitcher of the lot.

He liked the style of the slender, 18-year-old lad from the Philadelphia sandlots, he liked the way he studied batters and he liked the liveliness of his fast ball and his curve. And he liked Masterson's poise. "He's the best," said Harris repeatedly. "Perhaps this year, if not, next year, he'll make it. But he's a cinch to be a great pitcher some day."

Alexandra caught Harris' eye from the day he reported. The Venezuelan early displayed that he knew, at least, how to pitch. Harris saw enough to toss out of consideration the fact that Alexandra's experience had been limited to the Havana leagues. "I don't care if he pitched only in darkest Africa," said Bucky. "The guy looks as if he should win in any league."

Haynes always was a swell prospect in Harris' book. About Haynes, the Nats' manager had little to say in those early days of camp, but he was always high on the big right hander. "When we get rid of these spring sensations in our back-to-the-farm movement," said Harris, "this Haynes will still be very much with us."

Wasdell to Travis and—'Yer Out!'

William "Barney" McCosky, of Detroit, slid into second base on his knees on Walker's hit in the third inning of the game here yesterday. The Nats' Wasdell fielded the ball and threw to Travis (shown), Washington shortstop. To you, "Barney" the ump says "out!"

Dodgers Tie Cubs, 9-9, in 19 Innings

Longest N. L. Game Since 1932, When Cubs Beat Boston In 19 Frames, 3-2

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 17.—The Brooklyn Dodgers and Chicago Cubs tried hard to throw away their ball game today, but in the ninth inning decided to keep it and played to a 9-to-9 tie before darkness closed in at the end of 19 innings.

It was the longest game in the National League since August 17, 1932, when the Cubs beat Boston, 3 to 2, in 19 innings. The longest game in major league records was a 26-inning, 1-to-1 tie between Brooklyn and Boston May 1, 1920.

With most of the game's nine errors figuring in the big scoring innings, the Dodgers bunched three runs in the fourth, one in the fifth and four in the sixth, while the Cubs distributed their runs two each in the third and fourth and three in the fifth.

The tying run was scored by the Dodgers in the ninth inning, when, with two out, Ernie Koy singled and Pete Coscarart doubled.

Luke Hamlin, who started for the Dodgers, was replaced in the fifth by Ira Hutchinson, who, in turn, gave way to a pinch hitter in the ninth, and Vito Tamulis pitched 11 scoreless innings in relief. Earl Whitehill worked the first 12 frames for Chicago with Walter Higbe finishing and giving only one hit in seven innings.

The only time a runner for either team got to third in the long overtime route was in the nineteenth, when Dick Bartell doubled and advanced on a wild pitch, but Higbe fanned to retire the side.

Alex Alexandra Will Face Tigers In Today's Game

Alex Alexandra, rebuffed by the Boston Red Sox last week in his first bid for his first major league victory, will return to the mound today against the Detroit Tigers.

The big Venezuelan, who was beaten by Boston in 12 innings after his teammates' errors had cheated him of a 2-1 victory in nine innings, will be opposed by Archie McKain, of the Tigers.

Metro League Softball Is Resumed Tonight

Metro Night League softball will be resumed tonight at Seat Pleasant field with two interesting games on the card. Irish War Veterans meet Arcade Laundry, and Arlington Democrats face Dixie Tavern. Seat Pleasant may be reached by driving out Central avenue, through Capitol Heights and turning left at Dixie Tavern.

Nats Gain Fifth Place; End Long Losing Streak

18-Year-Old Hurler Receives Best Support Afield of Any Griff Pitcher This Year; Newsom Defeated

By Shirley Povich.

An 18-year-old kid only eight months removed from the scrub games on the sandlots of Philadelphia stepped jauntily into the pitching mound at Griffith Stadium yesterday and brought Washington's losing streak to a spectacular stop.

Fuzz-cheeked Walter Masterson, with a big-league background of only two innings, made his maiden start for the Nats with a dramatic 4-to-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers, holding the Tigers to six hits and licking the veteran Buck Newsom in a tense pitching duel.

He pitched the Nats back into fifth place in the American League standings, did the kid, with no more apparent concern than if he were still serving a schoolboy curve to the Hinky Dink A. C. Such as Charley Gehringer and Hank Greenberg he held hitless in parceling out only six safe blows to the Tigers. In fact, Greenberg failed to get a ball out of the infield.

The five bases on balls Masterson yielded had him in trouble on occasion, but in trouble he was at his best. In the ninth inning, with two Tigers on base, he boldly threw three curve balls to Greenberg and struck him out.

Receives Good Support

Perhaps in appreciation of the kid's gallantry out there on the mound, the Nats gave a bit extra on the defense yesterday. They gave him the best support a Washington pitcher has received this season. Particularly did George Case come to his aid.

That was in the seventh inning when with two Tigers on base, Buddy Lewis galloped into the Detroit dugout to haul in a high foul off Greenberg's bat. Masterson went back to the mound to face the dangerous Beau Bell, who had made two of the Tigers' six hits and for a brief moment it appeared that Bell had made a third.

Into right centerfield streaked a wicked line drive off Bell's bat and after it streaked the fleet Case in what appeared to be a futile dash. But propelled by the most rapid moving feet in baseball, Case speared the drive with a diving catch and held onto it as he stumbled full 40 feet before regaining his stride.

Brutal Defeat for Newsom

For Buck Newsom, making his first start in the regalia of the Browns, it was a brutal defeat. Steadying after a shaky first inning in which three Detroit errors played a potent part in four Washington runs, Newsom pitched shut-out ball from that point.

The boos that greeted Newsom's appearance on the mound and reached a rising volume as the big fellow endured the first inning subsided as Newsom settled down to his best form. And as he walked off the field at the end of the eighth inning after pitching seven-hit ball, his ears thrilled to the rare sound of cheers from a hostile Washington crowd.

Jimmy Wasdell, emerging from a batting slump, was the leader of the Nats' attack against Newsom, collecting four of their seven hits. He contributed a powerful single to the first-inning uprising, put together a pair of doubles later in the game, and on his last appearance at bat he beat out a clever bunt down the third base line.

Tragic First Inning

That first inning was a tragic affair for Newsom. He walked lead-off man George Case and with one out he pitched a single to Wasdell that scored Washington's first run. But it was the Nate' only earned run of the inning. In rapid succession Shortstop Red Kress and Third Baseman Pinky Higgins muffed balls hit by Wright and Myer, and with the bases filled Cecil Travis lashed a single into left field that scored two more runs. Newsom's own error when he made a wild throw to second base, figured in the fourth Washington run of the inning.

From that point, he pitched five-hit ball, with Wasdell making three of the Nats' hits in the last seven innings. But Buck had the misfortune to meet up yesterday with the spectacular young Masterson.

For four innings, two singles were the total of the Tigers' efforts against Masterson, who was making his four-run lead stand up nicely. In the fifth, they got their only run. Tebbetts beat out a cheap hit down the third baseline and Masterson's wild throw put Newsom on base also. Dixie Walker drove in the run with a single to center, but with two still on base, Gehringer and Greenberg were easy outs.

After George Case's catch had rescued him from trouble in the seventh, Masterson had only one more situation to contend with. That was in the ninth when Wasdell's error put McCosky on base and a walk to Gehringer moved McCosky to third. Masterson sealed his triumph by fanning Greenberg for the final out.

Overton's 69 Takes Medal In Invitational

Rolling Road Amateur Equals Par; Rippy, Bogart Have 72s

By Merrell Whittlesey

Golf as it should be played was on exhibition at Chevy Chase yesterday, and the shotmaker was Spencer S. Overton, the stocky stroker from Rolling Road, Catonsville, who played the course in 69 strokes for medalist honors in the 29th annual Invitation Tournament over a crack field of local and visiting linksmen.

Overton, former Maryland State titleholder and one of the most consistent amateurs in this section, was out in 35 and back in 34, for the first par-equaling round in the tournament in several years.

He won the medal with strokes to spare, as the next best effort was 72s by Claude Rippy, defending champion, who went over par on three straight holes, and Ralph Bogart, the youngster from Army and Navy with the beautiful swing, who was 37, 35, 72, despite a pair of three put greens on the back side.

Overton played almost perfect rounds. He hit eight out of nine greens on the first nine in regulation figures, getting down in two putts on each for pars, and one-putting the other. He dropped his first birdie putt on the twelfth, a 6-footer for a 3, and continued his methodical spree until the sixteenth when he caught the parallel ditch and went over par for the first time.

The bespectacled inventor-golfer then finished 4-4, dropping a 3-footer on the last hole after his approach putt for a 68 trickled past the cup.

Although the qualifying round left the usual strong championship 16, entrants that figured to qualify but failed were numerous among the higher flights and in the no-card list, including last year's medalist, M. Parker Nolan, Buddy Sharkey, Al Dollins, Roanoke, Va.; Martin McCarthy, Page Hufty and Beverley Mason.

There was quite a gap between the scores that qualified for the championship bracket. After the 69 and pair of 72s, John F. Brawner, last year's semifinalist from the host club, and Frank "Shanty" Allan, runner-up for the past two years from Pittston, Pa., deadlocked with 73s. Redskin End Charlie Malone, Landra Platt, week-end golfer from the host club, had 76 and the other nine players were 77 and 78.

Four players, all from Columbia, won their way into the first flight via the playoff route, out of seven

Arnovich Star As Phils Beat Pirates, 7 to 3

Lines Out 5 Hits, One a Double, to Pace Quakers to Victory

Pittsburgh, May 17 (AP).—The Philadelphia Quakers, paced by Morrie Arnovich and Del Young, beat the Pittsburgh Pirates with an eighth inning uprising today, 7 to 3, in their close race for the National League's cellar position.

Arnovich lined out five hits, one a double, and opened the winning four-run rally with a single. Young got four safeties, driving in two markers and scoring twice himself.

Bill Brubaker twice drove in Arky Vaughan with doubles. The Pittsburgh shortstop also counted the other Pirate run, scoring from third base in the first inning when Brubaker hit into a double play. Brubaker was not credited with driving in that run, however, under the revised rules.

Giants Release Vandenberg And Myatt

Pair Sent to Jersey To Pare Roster to 25 Before Deadline Today

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, May 17.—Beating the midnight deadline for reducing playing rosters to 25, the New York Giants tonight returned Infielder George Myatt and Pitcher Hy Vandenberg to their Jersey City farm in the International League.

Vandenberg was recalled only last week after winning four in a row for the Jersey Giants, but looked bad in his one relief appearance and one starting role in the National League.

Myatt's erratic play at third base has been blamed for the Giants' poor start this spring and signing of the veteran Tony Lazzeri over the week-end undoubtedly spelled the end of his term with New York. He

Griff Admits Proposed Deal For Cullenbine

Outfielder Roy Cullenbine, of the Tigers, will become a member of the Nats if a proposed deal is made by the two clubs.

Clark Griffith admitted that the Nats had submitted a trade to the Tigers and that there was a likelihood of the deal.

"If it is made, it will be made within the next few days," said Griffith. "Players and cash will figure in it."

Griffith declined to name the player offered Detroit by the Nats, but a Washington pitcher would be involved.

New York Favors Pari-Mutuels

Albany, N. Y., May 17 (U.P.).—The State Legislature today completed favorable action on a proposed constitutional amendment to legalize the use of pari-mutuel machines at New York's five major horse-racing tracks.

The assembly, lower legislative house, adopted the resolution by a vote of 77 to 69. The Senate passed it last week, 33 to 15.

Legislative approval meant that the amendment would be voted on in a State referendum in November. If approved, it will become effective on January 1, 1940.

Sponsors estimated that pari-mutuel betting would yield more than $8,000,000 annually in State revenue, while opponents set the figure as low as $1,000,000.

Giants Beat Cardinals, 9-5, Even Up Series

Mel Ott's 6th Homer Scores Three Runs; Mize Also Hits One

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, May 17.—Slugging four Cardinal pitchers for a dozen hits, the New York Giants evened their St. Louis series today with a 9-to-5 victory. Mel Ott, of the Giants, hit his sixth homer of the season with two on in the fourth and Johnny Mize notched his seventh with one on in the St. Louis seventh.

Farr Wins by K. O.

By the Associated Press.

Cardiff, May 17.—Tommy Farr, appearing in his first fight in two years before admiring Welsh countrymen, scored a technical knockout in the fifth round tonight over 37-year-old Larry Gains, Canadian Negro heavyweight. Both weighed 204½ pounds.

Gains retired at the end of the fifth round with a damaged hand after Farr had piled up a big lead on points. Farr received a great ovation from the crowd of 30,000.

Mrs. Rose Upsets Medalist in Maryland Women's Title Golf

Mrs. Walper, Mrs. Meckley Also Score

Mrs. Rose Defeats Mrs. Schluderberg on 22nd; Miss Greiner Upsets L. Claytor

Mrs. R. L. Rose, of the host Congressional Club, supplied the usual first round punch in the Maryland State Women's Tournament yesterday, going 22 holes to defeat the medalist, Mrs. T. E. Schluderberg, Baltimore C. C., in a totally unexpected result.

Mrs. Leo Walper, wife of the Middle Atlantic P. G. A. champion, eliminated Congressional's main hope for the nineteenth annual championship, Mrs. Myron Davy, by a 2 and 1 margin, with 17 holes of consistent golf and good putting. Mrs. Walper was never down, holding a one-hole margin at the turn.

Mrs. Rose scored one of two extra-hole victories of the day's play, Gladys Greiner, Green Spring Valley, scoring the other over Louise Claytor, Chevy Chase, on the nineteenth hole.

Favored Pair Win Easily

The co-favored pair, Mrs. Betty Meckley, two-time champion from Indian Spring, and Marion Brown, Manor's District titleholder, won without being extended, the former over Mrs. J. J. McCarthy, of the host club, 6 and 5, and Miss Brown over Mrs. Landra Platt, Chevy Chase, 6 and 5. Mrs. Meckley and Miss Brown were each well up at the turn, and even par for the back nine, as far as they played.

Mrs. Walter Stokes, three down and eight to play, won four of the next five holes against Mrs. J. F. Dowdall, Manor, and finally birdied the last hole for a 1-up victory. Mrs. Stokes won the driving contest after the matches, with a 195-yard clout.

Mrs. L. G. Pray, Manor, was down for five holes, but had her own way on the back nine in scoring over Mrs. C. D. Warfield, Green Spring Valley, 3 and 1. Last year's finalist, Mrs. Jerome Sloman, Suburban, tacked the most one-sided margin of the day on the board, a 7 and 6 triumph over Mrs. Henry Goodman, Woodmont.

The Rose-Schluderberg match was within two holes of even all the way. Mrs. Rose was one down at the ninth, drew even on the tenth, and see-sawed until she squared the match again on the sixteenth. The next two were halved, forcing the extra holes.

One Over Par

They halved the nineteenth and twentieth in 6—5, one over par each, and on the twenty-first Mrs. Rose dropped a 25-footer that resulted in a halve. Mrs. Schluderberg went out of the event on the next hole, being stymied on the green and missing a niblick chip over Mrs. Rose's ball.

Mrs. Rose has no let-up today, taking the giant killer's role again against Mrs. Walper, while clubmates, Mrs. Betty Meckley and Mrs. W. R. Stokes, face in a quarter-final match. Mrs. Pray meets Miss Greiner, and Marion Brown meets her conqueror in the first round of the same tournament last year, Mrs. Sloman.

CHAMPIONSHIP FLIGHT

Mrs. R. L. Rose (Congressional) defeated Mrs. T. E. Schluderberg (Baltimore C. C.), 1 up, 22 holes; Mrs. Leo Walper (Capital) defeated Mrs. Myron Davy (Congressional), 2 and 1; Mrs. Betty Meckley (Indian Spring) defeated Mrs. J. J. McCarthy (Congressional), 6 and 4; Mrs. W. R. that tied with 78. Page Hufty was not present, while K. Buchanan and Maury Fitzgerlad lost out with 6's on the first hole.

Earl Skinker hit his second shot three feet from the hole and won a place with a par four, as did Luther Steward, jr., and Bart Yount with pars, the latter holing a 25-footer, and Capt. F. L. Parks with a five.

Three matches, all drawn, stand-out in today's initial round. Rippy meets the challenge of Volney Burnett, Allan plays John Brawner, and Overton faces a real test in young Bogart.

Out-of-towners are scattered through the bracket, E. G. Barnes, Rolling Road, and J. B. Ryerson, Cooperstown, N. Y., each with 77s, meet Earl Skinker and Landra Platt, respectively.

McAleer, Fuchs Meet Greiner And Steinbert

Earl McAleer and Louis Fuchs, Congressional's left and right-handed duo, will take up where Roger Peacock and Buddy Sharkey failed when they meet Otto Greiner and Ed Steinbert in the third round of the Maryland State fourball championship Sunday at Capital.

The Rodgers Forge No. 1 entry upset Sharkey and Peacock last week at Rolling Road. Other District pairings find Claude Rippy and Jock Olmsted, Indian Spring, against Edgar Lucas and W. Eager, Baltimore C. C., and Beaver Dam's duo of John Miller and Joe Balestri against Ernie Caldwell and Gene Bruning, Rolling Road.

Spencer Overton and E. G. Barnes, Rolling Road, meet Hillendale's first team in the other match, with the winners meeting in the semifinals May 28 at Baltimore C. C.

Shock From Leg Amputation Fatal To Race Driver

Bristol, Pa., May 17 (AP).—Bud Henderson, Akron, Ohio, race driver, died today from injuries in an auto race nearby Langhorne speedway Sunday.

Hospital officials said death was due to shock following the amputation of his left leg, crushed in the accident. He also suffered internal injuries.

Jack Hader Gets Big Chance In Bout With Londos Tonight

A groan drama entitled "Jack Hader's Big Chance" will be run off tonight at Turner's arena when Jim Londos, the wrestling ring's No. 1 world's champion, will meet the Kansas baker boy in the 90-minute feature bout.

Londos, still the most polished of the wrestling gentlemen, despite his years in the ring, has agreed to defend his title against Hader, the self-styled "hate man" who will be getting his first taste of the Gorgeous Greek's scientific wresling tactics.

Hader, who has built himself up as a ring villain in his three months of wrestling here, claims to be the inventor of a new hold which will nullify the effects of Londos' famed airplane spin—the method he has popularized as a sort of final touch to his opponents.

Londos, in his last appearance here, bounced Dropkick Murphy around at will. Hader, disqualified once and beaten once in bouts with The Golden Terror, defeated Rosy Red Ryan in his last match.

The supporting attractions, beginning at 8:30 p. m., include George Pencheff versus Nanjo Singh, the Hindu grappler who uses a "cobra death lock" to subjugate his opponents. Rosy Red Ryan will meet Jim Clinstock. Dropkick Murphy meets Abe Kashey, and Sammy Stein faces Gene Bowman.

Hoyas Defeat Terrors, 12-4, In Last Home Game of Season

Wixted and Reynolds Pitch for Hoyas, Give Up Nine Hits; Pajak Gets Four for Five

Georgetown, combining timely hitting and eight costly enemy errors, yesterday won its final home game of the season and its last start before meeting Maryland Saturday, over Western Maryland, 12-4, at the Hilltop Medical School field.

William Wixted and Capt. Bill Reynolds, a pair of righthanders, split the Georgetown pitching and held the visitors from Westminster to nine well-scattered hits. Wixted, who hurled the first four innings and allowed only two hits and one run, received credit for the victory, Georgetown's eighth in 13 games.

The Hoyas scored four times in the first inning and added a trio in the third to take a prohibitive lead. They added one in the fourth, two in the sixth and a final two in the eighth to make the rout complete.

The Green Terrors picked up a single tally in the third off Wixted and then got to Reynolds for two in the sixth and another in the seventh.

Georgetown's batting star was George Pajak, sophomore third baseman, who drove out four hits in five trips, and Lou Ghecas and Johnny McGowan, who each got two, including a double by the former and a triple by the latter.

Mamakos Offered Feature Fight in Garden

A chance at a feature bout next month in Madison Square Garden yesterday was offered Steve Mamakos, Washington fighter who meets Ralph Zanelli, Providence welterweight, Monday night in the first outdoor show of the season in Griffith stadium.

After a long distance conversation with Johnny Attell, new matchmaker for the Twentieth Century Club, Matt Twomey, Mamakos' manager, said he had been offered a match June 8 with an opponent yet to be selected.

The supporting card for Monday's show at Griffith Stadium will bring together Sammy Chivas, Detroit Greek welterweight handled by Harry Raskin, and Frankie Wills, Washington fighter, in the eight-round semiwind-up.

Bob Wilson will meet El Brookman, Buddy Thomas will meet Art Lind, in six-round matches, and Billy Banks, local colored boxer, will meet Peppy Brown, Baltimore colored boy, in a four-round bout. Ticket reservations may be made at Promoter Joe Turner's new offices in his W street arena. Telephone Michigan 6614.

960 MEN REVEAL HOW TO SAVE MONEY ON WHISKEY!

Above you read what Frank J. McCready, Grocery Clerk, said when he tried Old Quaker whiskey.

"This whiskey must cost a lot—it's got that million-dollar taste!" exclaimed Charles F. Smith, Jr., Salesman, about 3-year Old Quaker.

The Old Quaker Inspector behind every bottle is your Assurance of Quality.

"OLD QUAKER is Mild! Smooth! Rich in Flavor!" Say 960 Out of 1,000 Men—Supporting Our Belief this Low-Priced Whiskey Tastes Like a High-Priced Brand!

● When 960 out of 1,000 men praise a whiskey to the skies—in spite of the fact that it has an amazingly low price—then it's front page news! Just listen to this:

We went to 1,000 men . . . asked them to try Old Quaker—now 3 years old—and give us their frank opinion. "Smell it!" we said. "Taste it! Drink it! Then tell us what you think!"

Not one of these men knew the name, age or price of the whiskey he was judging—yet 960 of these 1,000 men actually commented on Old Quaker's richness of flavor . . . its exceptional mildness—its delicate bouquet!

What This Means To You

960 out of 1,000 men are not apt to be wrong! You too will appreciate the rich mellowness of Old Quaker—a mellowness that comes from three full years of ageing in temperature-controlled warehouses! You too will appreciate the money saved by buying this inexpensive whiskey! Make your own trial of Old Quaker—that's the only way to convince yourself! Buy a bottle today!

Mrs. Greenhalgh's Sally Port Wins in Atlantic City Show

Lieut. Roffe Rides Clipped Wings to Fourth in Touch And Out Division

Sally Port's well-earned victory came on the heels of the notable win last night of Hunter's Choice, another of Mrs. Greenhalgh's mounts, which had a well-nigh perfect round in the event for working hunters and won hands down over a classy field.

Hunter's Choice, given a sparkling ride by Mrs. Billie Jacobs Wetherall, was Mrs. Greenhalgh's second blue ribbon winner yesterday, after Sally Port chalked up a victory in the class for limit hunters. Second to the Springbury entry was the Alvin Untermayer's Illuminator, and third was Capt. Henri Luebbermann, of Fort Myer, Va., with Dress Rehearsal.

The feature of this afternoon's card, the first phase of the $1,000 open jumping stake, saw most of Washington's representatives pursued by bad luck as Fort Myer's horses scored several faults each and Margaret Cotter's Rocksie unexpectedly stopped on the last fence after a perfect round. Only District leaper to place was U. S. Randle's far-striding Randle's Way, ridden by Stanley Lawson, which mad ½ a fault and was awarded fifth place and $20.

Fort Myer Scores

Fort Myer's formidable stable of open jumpers carried away first ribbon when Lieut. Col. A. W. Roffe rode Clipped Wings to fourth place in the touch and out event, which makes the reliable brown mare eligible to compete for the championship of the touch and out division on the final day of the show.

To date the open jumping classes have been dominated by Morton W. (Cappy) Smith with the May Top Stable's Bartender and Golden Brew, who have been making clean performances right and left to come out ahead of the District contingent.

With the Greenhalgh Stables off to a flying start in the hunter division, the only disappointment to Washington followers is the lameness of Mrs. Greenhalgh's Billy Do, who injured a leg while exercising at the Wilmington, Del., show last week-end and will be out of competition this week. The famous brown hunter-jumper is now being rested for Devon's show next week and Washington's junior league event June 2-4.

Sally Port had another of her typically smooth, workmanlike performances in the class for open hunters to place second to the Claredda Farm's Woodfellow. Fourth in the event was Capt. Leubbermann's Dress Rehearsal.

Surprise Arrival

Biggest news of the evening was the sudden appearance of Mrs. John Hay Whitney, who blew in from Virginia to ride her Bon Diable in the Hunt teams class. After an outstanding tour of the course, Bon Diable and the other two greys which made up the Whitney entry, Two Leggins and Airy Spirit, won the class for the third time having also scored in 1934 and 1935, and retired the Challenge Trophy. It was Mrs. Whitney's first appearance in an Eastern show ring since Hollywood claimed her attention two years ago.

Second place went to the entry of Crispin Oglebay, and third was taken by the Greenhalgh entry, composed of Mrs. Wetherall on Brown Bruin, Capt. Luebbermann on Hunter's Choice and Shirley Payne on Sally Port.

The show moves into its third day tomorrow with the continuation of the $1,000 jumper stake, and classes for thoroughbred and ladies hunters that will find District and Virginia horses in heavy action.

Terps' Nine Tops Rutgers For 10 in Row

Springer Allows Six Hits in 9-4 Game; His 7th Triumph

New Brunswick, N. J.—The touring University of Maryland baseball team extended its winning streak to ten straight here today by defeating Rutgers, 9-4, behind six-hit pitching by Earl Springer, who earlier this season hurled a five-inning no-hitter against the losers.

It was the thirteenth victory against four defeats for Maryland, and also its last start before Saturday's important game with Georgetown, which will be the final of the season for both teams.

Springer, clever lefty who was winning his seventh victory without defeat this spring, experienced greater difficulty with Rutgers today than he did at College Park several weeks ago, but was still master of the situation. He spread the hosts' hits pretty thoroughly and fanned six. Three of Rutgers' runs came in the sixth.

But by that time the Terps were in possession of eight runs and never were headed. Maryland started quickly, scored two in the first and three more in the second off Compton who went the route for Rutgers although touched for 12 hits, including two doubles by Hugh Keller, Maryland rightfielder. Keller and Adam Bengoechea, with three hits, and Eddie Johnson, with a similar number, led the winning attack.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

Chicago, May 17.—Forty-one thousand of the 45,000 seats at Wrigley Field were unoccupied on Tuesday, when the National League champions returned to their sanctuary after a long trip. The only crowded spot in the yard was in the radio section where the announcers and assorted gadget twirlers of five Chicago stations were ironically enough, adhering excitedly to the precepts of their bible—"baseball broadcast audience builder."

CONSIDINE

We came into possession of one of these amazing documents today and would like to pass along a few of the rules and regulations by which the baseball announcers of Chicago—and perhaps the rest of the country—manage to operate.

Seems there are five commandments which must be graven in a baseball broadcaster's mind. As outlined by the "baseball broadcast audience builder" they are:

3. Remind listener that home team is his team!
4. Be fair to visiting team—but pull for home team!

Make Him "See" the Broadcast

In elaborating on the first commandment the "audience builder" says "make him feel that he is right out there with you by painting a vivid word picture of scene. Describe the crowd, players practicing, color of uniforms; incidents that listener can visualize. The more he can 'see' the more he will be entertained by your broadcast."

As for the second commandment, the "audience builder" says, "Remember, a baseball broadcast—like baseball itself—is most interesting when the rivalry is keen. Emphasize the strength of the invading team. Let listener know the home team has a battle on its hands (Ed note: get it?) set the stage for a hard-fought contest."

I can see the boys even now, foaming wildly over the intense rivalry of that great pitchers' battle, on Tuesday, when Brooklyn nosed out the Cubs, 12-2. And the Red Sox beat the White Sox 18-4. However, I doubt if the boys in the radio booths got around to joining the cold and disgruntled fans, and the press, in laconically calling the Cubs and White Sox the bums the, were, because commandment No. 3 goes on to say:

"The more closely the listener can identify himself with home team, the more enthusiastic he is about the team, the game, your broadcast. Use such expressions as your boys—our fighting team—battling to win a victory for (name of city), etc."

Boy! Tell Me More of the Phillies

Here's a pip: The amplification on the fourth commandment. "Listeners appreciate good sportsmanship, but want the home team to win. Stay on the side of the listener—by boosting the home team as much as you can. This makes you the listener's representative at the game—increases his loyalty to you." Boy, switch off the philharmonic. I want to hear about those dynamic, fearless, letter-perfect Phillies.

The last command has to do roughly with keeping your eye on the ball, so that your "listener can see the game"—if you get what they mean.

The "audience builder" makes another interesting contribution toward keeping down the audiences by gathering together many choice bits of information about the cub players, for distribution to faithful fans who have heard the word, and stay away. For instances I bet a lot of you never knew that "Gabby" is not Mr. Hartnett's real name. It's Leo! "Dick" Bartell is really Richard Bartell. "Dick" is a "nickname." Did you know, too, that "Larry" French is devoted to his mother? It says so right in the "audience builder" and apparently this curious hobby of "Larry's" is cast thoughtlessly at fans who—without such an extraordinary example—might like to go after their ladies with a baseball bat, when irked.

Here are some other gems from the "audience builder" which I hope won't result in driving the fans back to the ball yard: Earl Whitehill had two relatives who played baseball—Glenn Russell liked baseball as a boy!—Carl Reynolds was popular in school!—A friend of Bill Lee's was once killed!—Stan Hack's first employer once bawled him out for smiling too much!

Redlegs Beat Bees, 6-1, Take Second Place

Game Marked by Two Hit Batsmen, Charge Of Illegal Pitching

By the Associated Press.

Cincinnati, May 17.—The Cincinnati Reds took over second place in the National League today, defeating Boston, 6 to 1, behind Bucky Walter's seven-hit hurling in a game otherwise marked by two hit batsmen and an umpire's protests over alleged use by Freddie Frankhouse of the long-barred "spit-ball."

Ival Goodman's fourth home-run of the year in the third, which also scored Frey, launched the Reds' scoring. Walters, walking four, struck out six and fed only two extra-base blows, including a triple to Al Simmons in the ninth. The Bees' left-fielder romped home a moment later on Majeski's single. The Reds meantime combed two of three Boston hurlers for 12 safeties.

Felling of Outfielder Harry Craft at the plate in the seventh inning precipitated an argument and protests from Reds Manager Bill McKechnie and Umpires Goetz, Reardon and Pinelli over what they said was use of the spit-ball.

Craft, hit on the back of the head, was knocked unconscious. He revived and walked to the clubhouse under his own power, but later submitted to an examination in a local hospital.

Yankees Option Beggs and Breuer

New York, May 17 (AP).—The New York Yankees tonight optioned two pitchers to Class AA minors to bring their squad within the 25-player limit which goes into effect tomorrow.

Joe Beggs was sent to Newark in the International League and Marvin Breuer to Kansas City in the American Association. These are the same clubs the two hurlers were with last season.

The operation saved a spot on the Yankees for Pitcher Spurgeon Chandler, who broke a leg just before spring training started, and is not expected to join the club until next month.

Peabody School Leads

By far the largest total in the Sherwood division field and track meet Tuesday was scored by Peabody School, as it came in ahead of Madison, 112 to 89. Points for other schools were Blair, 33; Ludlow, 31; Hayes, 29; Taylor, 14; Hilton, 8; Carbery, 4; Edmonds, 3; Maury, 3.

Yanks Defeat Browns, 4-3, For 7 in Row

Pearson Allows Only 4 Hits; Tom Henrich's Run Decides Game

New York, May 17 (AP). — The world champion Yankees stretched their string of victories to seven today with a 4 to 3 conquest of the St. Louis Browns on Monte Pearson's four-hit hurling.

It was the fourth victory for the New York curve ball specialist, who has yet to be defeated. Although he was wild and frequently in trouble because of the six passes he issued, Pearson tightened in the pinches and subdued all the visitors except Mel Almada and Myril Hoag.

This pair put together two doubles for a run in the first inning and singled and doubled behind a walk to Vernon Kennedy for two more runs and the remainder of St. Louis hits in the second.

Kennedy, making his first start since being traded from Detroit to the Browns last Saturday, pitched a steady, nine-hit game, which ultimately was lost on an error by Shortstop Johnny Berardino in the fifth frame. It was Kennedy's third setback without a victory.

Tommy Henrich, who had homered with none on in the first, scored the deciding run after drawing a base on balls in the fifth, going to second on another walk and racing home when Charley Keller's roller went through Berardino.

Chisox Beat Bosox In Tenth, 6 to 3

By the Associated Press.

Boston, May 17.—Big Jack Wilson weakened in the tenth inning today and the Chicago White Sox touched him for four hits that led to a 6 to 3 victory over the Boston Red Sox in the second game of the series.

Until the tenth, Wilson had given up only three hits—two of them homers by Bejma and Walker—but Owen, Tresh, pinch-hitter Radcliff and Bejma singled in succession in the overtime inning and two runs came across before Joe Heving came in as relief pitcher. Kuhel's long sacrific fly drove in the third run of the inning.

On Fishing

We have made the assertion many times that the striped bass in Chesapeake Bay should be a sport fish, and set aside for anglers.

ACKERMAN

Our basis for that assumption was the scarcity of several years back. In 1931 the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries conducted a brief investigation, that led to the publication of a bulletin this year suggesting that the bass could be utilized to better advantage for sport. However, this 8-year-old information was not checked against that which had come to light during the past two years, and the bureau says that these suggestion can no longer be maintained in the light of these additional facts. We agree with that, if the minimum limit of 16 inches is followed in the commercial fisheries until more complete information can be compiled and if it is possible to regulate the size of mesh in nets so that the smaller fish are not harmed.

It is pointed out in the recommendations of Elmer Higgins, chief; Robert A. Nesbit and William C. Neville, of the Division of Scientific Inquiry, that if protection is afforded the bass until it reaches 16 inches, even though the primary object is to increase the number of fish harvested from each year's brood, the number of fish reaching sexual maturity will also be increased. But they also point out, from the findings of Dr. Merriman, that the regulation should be adopted over the whole range of the species along the Atlantic Coast.

Rate of Growth Differs

There are some differences in the rate of growth in different localities and further study may indicate the desirability of slight differences in size limits in accordance with such differences in the rate of growth. They think the present recommendations are sufficiently conservative, and that they are certain to show a profit or increase wherever adopted.

Because the New York market absorbs a large part of the production along the Atlantic Coast, and because dealers in this market quite properly oppose any proposal to prevent them dealing in fish less than 16 inches if the fish are legally taken, it seems almost mandatory that Maryland and all other States follow these findings.

The bureau points out that nothing of value is gained if fish are merely kept from the markets. Also it is necessary that the capture of small fish be avoided, or that if caught in fishing for other species that they be sorted out and returned to the water alive. This imposes a direct responsibility on commercial fishermen, especially those using pound nets and seines. Anything less than their wholehearted support and co-operation will more than nullify the benefits to them of legal protection.

All an Experiment

It should be noted that these recommendations have been designed to increase the value of the annual crop taken commercially. This is in accordance with the assumption that the striped bass, like most other marine species, is capable, under proper management, of yielding more fish than are needed by anglers and that to limit exploitation to the comparatively small numbers taken for sport would constitute wasteful under-utilization. It is, of course, true that the striped bass under the best of management is quite incapable of producing yields comparable with many other marine species, such as haddock, cod and mackerel. On the other hand, its productive capacity will not be known until we have experimented with better management. The adoption of these regulations by every State along the Atlantic Coast from Maine to South Carolina may only be regarded as the beginning of such an experiment.

With the New York markets closed to rockfish under 16 inches in length because of the passage of the recent no sale or possession bill, it looks as though Maryland can hardly afford not to raise their striped bass limit from 11 to 16 inches. However, in view of her refusal to follow other States in black bass legislation, it might be that they won't follow in this.

Wood Chopper Ties Record in Feature at Suffolk Downs

Jockey Seabo Rides Colt To Victory

First Start for Trueman Entry; Daily Double Pays 29 Backers $512.40

By the Associated Press.

Boston, May 17.—Elmer Trueman's promising colt, Wood Chopper, tied the Suffolk Downs track mark for 4½ furlongs today as he won the 2-year-old dash that topped the Suffolk racing card.

Woodchopper, clocked in 54 seconds, won by a length and a half under excellent handling by Georgie Seabo, veteran jockey, who rode W. L. Brann's Challedon to victory in the Preakness.

The colt, by Wood Craft—Highland Bell, was making his first start, but his morning workouts had been so impressive he was established as the favorite at 3 to 1, and paid off at $3.40, $5.80 and $4.40.

Trueman, a former rider and trainer for Ral Parr, is handling W. S. Kilmer's string at this meeting.

Wood Chopper was slightly reserved as Little Bolo battled with him for the lead, but he pulled away from the Fanfare runner in the drive to the wire. Zabo introduced Challedon to New England racing last year, breaking the colt's maiden at Narragansett, then riding him in the New England Futurity at the Pawtucket track last fall.

Brookmeade's Personage, with Lucas Dupps up, and W. W. Adams' Maestrung, which was paired with Saxaphone as an entry, took care of the daily double, returning $512.40 on 29 tickets.

Sailor Beware Wins Steeplechase

Belmont Park, N. Y., May 17 (AP).—The first steeplechase stakes of the New York season headed today's six-race card, and, appropriately enough, the honors went to Mrs. Payne Whitney's veteran, Sailor Beware. This was the fifth jumping contest decided at the meeting and Mrs. Whitney's popular pink and black silks have flown to victory in all of them.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PARKING TICKET, $6.00, $3.80, $2.80; MISS TRYCOM, $10.80, $5.40; SUN BELLE, $3.20.

PARKING TICKET, sent up on inside of MISS TRYCOM going into turn, saved ground at final bend and was kept to drive to end. MISS TRYCOM, rushed to front at once, lost ground entering stretch and was held safe thereafter. SUN BELLE saved ground entering straightaway and closed with good energy. FLAGABOUT broke in tangle and rallied mildly in stretch run. MISS WING had early speed. The others were outrun.

SECOND RACE—Four and one-half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:12. Off 3:17. Winner, E. C. Moyer's blk. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BALKANESE, $13.80, $5.80, $5.00; FERNBRAKE, $4.00, $3.40; TAVERN, $7.00.

BALKANESE blocked swinging for stretch, improved position boldly between horses and came with excellent courage to get to FERNBRAKE, but hung at end. FERNBRAKE disposed of I DO to get to front and fought it out willingly. TAVERN, off slowly, gained steadily to show good effort. WELSH LAD had speed to stretch and stopped. I DO set good pace, but ran to outside fence after being caught.

THIRD RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:47. Off 3:49. Winner, Mrs. E. R. Mitchell's ch. h. (5), by Infinite—Queen of the Water. Trained by E. R. Mitchell. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:26 3-5.

HELEN V D	(Garrett)	106	1	6	8	8	8	8	54.30

Two-dollar mutuels paid—UNLIMITED, $3.00, $2.80, $2.40; CALEB, $4.80, $3.40; BLIND TALK, $2.80.

UNLIMITED, closest to pace of CALEB after opening furlong, had to be put to pressure after engaging CALEB and was drawing out gradually at end. CALEB took command at first turn, set good pace and held on gamely in closing stages. BLIND TALK outrun during early part, saved ground, but was held safe. MR. MELVIN had early speed. The others could not reach contention.

Daily Double, Balkanese and Unlimited, Paid $26.80.

FOURTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 4:16. Off 4:21. Winner, A. Nader's b. g. (8), by Westy Hogan—Split Ticket. Trained by R. F. Cook. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:25 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—IRISH VOTE, $9.60, $5.20, $3.80; MR. MEX, $9.00, $6.40; LADY CIREK, $5.20.

IRISH VOTE, forced to be steadied when in close quarters between horses at first turn, went to leaders with bold rush along backstretch, disposed of MR. MEX and drew out to long lead. MR. MEX, first away, set good pace and weakened after being displaced. LADY CIREK, fractious at post and started outside of stalls, closed with good energy from slow beginning. WHISK UP was forward factor to stretch and weakened. ELLBEESEE could not keep up.

FIFTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:47. Off 4:54½. Winner, Mrs. G. Hutchins' ch. g. (6), by Jean Valjean—Aunt Emma. Trained by E. Brining. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:17 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GOLDEN KEY, $8.20, $4.40, $3.20; BELLTHORN, $47.80, $12.40; LADY DUNLIN, $3.40.

GOLDEN KEY, rated just off pace of PUKKA HEAVEN for a quarter, took command when placed to drive and was under strong pressure to hold away over BELLTHORN at end. The latter, started from outside stalls, went well placed on outside, came to leader with good energy, but hung right at end. LADY DUNLIN saved ground throughout and showed good effort. PUKKA HEAVEN set early pace and weakened.

SIXTH RACE—Four and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 5:24. Off 5:27½. Winner, P. H. Faulconer's ch. c. (3), by Haha—Roman Girl. Trained by C. H. Fitzgerald. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:50.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROMAN BOY, $4.00, $3.20, $2.80; BEAMING LADY, $22.20, $5.60; ROVING EYE (entry), $2.80.

ROMAN BOY, first away, was steadied along while running on inside of BEAMING LADY until straightened out in stretch and drew away to win with speed in reserve. BEAMING LADY was hard ridden from start and held on gamely. ROVING EYE saved ground and closed with good energy. ENTHUSIASM bumped ARBOREAL soon after start and closed gamely. TIMBER LADY had early speed. ARBOREAL had to be taken up sharply when bumped.

SEVENTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:51. Off 5:51½. Winner, G. A. Liang's br. g. (7), by Reign Count—Jolie Legend. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:27 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JOLIE KNIGHT, $53.20, $14.40, $6.80; NATIONAL, $4.60, $3.40; WORTHOWNING, $6.60.

JOLIE KNIGHT, off poorly, but having speed to go to contention in opening quarter, came to inside entering stretch and won going away with a bold move along rail. NATIONAL took command at first turn, drew out, but could not resist winner. WORTHOWNING was hard ridden from start and went evenly in final test. REIGH TETRARCH was held safe. LOCOMOTIVE gave ground and quit.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 6:20. Off 6:22½. Winner, Mrs. C. A. Curry's ch. g. (4), by Meridian or Playfellow—Rosetta. Trained by C. A. Curry. Value to winner, $350; second, $75; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:48 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—QUILL, $32.60, $9.40, $6.80; AUPOIN, $3.00, $3.00; LIGHT ACTION, $6.00.

QUILL, forward factor from start, was steadied along after reaching AUPOIN on backstretch, responded to intermittent punishment in stretch and was drawing out at end. AUPOIN disposed of DANCING MACK to get to front, saved ground, but was no match for winner while under hard drive. LIGHT ACTION hung in stretch run after bettering position sharply. BOOK READER went forwardly for a half. DANCING MACK stopped.

Double-Header at Seat Pleasant

Charles Town Feature Won By Roman Boy

Son of Ha Ha Runs Distance in 0:50, Second Off Record

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent.

Charles Town, W. Va., May 17.—Roman Boy, a speedy son of Ha Ha, gave the horse laugh to seven rivals today, much to the delight of the favorite players who collected a $4 mutuel. The 3-year-old colt, who showed much speed at Pimlico, found the 4½ furlongs of the feature race right up his alley and scored by three and a half lengths, under good handling by Jockey Sammy Palumbo.

The P. H. Faulconer star ran the distance in 0:50, a second off the track record. The oval here was as fast as it

Agreement Follows Chancellor's Warning To Keep Funds Home

By the Associated Press.

London, May 17.—Seeking to stem the export of British capital, principally to the United States, London stock brokers today reached an agreement not to quote American securities until further notice. This move followed a statement in the House of Commons yesterday by Sir John Simons, chancellor of the exchequer, cautioning British investors against sending their funds abroad.

The effect of othe brokers' agreement was understood to be that brokers will cease to list American securities on theird boards or advise purchase of American issues in circulars to their clients.

If investors insist on buying American securities it is expected that brokers will remind them of the chancellor of the exchequer's statement and reserve the right to refuse to handle the transaction.

Papers Quote U. S. Stocks

London financial circles also said that an unofficial request to desist from quoting transatlantics (United States shares) had been sent to brokers by the Bank of England in the form of a note calling attention to Sir John's statement.

The chancellor of the exchecquer told Commons yesterday that he had asked one insurance company to cease issuing a circular advocating the sending of funds to the United States. "I have taken definite steps about it and I think they will be effective," he said.

April 20 Sir John said that "The good sense of investors will indicate to them that the export of capital at the present time, when the requirements of national defense are so great, would be deleterious to the national interests."

Wall Street's Reaction

New York, May 17 (AP).—The decision of London brokers not to quote American securities was interpreted in Wall Street as indicating primarily that business in American issues would not be solicited. New York Stock Exchange houses with London offices said they had not been advised of details of the decision, but did not understand it meant discontinuance of business in American issues.

Recent unofficial estimates placed foreign holdings of securities in this country at approximately $4,000,000,000, of which about 25 per cent, or $1,000,000,000, represented United Kingdom holdings, 31 per cent Netherlands and Swiss combined, 6 per cent French and 17 per cent Canadian and Latin-American.

Total foreign-owned assets in the United States were placed at about $8,500,000,000, of which $1,000,000,000 was in gold under earmark for European Central Banks, $2,000,000,000 in short term liabilities to foreigners, largely in the form of bank deposits, $4,000,000,000 in securities and the remainder in other long term assets, mostly direct investments.

Banking Groups To Hold Meeting

Nickel Plate Drops Young, Elects Brooke

Cleveland, May 17 (AP).—Directors of the Nickel Plate Railroad yesterday removed Robert R. Young, New York financier, from the board's chairmanship and in his place elected George D. Brooke, already president of the Chesapeake & Ohio and the Pere Marquette Railroads.

Young, who did not attend yesterday's meeting, is chairman of the Alleghany Corporation, holding company for stock in these and other roads. George A. Ball recently regained ostensible control when Young and associates defaulted on an obligation for stock.

The Nickel Plate directorate elected H. F. Lohmeyer, secretary-treasurer of the C. & O. and Pere Marquette, as secretary to succeed George S. Ross. Walter McLucas, Detroit banker, was named to the executive committee to succeed the late W. L. Ross.

George A. Tomlinson was re-elected chairman of the Pere Marquette, and Young was retained on that road's executive committee.

N. Y. Stock Exchange Seeks New Listings

New York, May 17 (AP).—The New York Stock Exchange disclosed today that it is negotiating with 40 corporations concerning th possibility of listing their securities on the "Big Board."

"The Exchange's effort to obtain new listings," said the announcement, "is predicated upon the maintenance of the hallmark which attaches to a security listed on the Exchange.

"A test of a clearly developed national interest in the corporation and its securities has been substituted for any mathematical measure of earnings and assets."

Socony Oil Plans Interest Reduction

New York, May 17 (AP).—The Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., Inc., one of the largest integrated companies in its field, has been negotiating for a reduction in the interest rate on its $75,000,000 of 3¼ per cent debentures held by five insurance companies.

Also under study, it was said, is the possibility of refinancing at a lower rate the $50,000,000 in 3½ per cent debentures publicly held. Refunding of this issue, it was explained, probably would necessitate public offering of a new issue.

Spending Lifts April Trade Index

New York, May 17 (AP).—Increased spending in trade centers last week lifted Time magazine's index of business conditions to 92.1 compared with 91.5 the previous week and 92.3 a year ago.

The index figure for April was 91.2, off 3.1 from the previous month.

April Life Insurance 10.8% Under Last Year

New York, May 17 (AP).—The Association of Life Insurance Presidents reported today that 40 United States life insurance companies having 82 per cent of the business wrote 10.8 per cent less new insurance in April than in April, 1938. The comparative figures were $550,80?,000 and $617,475,000.

However, the total new business for the first four months this year was $2,496,248,000, a sum 1.1 per cent higher than the $2,468,189,000 written in the like period of 1938.

Wheat Rally Offsets Effect Of Belt Rains

July and September Decline ⅝ and Then Advance a Cent

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 17.—Although wheat prices were depressed today by reports of scattered rains in the Southwest and prospects of continued unsettled weather over much of the belt, the market developed rallying strength that lifted quotations at times.

Nervousness of previous sellers of May contracts, in which trading will cease Monday, stimulated active purchasing, with May soaring as much as 2⅜ cents above an early low to 78⅜, or 1⅞ over yesterday's close. Price fluctuations were erratic, however, and May closed at 77⅞@78⅜ to 1 cent net higher. The commodity exchange administration has started an investigation of trading in May wheat.

July and September contracts, which represent the 1939 crop insamuch as they can be satisfied by delivery of new wheat, dipped as much as ⅝ cent and then rallied a full cent when strength developed in the current delivery. They closed at 73⅝@73½, unchanged to ¼ lower than yesterday.

Corn finished ⅛ off to ⅛ up, compared with yesterday; July, 50⅞@51; September, 51½; oats, ⅛@⅜ higher; rye, ⅜@⅝ up; lard, 10 to 13 lower.

Bankers Appeal To Treasury for Balanced Budget

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., May 17 (AP).—Terming the Government's finances "the most important problem in our national life," the Investment Bankers Association directed an appeal to the Treasury for a balanced budget and a program of tax revision to "restore business confidence."

The board of governors yesterday proposed, among other things, constant rates to permit business to calculate taxes several years in advance, simplification of regulations and discontinuance of the undistributed profits tax.

C. Provost Boyce, Baltimore, chairman of the S. B. A. Federal taxation committee, wrote Undersecretary of the Treasury John W. Hanes some of the association's proposed changes in the tax structure might reduce revenues temporarily but "on the other hand, the effect on business will be salutary and consequently helpful to the entire country."

Philippines Get Duty-Free Quotas

The Senate Territories Committee approved yesterday a bill establishing duty-free quotas under which certain Philippine products might enter the United States up to the date of independence in 1946. An amendment by Senator Hayden (Democrat), Arizona, to remove a 3-cents-a-pound excise tax on inedible Philippine cocoanut oil was adopted before the committee voted approval.

The bill, introduced at the request of President Roosevelt, makes no changes in the original 1946 independence date and makes no provisions beyond the date of independence. It establishes quotas under which Philippine tobacco, cocoanut oil, pearl buttons, and embroidery, may enter the United States free of duty up to the date of independence. Chairman Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, said the vote on the measure was unanimous.

Stocks Continue Downswing, With Steels, Metals, Motors and Aircrafts as Leaders; Trading Volume Shrinks to 534,470

New York, May 17.—Continuing the pronounced downswing of Tuesday, the stock market started today with minus signs predominating to an extent sufficient to leave a small gap on the chart. That is, the best average price of the day failed on the chart to reach as high as the poorest average of the previous session. Part of the early recession was recovered but the composite for the list was still off 0.35 point at the close. Trading volume eased slightly to total 534,470 shares. All groups contributed to the decline with the heaviest pressure exerted against the steels, metals, motor and aviation shares.

War threats are receiving a diminishing amount of attention in the financial district, but efforts of the British government to limit the export of capital to this country, particularly through the medium of the purchase of American securities, came as a surprise. Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, says his government is determined to halt British purchases of such securities.

There was a time not so many months ago when the complaints against foreign investments here came from Washington and not London, for such money can be easily withdrawn, and is whenever there is a more than normally violent swing to the left in Washington. It was during one of these periods of heavy withdrawals that President Roosevelt spoke in strong terms about the evils of so-called "hot money," a term which was borrowed from the underworld.

The immediate interest of Wall Street in this discussion is that if Sir John has his way, there will unquestionably be heavy liquidation of American securities both in London and here. In line with his recommendations, London stock brokers today reached an agreement not to quote American securities until further notice.

Surprise to Wall Street

This came as a surprise to Wall Street, but it was pointed out that thus far there has been no attempt to halt trading in the transatlantics, as American securities are known, but merely to stop their quotation. This might not interfere with the operations of large speculators, but it would certainly decrease public interest in our shares and thus reduce their liquidity abroad. Press dispatches from London said financial circles there also understood that the Bank of England had sent notices to brokers calling attention to Sir John's speech. British holdings of our securities are estimated to be between $800,000,000 and $900,000,000.

United States Steel preferred was a weak feature in today's trading, closing off 2½ at a new low for the year. The common and Bethelehem were down fractions. Chrysler was the most active stock, off a point, and motors was off slightly. Glenn Martin was the most active aviation issue, losing a half. Loft continued to get speculative support and Central was the most prominent railroad, losing a small amount.

Scrap copper was off ⅛ cent and export prices were easy. Better news came from the utility industry, the weekly power figures showing a betterment over a year ago of 10.3 per cent and over the previous week of 0.3 per cent. At Woolworth's annual meeting, stockholders were told of a satisfactory increase in sales with indications of a nice gain for May. Railroad reports generally showed lowered earnings for April, reflecting the coal strike.

Prime Bonds Advance

Bond market divergencies between high grade and speculative issues were widened today, as the best issues continued their upward movement and the speculative bonds sagged. United States Treasury issues were in keen request and 12 issues moved to best levels on record. In the corporate department the highly rated obligations held their ground, but speculative rails and others fell with equities. Foreign dollar issues were uncertain. Turnover in all bonds totaled $5,010,000.

Gains in Treasury bonds were effected in thin trading, as holders are reluctant to sell and dealers have small supplies. The advances ranged from 1-32 to 9-32 point in the intermediate and long dated issues. Guaranteed bonds of the Farm and Home Corporation were slightly improved, but hardly any business was done pending the anticipated announcement on Home Owners refunding. Telephone bonds and power and light issues were dull and barely changed. Best railroad and industrial issues were quiet.

'Big Board,' 147, Organized Under Buttonwood Tree

New York, May 17 (AP).—This day, in the considered opinio of some of Wall Street's elders, should rightfully be designated "National Buttonwood Day."

This belief is inextricably bound to the theoretical founding, 147 years ago, of the New York Stock Exchange under a buttonwood tree in Wall Street.

For all the elders actually know, the founding may have been accomplished in the backroom of some tavern owned by a man named Josiah, but buttonwood tree sounds nicer. It's more poetic than calling the tree a sycamore, which it was.

In any case, the date is correct—May 17, 1792. If you recall, that was a Tuesday.

Twenty-four indidivuals under the stigma of being "in trade" signed an agfreement that Tuesday not to cut commissions on each other in "public stock" — meaning Government bonds. The little city of 35,000 inhabitants first heard about the epoch-making event through an advertisement in one of the local newspapers.

Wheat and Flour Export Bounty 25c

Sales of American wheat and flour for export totaled 109,300,000 bushels during the ten months ended April 30, the Agriculture Department reported yesterday. Sales for the corresponding period in the previous season amounted to 93,600,000 bushels.

The department said the Government had paid an export bounty averaging about 25 cents a bushel on 85,000,000 bushels. About 80 per cent of the export sales represented whole grain and 20 per cent flour.

Lincoln Service Votes 25 Cents Extra Dividend

At a meeting of directors of the Lincoln Service Corporation, Industrial Bankers, held yesterday, the regular quarterly dividends on the 6 per cent cumulative participating preferred stock and the 7 per cent cumulative prior preferred stock were declared. The directors also declared an extra dividend of 25 cents per share, together with the regular quarterly dividend on the common stock. All dividends are payable June 12 to stockholders of record May 31.

Alfons B. Landa and Robert P. Smith were elected directors. Mr. Landa is a partner of the law firm of Davies, Richberg, Beebe, Busick and Richardson, and Mr. Smith is a member of the law firm of Smith, Deibert and Ristig. Resolutions were also adopted by the directors expressing condolences on the recent death of Admiral Mark L. Bristol, a director and member of the executive committee of the corporation for several years.

Steel Output Declines to 45.5 Per Cent

Heavy Bookings Tend to Prevent Further Losses

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 17.—Iron Age said today the steel industry was still concerned over the coal mining situation.

Said the steel publication: "The heavy bookings of sheets and strip which may be augmented somewhat by bar bookings if the quantity discount on bars is continued to the end of the quarter, probably will tend to prevent a further decline in steel operations, which this week are down a point and a half to 45½ per cent.

"The coal situation has not entirely disappeared as an influence, however, because the 'captive' mines, owned and operated by steel companies, have not yet signed with the United Mine Workers, and, if there is no agreement at meetings that are being held this week, steel companies may be forced to buy coal from independent mining companies.

Closed Shops to Be Resisted

"The steel companies are expected to resist the 'union shop' provision that was written into the labor contracts signed by commercial mining companies, which might lead to a similar demand with respect to steel mill contracts. The 'captive' mines are still closed."

The publication cited "further weakness in steel scrap prices at Pittsburgh, which have declined 50 cents a ton, bringing the Iron Age scrap composite down to $14.08, lowest since January, 1938."

It added: "Near seaboard prices are remaining firm as a result of export buying. Orders placed by European countries in the past two weeks are estimated at 300,000 to 400,000 tons.

"The Iron Age finished steel composite price for this week is 2.236 cents a pound. Had it been figured on the basis of prices that were in effect late last week, assuming an average reduction of $6 a ton on flat-rolled products, it would have been 2.198 cents compared with last October's low of 2.211 cents. The 1936 low, prior to wage increases, was 2.016 cents."

Tel. & Tel. Votes Regular $2.25 For the Quarter

Plymouth Oil Stock Extra

Pittsburgh, May 17 (AP).—Directors of Plymouth Oil Co. today declared an extra dividend of 2 per cent on common stock, in addition to the regular quarterly cash payment of 35 cents, on common stocok, both payable June 30 to holders of record May 29.

Pennsylvania Salt

Philadelphia, May 17 (AP).—Directors of Pennsylvania Salt Manufacturing Co., makers of industrial chemicals, today ordered a quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share on common stock, payable June 15 to holders of record May 31. On March 15 a dividend of $1 was paid.

British Sales to U. S. Jump in Quarter

London, May 17 (AP).—A big jump in British exports to the United States for the three months beginning January 1, when the British-American trade pact went into effect, was reported by the Government today. Replying to a question in the House of Commons, Ronald Cross, parliamentary secretary to the board of trade, said: "During the first three months of 1939 exports of United Kingdom goods consigned to the United States were valued at £6,885,000 (about $32,221,800), an increase of £1,922,000 ($8,995,000) as compared with the first quarter of 1938."

July Cotton Futures Advance 65 Cents a Bale

New York, May 17 (AP).—The July cotton delivery assumed leadership of the market today following expiration of the May contract Tuesday. July closed 13 points higher while other months were unchanged to off 2. Continued difficulty of obtaining immediate supplies of certain grades of the staple not only dominated market gossip but, to a large extent, price movements as well.

Buyers — Representing largely trade covering and Wall Street demand—found July contracts tightly held and the price moved up briskly. Transfer from distant months to nearer also developed.

Effects of the lack of needed fiber spilled over into the manufacturing division. In Southern centers there were rumors of mill curtailment, according to cotton men, unless gray goods sales and prices pick up and cotton becomes in freer supply in spot markets.

Cottonseed Oil

Heavy long liquidation knocked the July and December cottonseed oil contracts to new low prices for the season today. Selling, from Western as well as foreign interests, accompanied a break in lard. Closing prices were 10 to 11 points net lower. Sales totaled 370 lots; July ended, 6.58; September, 6.77; October, 6.79; December, 6.85.

Crude oil dropped ¼-cent a pound with the Southeast and Valley now 5⅝ bid and Texas 5⅝ to 5¾ bid.

Bethesda Loan Co. Pays Two Dividends

Stockolders in the Bethesda, Md., Industrial Savings and Loan Co. yesterday received dividend payments of 7 per cent on preferred stock and 10 cents a share on common, according to an announcement by Clifton M. Eisele, president of the Southeastern Industrial Bankers, Inc., parent org nization of 13 low rate industrial loan companies operating in the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia.

Belgium Restricts Glassware Output

The Belgian Government, by a royal decree, has authorized restriction in production of blown glassware in that country, according to a report received yesterday by the Department of Commerce from its Brussels office.

As a result, the voluntary agreement reached between members of the Belgian Glassware Association is enforced upon all producers, whether members of the association or not, in the blown glass industry.

Episcopal High Beats McKinley, 5-2

Alexandrians Snap Six-Game Losing Streak; West Winning Hurler

Alexandria, May 17.—Episcopal High School's varsity nine snapped out of a six-game slump by turning in its most impressive performance of the season today, turning back McKinley Tech, of Washington, 5 to 2, in an exceptionally well-played game on Hoxton Field. The victory brought the Maroons' average up to an even .500, with six victories, six losses and two ties.

Wilson Netmen Beat Western

Hold Inter-High Lead With 4-to-1 Victory

Woodrow Wilson High netmen remained in first place in Inter-High tennis play yesterday when they entertained Western on the Pierce Mill courts and took a 4 to 1 victory. The Presidents have an unmarred record to date, a tie with Central being the closest to defeat they have come.

Mike Nunez, Western's No. 1 player, put up a game battle in his match with Wilson's Wadden, but was forced to quit after the fourth game of the third set with a knee injury. The second set lasted through 30 games.

In other Inter-High meetings Roosevelt and Central trounced Tech and Eastern, respectively, 5 to 1. It was Central's third victory against a single defeat.

Woodrow Wilson, 4; Western, 1.

SINGLES—Wadden (W., W.) defeated Nunez, 2—6, 16—14, 4—0 (Nunez defaulted with injury); Newcomer (W.) defeated Thorup, 6—1, 7—5; Gale (W. W.) defeated Smith, 6—3, 6—4; Robey (W. W.) defeated Thurston, 6—4, 6—0; Pratt (W. W.) defeated Lincoln, 6—1, 7—5.

(No doubles.)

SINGLES—Clark (C.) defeated Lee, 6—4, 6—0; Maier (C.) defeated Burns, 6—0, 6—0; Maxwell (C.) defeated Calcote, 6—2, 4—6, 6—4; Reuben (C.) defeated Handy, 6—3, 6—8, 7—5; Sirth (E.) defeated Silvers, 5—7, 6—4, 6—3.

DOUBLES—Maier and Clark (C.) defeated Lee and Hall, 6—0, 6—0.

Roosevelt, 5; McKinley, 1.

SINGLES—Clark (R.) defeated Edwards, 6—2, 6—3; Gottlieb (R.) defeated Lawson, 6—1, 6—2; Fishes (R.) defeated Villines, 6—4, 4—6, 6—2; Bruce (R.) defeated Davis, 6—2, 6—0; Millstein (R.) defeated Maxwell, 6—0, 6—1.

DOUBLES—Edwards and Lawson (Mc.) defeated Fisher and Gottlieb, 8—6, 4—6, 6—3; Villalon and Barton (Mc.) and Parmenson and Kay called at 1—1 (dark).

Man of the Month

(Following each game by The Washington Club, Walter Johnson distributes among the Nats ten points of merit, based on their performances for the day. At the end of each month, the Washington player boasting the greatest number of points is designated as the Nats' "Man of the Month" and receives a trophy from The Washington Post.)

By Walter Johnson,
(WJSV-General Mills Broadcaster.)

Little Jimmy Wasdell regains the lead in the Man of the Month contest following the point distribution on the basis of yesterday's game; but young Walter Masterson was the outstanding Nat hero of the day.

To Masterson, five points, because he pitched a superlative ball game in making the Nats' four-run lead stand up and holding the Tigers to six hits in his first start.

To George Case, two points despite the fact he went hitless, because his sensational catch of Bell's line drive in the seventh inning literally saved the game for Masterson and the Nats.

To Jimmy Wasdell, two points, because he made four of the Nats' seven hits with his two doubles, a single and a bunt, and offset his error with a brilliant stop of McCosky's hot drive in the third inning.

Jimmy Wasdell	15	Rick Ferrell	6
Taft Wright	14	Alex Alexandra	6
Cecil Travis	14	Jake Early	6
George Case	10	Walter Masterson	5
Joe Krakauskas	8	Joe Haynes	5
Buddy Lewis	8	Charles Gelbert	4

Boys' Republic Plays 7-Up Tonight At Arlington

Outstanding pitchers of this vicinity will go to the mound at Arlington, Va., tonight when the 7-Up Athletic Club opposes Lou Blue's Boys' Republic at 8:15 o'clock.

Bob ("Lefty") McIntire is to make his second start in as many days for 7-Up while Otiz Printz, speedball merchant who was key man of last Monday night's shut-out of the House of David, will be Blue's nomination.

Riders Beat G. W. Frosh

Roosevelt High Twins Hit Homers; Frosh Rally Fails, Lose, 7-5

Roosevelt High's chunky Robertson twins, Bill and Jimmy, hit the only home runs of the game yesterday as the Riders won, 7-5, over George Washington University Frosh at Roosevelt Stadium. Bill's blow came in the first inning, with no one aboard, and Jimmy waited until the second to hit his with Eddie Waters and Al Miller on base. Roosevelt scored all its runs in the first two innings.

Eastern Tops Wilson, 4 to 3

Bunching its runs in the first and fourth innings, Eastern High won a 4 to 3 decision over Woodrow Wilson yesterday on the East Capitol street diamond. Jack Tegue was responsible for the first two Eastern runs with a well-placed double, and a walk and pair of singles accounted for the others.

The score was knotted by Wilson in the third, when Bartley Fugler pushed Charley Garner over with a double and scored on an error.

Johnny Deavers and Joe Cole issued but five safeties to the Presidents, while Herman Byer allowed eight. It was a well-played game that saw Frank Bond, Ray Banello and Joe Morgan star for the losers.

Devitt Prep Nine Beats W.-L., 9-7

Devitt Prep's pounding batsmen, paced by Charley Stanton's 3-run homer in the eighth, issued Washington-Lee High its third consecutive setback yesterday at Arlington, 9 to 7. Stanton's blow brought the Prepmen from behind.

Cave Dwellers Elect Michalowicz At Catholic U.

Michalowicz

Joseph C. Michalowicz, a member of the junior class of the school of engineering and architecture at the Catholic University, has been elected president of the Cave Dwellers Club, a social organization of Washington residents enrolled in the undergraduate schools of the university. Michalowicz, a candidate for the degree of bachelor of electrical engineering and active in extra-curricula activities, will serve for the 1939-1940 academic year.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Rock Michalowicz, 1037 New Jersey avenue northwest, Michalowicz entered the Catholic University from Gonzaga College and at present holds a school of engineering and architecture scholarship at the university.

Other officers include Charles B. Ramsdell, vice president; Charles H. Kaman, 5751 Third place northwest, treasurer; Edgar Beery, 900 Sheridan street northwest, corresponding secretary; Howard J. Schropp, pledge master; Charles F. Chaney, 1707 Kilbourne place northwest, Inter-Club Council representative, and Joseph A. Ellis, 2902 Tenth street northeast, club historian.

Ad Club Told Of Campaign to Sell More Cotton

EHRLICH

"Irging a widespread promotional campaign to liquidate 12,000,000 bales of surplus cotton, Everett described the plans of the Institute for National Cotton Week, May 22-27. Newspapers, magazines, radio, movies and both world's fairs will co-operate with retailers and wholesalers then, he declared.

All the officers of the club except the second vice president were re-elected yesterday. Officers for the year will be Alvin Q. Ehrlich, president; George B. Burrus, first vice president; F. Reid Wallace, second vice president; Louis D. Krakow, treasurer; Charles J. Columbus, secretary, and the following directors: James W. Hardey, Agnes Hope and George W. Kennedy.

70 Boys and Girls to Go To Music Club Meeting

A caravan of 20 autos and buses will leave here at 8 a. m. Saturday carrying 70 boys and girls to Baltimore for participation in junior day festivities featuring the biennial convention of the National Federation of Mussic Clubs. Solo parts in the operetta, "The Nightingale," will be sung by Judy Conklin, Beverly Cushman, Frank English, jr., John Googins, Weston Jones, Nancy Linkins and Billy Ringle.

O. E. S. Chapter to Give Benefit DanceTomorrow

The Lebanon Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, will hold a dance and card party tomorrow at the Washington Golf and Country Club, the first function in the drive for funds to build a new Eastern Star Temple at Sixteenth and Euclid streets northwest, Mrs. Marguerite G. Contract Bridge

By R. F. Foster.

It was a popular custom in the days of whist when a new play was discovered to name that play for the "whister" who discovered it. Such instances are rarer today, new development being mainly in the bidding.

George S. Coffin, of Fitzwilliam, N. H., is one of the few to have a coup named for him. The hand on which he first made the play is shown in today's box.

Mr. Coffin's coup involves the deliberate sacrifice of a trump trick to gain a tempo that is essential to score several tricks later. His description of it follows:

"This deal came up in a Boston Chess Club tournament in the early days of the then newly reorganized club, when it held forth at the Hotel Lenox in Boston.

"West led the king of diamonds, and a grand slam looked as easy as pie when the dummy was spread. I trumped the diamond opening and won two rounds of trumps in the dummy. When East failed to follow suit on the second round I didn't feel so sorry about stopping at six spades. I played the dummy's ace of hearts and then made my famous coup. I led dummy's last trump and overtook it with the ace, thereby promoting West's ten of trumps to the rank of top trump. But I didn't care, as I simply ran my hearts, then clubs, permitting West to trump in for his only trick whenever he felt like taking it.

"Any other play and I will not be able to get out of the dummy without using up another trump, which will let West get control.

"The proper contract of six spades was defeated at other tables, and many South players were so unfortunate as to play the hand at six hearts, where they were unmercifully beaten.

"One North player did well at six clubs by a simple entry—elimination play. East led the jack of diamonds, which South trumped. North took the lead with the ace of hearts and South trumped another diamond, drawing East's last diamond. Next North ran three rounds of clubs. East refused to trump North's two winning spade tricks, and when South overtook North's last spade with the ace, East again discarded. It mattered not if East trumped, because East, stripped of everything save hearts, perforce had to lead one."

The Federal Diary

By The Diarist

A SPECIAL train pulls out of Union Station here tomorrow for the New York World's Fair. On it will be Miss Mabel Sugnet, brunette WPA administrative employe, "Miss Beauty With Brains"; Mrs. Mabel Meeker, of Internal Revenue, the runner-up in the contest, and Miss Charlotte Whittington, of the Federal Alcohol Administration, who was selected as an alternate.

Otherwise on the train will be several hundred local Federal employes who will go to New York to attend the Fair on Government Employes' Day, to be observed on Saturday.

That the World's Fair officials will really make Government Employes' Day a first rate event is assured. They have written numerous letters to Herbert Strople, chairman of the A. F. G. E.'s Ways and Means Committee, which, with The Post, sponsored the beauty with brains contest.

It was stated that several New York newspapers will assign reporters to accompany "Miss Beauty With Brains" to the Fair. The Fair officials will tender her a luncheon in the administration building on the grounds. A special party will be given her at the Paradise Cafe by the management, where she will be introduced to the cafe crowd. A motor company will form a cavalcade at her hotel door and escort her to the Fair grounds.

HER REACTION to all these goings-on will be reported in news stories to be sent The Post by Scott Hart. A Post staff photographer also will accompany her. Much credit for the success of the contest is due Strople and Edward McGinnis, chairman and vice chairman of the A. F. G. E.'s committee.

The record from Senator Ellender's special civil service inquiry grows to vast proportion, and the chances of any of it getting the eye of Congress this session are practically nil. But, the point is that the record does contain valuable data on many employes' hopes and blasted hopes. It should get a strong attention now while the civil service iron is reasonably hot in the public and official eye. We wish that Ellender would let Dr. F. M. Davenport's Council of Personnel Administration see that record. There are many bits of information in it which the council could use to advantage, or at least take into consideration while shaping its own proposals. This was not to infer that the council would ignore the Ellender findings—it simply might overlook the many things Ellender learned. Much data has been placed before the council and more will come. It is simply considered here that Ellender may have some facts that the council would be glad to know of.

THE INTERNAL Revenue Athletic Association tonight sponsors a moonlight cruise down the Potomac, the event marking the opening of the association's 1939-40 social season. The proceeds go to the working funds of the association, whose chief aim is to provide recreational activities for the bureau employes.

Some of Secretary Ickes' minions claim to be embarrassed when they attempt to get matter into the newspapers. The reason: The Secretary's almost constant rowing with the press.

At its meeting the other night, the board of representatives of Local 2, N. F. F. E., placed the following names in nomination for delegates to the biennial convention of the N. F. F. E. in San Francisco next September: John L. Bateman (GAO), Ulrey J. Biller (Veterans' Administration), John Deeds (Interior), Dr. Howard A. Edson (Agriculture), Mrs. Marie T. Gardner (Navy), Alfred B. Hastings, William Holmes, Dr. H. H. T. Jackson (Agriculture), Tobert E. Lowe (Veterans), Joseph Menehan, Jesse Moss (Interior), Henry G. Nolda (Veterans), Daniel F. O'Flaherty (Agriculture), Lee H. Shugar (GAO), David L. Thomas (Interior), W. Burton Uppercue (Veterans), Miss Katherine Willson and John Wimer (Veterans). Eight will be elected at the board meeting June 9.

Bob Burns Says—

There are five invitations layin' here on my table and every one of 'em wants me to attend some brilliant intellectual gathering of some kind tonight, and here I sit at home, in my sock feet, enjoying myself just thinkin'. I've been thinkin', as I look back over things, that it's the unusual happenings in a man's life that makes it interesting.

Last June, Hugh Parks, editor of the Press-Argus, called the rewrite man into his office and said, "Here, Noseby, make a front-page story out'ta this weddin'."

Mr. Noseby said, "Listen, Mr. Parks, we don't never put a little old two-bit weddin' like this on the front page."

Hugh says, "Yeah, but this weddin' is the first in ten years where the write-up won't say, 'The couple will reside with the bride's parents!'"

Listen to Bob Burns tonight on WRC—between 9 P. M. and 10 P. M.

Rosalyn Randle Questioned Again On Curing Case

Rosalyn Randle, persuasive healer who was convicted last month of getting money by false pretenses from a Washington woman for curing a college boy of suicidal impulses which he denied having, must decide by Friday whether she will stand trial for mailing promises to cure all diseases for $500, paid in advance.

Tuesday, before Justice Adkins, her attorney asked for probation on the false pretenses conviction. Confronted with letters, some of which she admitted writing, Mrs. Randle explained them as the result of a "decoy" set for her by the American Medical Association, who, she said, placed a stenographer in her office to trap her into writing incriminating letters. She denied intent of defrauding anyone.

Secrets in Love

By Phyllis Moore Gallagher

Count Paul Stranyan—Attache at a foreign embassy in Washington.

Joan Covington—Young sister of Anthony.

At the embassy reception where Peg had gone with Duncan and Anthony, she was surprised to see Hewitt accompanied by Thalia Polk. Hewitt had told Peg he was to be away on business, but he is able to make Peg believe that his relations with Thalia are purely platonic and that his being with her was to enable him to get an account from the Senator. While they are talking an exotic woman enters the room. She is Nadeja Damara, a woman who holds a strange influence over Duncan.

Chapter XI

Peg and Anthony walked home from the embassy reception, for Duncan and Nadeja Damara had danced together once or twice and then disappeared. Thalia and Hewitt had vanished, too. Peg had observed without surprise. Thalia Polk was the type who wouldn't stay very long at any social function. There would always be a score of parties on her engagement pad for each evening, and she and Hewitt had probably gone on to one of those.

Hardly without realizing it, Peg clung to that thought like a guide rope on a swinging bridge. Even though she wouldn't admit it to herself, she didn't want to think of Hewitt driving somewhere alone with Thalia; or Hewitt in that impressive mansion just off Sheridan Circle, sipping cocktails in a dimly lit drawing room . . .

Joan Covington walked along with them as far as her hotel on Connecticut avenue, monopolizing the conversation. "If that blonde demon thinks she's going to walk off with Duncan right from under my small freckled nose she's got another think coming to her," Joan said firmly.

And then: "Peg, she's old! None of us got a real close look at her—Duncan was that quick about getting her off somewhere to himself—but even from a distance you could tell she was 30—maybe even 40. And she has a husband, besides.

Mystery

"I asked my newspaper lad about her before he went back to the grind. He said he didn't know anything except that her husband was a very wealthy physician or scientist; that they lived very swankily in a fashionable hotel, and that they went around to lots of parties, mostly diplomatic ones. They entertained a lot, too; very important people. He said he thought they were Russians, but then someone else had told him they were Germans, and still someone else had told him they were such a 'delightful Rumanian couple.'

"No one seems to know where they're from, really. Only that Dr. Damara is here doing medical research with an eye to improving his sanatorium, which is in the Alps or the Ukraine or on the Russian steppes. Why does Washington clasp to its social bosom people they know nothing whatsoever about?"

Peg's mind slipped back to that home on Massachusetts avenue, where she had met Anthony. She remembered the gossip about the people who had lived there, how they had failed to succeed socially in Washington. She said, very evenly: "Perhaps it's safer to have a background that's lost or mysterious rather than one that is an open book to every newspaperman and society editor in the country. Maybe that's why the Damaras don't care to talk about their country, whatever it is." She paused a moment, then added thoughtfully: "Or maybe they are Russians. I've met one or two White Russians. They had had such a tragic, horrible past they simply couldn't bring themselves to talk about it."

To which Anthony, oddly enough, had nothing to say. He walked on in silence. And glancing at him now, Peg wondered at the granite line of his profile, the firm jutting jaw and the continued silence. She said swiftly: "Do you know anything about them, Anthony?"

"Nothing particularly illuminating," he said. And changed the subject without even a pretense of dexterity to football.

Worried About Duncan

But Peg was thinking about Duncan and Nadeja Damara, trying to look at the affair in a modern, sensible light. Duncan was 28, she told herself. His heart, soul and body was wrapped up in the service, and the service would not tolerate a scandal involving one of its officers. Duncan knew that. And, besides, he was old enough to take care of himself. He wasn't a kid. Anyone could see, however, that he was infatuated with Nadeja Damara. Still, he wasn't the first young man in the world to be charmed by a married woman, a woman much older than himself. Nor would he be the last.

They dropped Joan off at the Mayflower and Anthony, writing her a check for her hotel bill and train fare, made her promise she would take the first train back to New York in the morning. He would, he told her, send a telegram tonight to the school authorities, trying in his feeble way to fix things up for her. "And I hope," he finished gravely, "that Uncle Nathaniel doesn't find out about this latest escapade."

Joan began to chuckle. "It would be a blow to the old boy, wouldn't it? First you defy him by becoming a foreign service man instead of a nice stuffed shirt on Wall Street. Then I flashed thumbs-down on becoming one of those bespectacled little numbers who live to learn. Well, you've been disinherited, as you well know, and I seem to be fast on the way. Uncle Nathaniel will probably give every cent of his money to a home for wayward kittens or underprivileged guppies."

She turned to Peg then. "I just don't take to an education, Peg," she said. "The sooner Uncle Nathaniel discovers that, the better." And then she added, seriously, almost shyly: If Mother and Dad had lived, I'm sure they wouldn't make me continue in school or have a debut. What I really want is—a home of my own—and a little kitchen and a book of recipes and lots of flowers in the back yard. Duncan's, of course."

"Joan!"

Prophetic

Peg stood in silence a moment, watching the twinkling of her sandaled feet receding across the lobby, the bright swirl of white satin around them. She said, finally: "I hope she gets her ten kids. She's adorable, Anthony."

Anthony grinned. "She is, isn't she? Reckless and impulsive. But sweet, too. She'd die for anyone she loves."

A long while later Peg would remember Anthony saying that, and always afterward the rustle of satin and the hushed patter of sandals on a rug would give Peg a sense of the impermanence of pleasure. It would touch some memory and she would never remember exactly why.

Then Anthony added, soberly: "I wish I hadn't had Joan down here last month. I asked Duncan to take her around. He did, and she hasn't thought of anything else since. Duncan didn't even see her. I doubt if he even realizes I have a kid sister. Particularly one who is nuts about him."

And then Peg and Anthony weren't talking of either Duncan or Joan. They were walking through the November night, talking about things that two people talk about when they have known each other just a few hours; football teams and swing bands and Hitler.

In the Moonlight

On Buffalo Bridge they stopped and stood looking over the wall, with Washington to their left and the heart of old Georgetown to their right. They stood in silence looking down upon silvery strips of roads, at treetops and water gurgling over rocks in a foamy haste. She thought, "I wonder where his mind has carried him in this moment."

She couldn't know that Anthony was remembering suddenly what a lonely child he had been in Uncle Nathaniel's great white house on New York's Sutton Place. What a lonely boy in prep school and later college. And that never at any time had he appeared to be these things. He had always been gay on the surface, never standing still with life or his loneliness. He had a positive genius for surrounding himself with gay companions, for thinking up wacky things to do and say.

He liked people and life and he had never been really unhappy. But he had been lonely, always.

He had been lonely even in love affairs. For there had been love affairs, such as they were. Girls you met at frat dances and at debut balls. Girls you kissed and forgot and girls you kissed and remembered vaguely. And more recently Evangeline Martin, daughter of a British Consul, in Shanghai. But Evangeline had never really mattered, though for a week or two in his loneliness he had thought that perhaps she did. Then Shanghai had been bombed and Evangeline had sailed away with the first refugees. He wouldn't, he supposed, ever see her again. And he knew that he didn't care. Even if he had loved her he had realized that he wasn't ready for marriage. He wasn't ready for marriage even now.

But looking at Peg he found himself lost in the moonlight shining on her young loveliness, lost in the cloud of her fair hair, her absurdly long lashes and her slim, pale hands. He knew, as he had known from the first moment that he had looked at her, that she was the answer to his loneliness, the one woman who could inspire him to whatever greatness there was in him.

In His Arms

In the next moment he kissed her. It was a long kiss. A hard, devastating and thoroughly complete kiss. Peg backed off from it, spent and shaken and amazed at herself. She thought, breathlessly: "I let him kiss me. I didn't try to get away. I didn't even want to get away." She couldn't understand it. Not when she loved Hewitt as she did. Not when this one strange, disturbing moment could make her forget Hewitt utterly.

That following week seemed terribly long to Peg. Hewitt had spent two days in Baltimore on business, had come back to the office for just a few minutes on the third and had taken an afternoon plane for New York. He had been gone exactly six days now, but to Peg it seemed ages and ages. The whole universe had had time to go marching through eternity by the mark of time her heart kept.

She had tried to do things to fill up those days. There was her work at the office with Mr. Nelson still gruff, still convinced that she had been pulling his leg about that woman in the garage. In retrospect, it did seem fantastic.

Griffenhagen Revisers to Drop Suffrage

Commissioners to Be Kept, Says Kennedy After White House Talk

The District Commissioners are in no danger of being displaced by a city council, at least not in the immediate future, a White House conference on the Griffenhagen plan developed yesterday.

The Griffenhagen plan, which already has undergone one severe revision, will be shorn of all aspects of local self-government and offered to the District sub-committee on reorganization within a few days, Chairman Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland, disclosed.

Decision to retain the District Commissioners was reached at the conference with President Roosevelt. Besides Kennedy, those at the parley were Representative Collins (Democrat) of Mississippi, Representative McGehee (Democrat), of Mississippi, and Frank O. Everett, of Griffenhagen & Associates.

Kennedy said after the conference he would make the change with reference to the city council and possibly some other revisions before calling a meeting of his sub-committee. Meanwhile, he will confer with officials of the Budget Bureau and Chairman King, of the Senate District Committee, in an effort to enlist their support.

Will Push Own Bill

While abandoning the city council in the Griffenhagen plan, Kennedy said he will continue to promote his own bill for local suffrage, which proposes to set up an elective city council. This measure is before the House District Committee.

Still hopeful that some form of District government reorganization can be effected by the Seventy-sixth Congress, Kennedy pointed out that if a bill were passed by the House this session it could be called up in the Senate next session should an early adjournment prevent earlier Senate action.

Kennedy said he believed a partial reorganization, including a more efficient grouping of departments under a single administrator, would be a step in the right direction. The city council and extension of local self-government privileges, he said, might be added in future years if the initial reorganization proved successful.

Less Control for Commissioners

The District Commissioners, under the new plan, will gain in policy-making powers but lose in administrative control. Kennedy said the bill will extend minor ordinance-making authority to them, though perhaps not so much as the original Griffenhagen plan proposed for the city council.

The city manager, or administrator, though under the Commissioners, actually would relieve the District heads of most of the burden of municipal administration.

With the controversy over displacement of the Commissioners out of the way, however, the President presumably will fill the long vacant Commissionership formerly held by George E. Allen. He had been delaying the appointment since Congress convened to await the outcome of the Griffenhagen study.

Some changes may be made in the departmental setup proposed in the original Griffenhagen plan, Kennedy intimated. The concessions to the Board of Education and library trustees, made by Kennedy following public hearings, will be retained in the new draft.

Sarnoff Invites Competition With NBC Chain, Inquiry Told

Argues Against Licensing of Radio Networks and Opposes Inflexible Rules, Citing Fast Radio Development

David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America and chairman of the board of the National Broadcasting Co., tried to encourage competition for his network before the monopoly investigating committee of the Federal Communications Commission yesterday.

Looking ahead only to the next five or ten years, he told the commission there is no technological reason to assume that broadcasting stations will not outnumber newspapers.

"All the space in the ether is available for new networks," he said, "and I am trying to encourage new ones. There are between 700 and 800 broadcasting stations now, but there is no reason why there should not be 7,000, or 70,000."

Wants Flexible Rules

Sarnoff also referred to the early development of television, and of broadcasting printed newspapers. This was to persuade the commission that inflexible regulations should not be set up on the basis of existing broadcasting conditions that might be undated tomorrow.

The R. C. A. president also argued against a suggestion that networks should be licensed.

"When you license the program-creating agency, in addition to licensing the equipment by assigning wavelengths, you introduce a new idea," he said to Commissioners Frederick I. Thompson, Thad H. Brown and Paul A. Walker. "You then regulate entertainment, education, news, and pictures, not the radio frequency. The minute that power is in your hands, it becomes almost unlimited power to license everything from beginning to end. You could license the Radio Corporation of America, and the individual broadcaster before the mirophone.

Censorship Forecast

"If the Government writes a code to govern radio programs it will certainly establish censorship in direct violation of constitutional guarantees of freedom of speech," he said at another place.
